PEER TAKES OWN LIFE TO ESCAPE 'KING TUT CURSE'

Eleventh to Die Since Tomb Was Opened.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 21.—For the eleventh time, tragedy has come to some person associated with the party who broke open the age old tomb of Tutankhamen to find staring at them the ancient Egyptian curse: "Death shall come on swift wings to him that touches the tomb of a pharaoh."

Worried Over Son's Death.

To believers in the supernatural the heavy hand of Tut-ankh-amen reaching across the centuries is seen in this latest death. It is said that Lord Westbury worried about Pharaoh's curse and the shock of his son's death may have contributed to the unsettled state of mind which caused him to decide to take his own life as an escape. He has been in poor health for a long time and had been taking drugs under medical supervision.

Trace Strange Fatality.

The death of Lord Westbury once more attracts attention to the strange fatality which has overcome those associated with the discovery and exploration of the tomb of Tut-ankh-amen.

The first death was that of the Earl of Carnarvon, who with Howard Carter, an American, discovered the tomb. He died in Cairo from a poisonous mosquito bite within a year after the tomb was discovered. He was an intimate friend of Lord Westbury.

Col. Aubrey Herbert, who was the half brother of Carnarvon's half brother, died several months later. He had entered the tomb also. His death was followed by those of George J. Gould, American financier, who went to Egypt to visit the tomb, and Wolf Joel.

Sir Archibald Douglas-Reid, a famous radiologist who had agreed to make an X-ray examination of the mummy, died in 1924.

Prof. Lafleur, an eminent Canadian lawyer and professor at McGill university, died a little later at Luxor while on a visit to the tomb.

Also Left Note on Curse.

A. G. Evelyn-White, scholar and archaeologist, killed himself toward the end of 1924. He left a note saying that it was a curse on him.

In 1929 two sudden deaths occurred which were connected with the tomb. They were those of M. Benedite, a French archaeologist, and M. Passada, both of them had taken part in the excavations in the Valley of the Kings.

Scientist Scoffs at "Curse."

While the superstitious are having a field day over "King Tut's curse," there is one man in England who scoffs at it tonight.

Dr. Ernest A. Wallis Budge, keeper of the Egyptian and Assyrian antiquities in the British museum from 1893 to 1924, said he had dug up lots of mummies and never once thought of a curse being laid on him for disturbing the ancient remains.

He said he opened the coffins and took them away, but always buried the mummy. He considered it was no more a sacrilege to bury human remains. Dr. Budge said the idea of "the curse of the kings" is a psychological matter. If a man is frightened and dwells on it he will suffer terrible results, he probably will, he added.

Six veteran pilots, headed by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, member of the county aviation advisory board, this morning will conduct a coroner's inquest over the bodies of Capt. Joseph Donnellan and Richard King, burned to death late yesterday when their plane plunged 200 feet to the ground at Irving Park boulevard and Cumberland avenue.

The field from which the two men took off and on which they crashed 15 minutes later is located on county forest preserve land. Maj. Ralph Royce, army air expert, retained as an adviser by the county board, recommended last November that the field be closed because it was unsafe. Flying was said to have been terminated there on Jan. 1 and resumed last Wednesday, and how it happened to be resumed will be one of the principal subjects of inquiry by the jury of experts.

See Plane Fall and Burn.

Capt. Donnellan, veteran of the Canadian Royal Flying corps, with King, a student flyer, took off about 1:30 p. m. yesterday. The plane, watchers said, circled the field several times, and as it banked on a turn it dived to the ground.

A number of men near the hangars of the Chicago Flying club, some distance away on the same field, ran to the assistance of the two men trapped in the wreckage of the plane. But it was ablaze when they arrived and rescue was impossible.

Maj. Reed G. Landis, chairman of the county aviation advisory board, Maj. Schroeder, and O. W. Young, inspector of aircraft for the United States department of commerce, went to the scene at once. They made a preliminary investigation and arranged for the inquest, which is to open at 10 o'clock this morning in the undertaking rooms at 6453 Irving Park boulevard.

Leases Hold Up Action.

Maj. Landis said he knew of Maj. Royce's recommendation that the field, known as the old Cook county field No. 1, be closed. He said, however, that two concerns at the time held leases on parts of the ground and it was determined that the county could not legally terminate the leases until Jan. 1.

Maj. Landis said that President Cermak of the county board had ordered flying stopped on the fields as soon as the leases expired. "If permission was granted to resume flying there last Wednesday," said Maj. Landis, "it must have been done by mistake by some one connected with the county board in the absence of President Cermak.

The plane the two men were flying was found to have been licensed. It was a Parks two seater biplane equipped with dual controls and an OX5 Curtiss motor. It was said to have been a new plane, having been flown only 30 hours.

Plane Owned by Group.

Eight men, including King, were said to have been partners in the ownership of the plane, and Capt. Donnellan was employed to teach them to fly. The group was known as the Pioneer Flying club. W. G. Brandon of 1231 Newport avenue is reported to be one of the eight owners.

The group which owned the wrecked plane had leased the hangar in which it was kept from the Chicago Aeronautical service, which is now in the hands of a receiver.

Maj. Landis and Chief Collins of the highway police found five airplanes in hangars belonging to the Chicago Flying club on the same field. The hangars were sealed until the investigation could be completed.

Chief Collins told the investigators he did not know how flying happened to be resumed on the forbidden field last Wednesday. He declared his men had been watching the field since Jan. 1, when the ban was put on, and that there had been no flying up until Wednesday.

Capt. Donnellan was one of two pilots who attempted to fly the ship "We Will" on a tour to South America in 1926. He got as far as Cuba and then turned back. King lived at 4734 West Huron street. He is survived by his wife, Augusta, and two children, Constance, 3 years old, and Richard Jr., 5.

THE BACKTRACKERS

Find Wisdom in Mouths of Hungry Babes

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

It is possible that a baby's instinct is better than an adult's judgment as to the best diet, even for an 8 months old infant. For the last three years a systematic experiment has been in progress to determine what might happen if all precedent were abandoned and infants were permitted to choose their own diets. Dr. Clare Davis, who has directed the experiment, told about it yesterday at a luncheon of the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education in the Piccadilly restaurant.

Dr. Davis denies she has any theory on the subject. Her study of thirteen babies over 3 years has been conducted entirely for the purpose of discovering what might happen, she told the mothers, if all influence in the choice and amount of food an infant takes were left to his own choice and whim. The result has been a surprise.

How Experiment Is Made.

Although begun in Cleveland, the last two years of the experiment have been conducted in a house on Arlington place here. Two of the babies that started three years ago in the Mount Sinai hospital in Cleveland still are under observation. Each baby is started on the routine at eight months, marking the first experience with solid foods. All the babies had been breast fed.

Every baby has a separate chair and table for meals, with an attendant nurse. A tray is placed before him with an extensive variety of foods that include beef, bone marrow, sweetbreads, liver, potatoes, carrots, turnips, cauliflower, a number of cereals, sweet and sour milk, and many fruits. Nothing is salted or seasoned. Salt is served separately.

"At first," Dr. Davis explained, "the child may be too tiny even to handle his own hands. At that stage, when he tries to reach any dish, the nurse spoons up a bit and puts it in his mouth.

Hard Boiled Eggs!

"The nurse never indicates in any way whether a child should have one thing or another. Some of the diets would never be thought possible for such babies, yet we have had instances where one child ate five hard boiled eggs at 11 months—nothing else. At 2½ years he once ate nine hard boiled eggs. Another ate at one meal 100 grams of sweetbreads and 10 ounces of vegetables. One summer night another made a meal of a glass of orange juice.

CITY PROSECUTOR SEEKS A DELAY FOR DEFENDANT

The anomaly of an assistant city prosecutor seeking a continuance for a defendant instead of pressing the charges against him was presented yesterday in State street court.

The defendant was Julius Steiner, 35 years old, 4913 Dorchester avenue, formerly an employé of the corporation counsel's office. A 70 year old woman, Mrs. Regina Weiss, 1401 Hyde Park boulevard, charged that Steiner had struck her last Wednesday at the threshold of Judge Joseph Burke's court in a dispute over certain papers, which she believed he had in his possession.

When the case was called Steiner did not answer, nor was a lawyer there to represent him. But a spokesman materialized in the person of Assistant City Prosecutor William Oehlsen, who begged a continuance for the defendant, whom it was his duty to prosecute.

The prosecutor's plea failed to sway Judge Immenhausen, who ordered Steiner's $50 bond forfeited and issued a capias for his arrest.

Collector for Charity Jailed as Intoxicated

H. L. Marble, 48 years old, 1424 Madison street, a solicitor for the Association of Christian Volunteers, yesterday afternoon was arrested by the Evanston police, who found him intoxicated at Chicago avenue and Main street, Evanston, where he was asking for the funds.

Poisons His 3 Grandchildren and Self; 2 Die

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Rather than part with his three grandchildren, Jesse Waite, 57, bought the youngsters new dresses and gorged them on ice cream tonight and then fed them rat poison. Two girls are dead and another is dying. Waite, with whom the children lived, also swallowed some of the poison. His condition is serious.

The dead children are Alma Vernal, 3, and Ruth Vernal, her sister, 5. The third sister, Betty, 8, probably will die.

The children's stepfather, Manuel Vernal, 38, and their mother, Julia, 24, were in another room when the poison was administered.

Planned to Move.

Vernal had planned to move the family to another house. The grandfather was to be left behind. Waite protested he could not bear parting with his granddaughters.

Waite asked his daughter to permit the children to sleep in his bed because "this will be our last night together," he told her.

Shortly after dark the three children clambered into bed with their grandfather. Three hours later Mrs. Vernal found all four in agony from the effects of the poison.

A death note was found in Waite's pocket by hospital attendants.

"I just want the children to sleep with me tonight for the sole purpose of taking them along with me," Waite wrote. "This is the one way I can be with them. I love them so well I cannot go without them.

"I am too sane to live in this wicked world. Please bury us all in one box and in one grave."

Chokes Grandson to Death.

Beside him, unconscious on the bed, was his grandmother, Mrs. John G. Ashe Sr. A cord was around her neck, one end of which was in her hand.

Coroner Frank Hovis expressed the opinion that Mrs. Ashe, who has been in ill health, choked the boy to death with her hands and then attempted suicide.

100 Marines Quarantined Due to Spinal Meningitis

Harriman and Ex-Wife of Whitney Wed

New York, Feb. 21.—[Special.]—William Averell Harriman, chairman of the board of the investment house of the W. A. Harriman & Co., Inc., and Mrs. Marie Norton Whitney, former wife of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, were married here today. Mrs. Whitney obtained a divorce last September in Reno, while Mr. Harriman was divorced in Paris by his first wife, Mrs. Kitty Lanier Lawrence, in August.

The report of the marriage was confirmed late tonight by Sheridan S. Norton of 850 Park avenue, father of the bride.

The ceremony was performed in All Souls' church, with the Rev. Dr. Minot Simons, rector, officiating. E. Roland Harriman, younger brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man, and Mrs. William G. Lord, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Only members of the two families were present.

The ceremony was followed by a reception, and Mr. and Mrs. Harriman sailed at midnight on the North German Lloyd liner Bremen for a wedding trip in Europe.

Head of Harriman Millions.

Mr. Harriman is the elder son of the late E. H. Harriman. He is a director in many other corporations. He is one of the leading polo players in this country and owns large racing stables. He is 38 years old.

He married Kitty Lawrence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. Lawrence of this city in 1915, two years after his graduation from Yale. He was divorced on a charge of desertion.

Mrs. Marie Norton Whitney Harriman was married to Cornelius V. Whitney in Paris on March 5, 1923.

Reports of an impending separation developed early in 1928. They were denied vigorously although they persisted for more than a year.

Whitney Sued by Dancer.

Meanwhile a $1,000,000 claim of Evan Burrows Fontaine, dancer, against Mr. Whitney, whom she charged with broken promise and the paternity of her son, was being persistently pressed in the courts. It was dismissed in the Supreme court here in May, 1929, but a few months later Mrs. Whitney took residence in Reno, and sued for divorce. She charged mental cruelty and incompatibility.

Mr. Harriman, besides being chairman of W. A. Harriman & Co., Inc., holds directorates in the following firms: Guaranty Trust company of New York, Merchant-Sterling corporation, National Securities company, Union Pacific Railroad company, New York Title and Mortgage company, Silesian-American corporation, United American Lines, American Ship and Commerce corporation, Illinois Central Railroad company, American and Continental corporation, Western Union Telegraph company, Wright Aeronautical company, Aviation Corporation of America, and William Cramp & Sons' Ship and Engine Building company.

NEW "COTTON SUGAR" WON'T MAKE YOU FAT

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Sugar and "meat" from cotton were exhibited and described to the Georgia Press institute today by Dr. Charles H. Herty of New York, former president of the American Chemical society.

Dr. Herty said science has produced a soluble sugar which passes through the body without change, making it possible for a person to eat all the sweets he or she needs without a worry about getting fat.

The new sugar, called xylose, is being produced commercially, Dr. Herty said, and housewives soon will place it on their tables as common sugar.

BANKER DIRECTS 'MINUTE MEN' IN TAX CAMPAIGN

Clark Hunts Funds with 25 Teams.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The campaign for $74,000,000 with which to operate the city, county, public schools, and sanitary district until July 1 struck a snag yesterday. The two days' effort is said to have obtained less than $6,000,000 in subscriptions. That means a deferring of the pay day for 43,826 public employés, who have $11,909,430 coming in overdue salaries.

Silas H. Strawn of the citizens' committee sent out a call for help at 4 p. m. yesterday. He prevailed upon Philip R. Clarke, new president of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, to organize a "drive" for the $74,000,000. Mr. Clarke was head of the committee on trades in the Liberty loan drives. The campaigns, largely through speakers called "four minute men," sold about $750,000,000 in Liberty bonds during the war. This acme organization, each time directed by Mr. Clarke, has collected large sums of money since, the last one being the Japanese earthquake relief.

Starts Reviving Organization.

Mr. Clarke started reassembling his organization and by this morning expects to have his chairmen selected for 25 committees for each trade, business, and calling of size in Chicago. He has called a meeting of these committee chairmen for 11 a. m. today at the Central Trust bank, 209 South La Salle street, room G.

Each committee chairman will then be told what part of the $74,000,000 he is expected to obtain, and despite the fact that it is Washington's birthday Mr. Clarke hopes to get his 25 teams working. He has informed the Central Trust that he will be "off duty" for four days, in which he expects to obtain the $74,000,000 in subscriptions.

Pay May Come Thursday.

If that schedule works out, then another day will be required to get in an installment of the cash and purchase the tax anticipation warrants. So it now appears that pay day will not arrive before next Thursday unless results are obtained faster than anticipated.

The lack of large success so far is attributed to three reasons:

Many large taxpayers believe that public officials should be compelled to curb waste in expenditures.

Sensational reports of the amount of subscriptions already obtained have made some feel that their aid is not needed.

Still other taxpayers resent the lack of formal promise from the city and school officials that they will cooperate on legislation to prevent a recurrence of present conditions.

Certain Investment Is Good.

In addition to these three reasons there is some hesitancy on the part of certain business men to purchase a participating certificate in the Taxpayers' Trust because of their lack of knowledge regarding it. No difficulty on this later score is anticipated by Mr. Clarke. He is certain that the investment is good, and he added:

"We are selling an investment, not asking a contribution. It is the prudent duty of all property owners to invest. There is every certainty that the tax warrants will be paid and also interest on them. The investment offered is safe and good."

The business of Chicago has been divided by Mr. Clarke into 25 groups, among which will be made the canvass for the $74,000,000. The groups with a partial list of the chairmen announced by Mr. Clarke are:

1—Advertising, newspapers, and publishers, Walter A. Strong.
2—Chemical and drugs, Ottmar M. Krembs.
3—Men's clothing, S. J. Cahn.

23—Machinery, George A. Ranney.
24—State street stores.
25—Hotels and restaurants, Walter L. Gregory.

The subscriptions obtained to date

are as follows: Union Stockyards, $450,000; Carson Pirie Scott & Co., $250,000; Montgomery Ward & Co., $475,000; International Harvester company, $1,250,000, and $250,000 more if needed; H. H. Porter, $50,000; Drake and Blackstone hotels, $200,000; Burlington railroad, $300,000; Swift & Co. and subsidiaries, $450,000; National Malleable Steel Castings company, $100,000; Alton railroad, $1,000,000; St. Paul railroad, $250,000; Robert F. Carr, $100,000; Illinois Central railroad, $100,000, and Central Manufacturing district, $150,000. This is a total of $5,525,000. Of the mark of $74,000,000, there remains $68,475,000 for Mr. Clarke and his organization to obtain.

No Opposition to Plan.

At the Strawn committee meeting of large property owners last Wednesday afternoon in the Midday club no adverse sentiment was expressed against the plan to finance the local governments until July 1; but no pledges were asked at that time and with two or three exceptions none were volunteered.

It was the opinion of Mr. Strawn at that time that the leaders indicated a willingness to subscribe for $43,000,000. On Thursday an effort was made to obtain signed subscriptions and by those qualified to judge it was said that the first day was full of promise. Yesterday, however, the subscriptions fell far below expectations.

Strawn Makes Statement.

Regarding the situation Mr. Strawn said last night:

"At the meeting of citizens held on Wednesday, the 19th, pledges of many millions of dollars to the Cook county taxpayers' warrant trust were made but the subscriptions to the fund were not signed. We find some reluctance to sign these subscriptions until all legal aspects of the plan have been approved by the lawyers for the various subscribers. This necessarily involves a great deal of time and consequent delay.

"We appreciate the legal right of any subscriber to know exactly what he is signing. At the same time we do not believe our citizens fully understand the necessity of prompt action or that they are entailing no risk in helping out the city in its distress. It is not the intention of our committee to invest in any securities unless and until their validity has been passed upon by competent counsel, or to in any way jeopardize the subscribers' money.

Banks to Contribute Third.

"We have it from an authoritative source that the banks will subscribe for one-third of such amount as we are able to raise up to $74,000,000. Considering the necessities of the municipalities until July 1, we cannot consistently declare our plan operative until we have subscriptions signed to the amount of at least $50,000,000.

"Our committee realizes keenly the desperateness of the condition and the fact that there are many faithful employés of the city and county, as well as dependents, who are really suffering for want of food. Our problem is to convince the citizens of Chicago of that fact. We hope that the citizens will not wait to be invited to subscribe to this fund. Subscriptions in any amount are welcome. The subscription blanks are available at the Chicago Title and Trust company and in the trust departments of the following banks:

"Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company; First Union Trust and Savings bank, Central Trust Company of Illinois, Harris Trust and Savings bank, National Bank of the Republic, Foreman National and Northern Trust company."

TEST SUIT FILED IN CITY'S GRAB FOR $12,000,000

Water Bond Issue Put Up to Court.

The Thompson administration, hard pressed for cash, adopted a new plan yesterday in an effort to lay hands on $12,000,000 which has been just out of reach of the spenders since July 1 of last year. The money is to be gleaned, if possible, from the sale of bonds to be issued against the revenues obtained from the sale of water. Administration leaders say frankly that they hope to see the money spent before Mayor Thompson's term expires.

Two efforts have been made by the administration to get the money, but both were frustrated by City Controller Schmidt. He refused to issue the bonds on the ground that the state statute, authorizing their issuance, is unconstitutional. He has indicated that he will continue to refuse to issue them, despite council orders to the contrary, until their validity has been upheld.

Get Authority for Suit.

Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe, under whose direction the money would be spent, then appealed to Corporation Counsel Ettelson. They planned to sue for a writ of mandamus to compel Schmidt to issue the bonds and obtained council authority to proceed.

A suit was filed yesterday in the Superior court by the law firm of Nash & Ahern for an injunction to restrain the city from issuing the bonds. The suit was filed on behalf of a taxpayer, Frank J. Ward, 7856 Kingston avenue. It was the first notice to the aldermen, who had authorized the corporation counsel to start the mandamus suit, that there had been a change in the plans.

Different Kind of Suit.

Several aldermen called attention to the difference between the present test case and the one planned by the corporation counsel. Under the writ of mandamus, because the corporation counsel otherwise would have been attorney for both the city and for the defendant, Schmidt planned to hire his own attorneys to fight the case. This would have insured real opposition to the suit brought by the corporation counsel's office.

The taxpayer's suit, the aldermen said, may hinge around other points than those on which Schmidt's attorneys based their opinion. In that case, according to the aldermen, the bonds might be judged legal without settling Schmidt's doubts.

"It is important to know the background for the taxpayer's suit," said Ald. Guy Guernsey [6th]. "The council will watch the suit with interest."

Rob Couple at Garage; Get Woman's $1,000 Coat

Two armed men held up Mr. and Mrs. Max Weisbaum, 4830 Drake avenue, as they were putting their automobile in the garage at the rear of their home early this morning. The robbers compelled Mrs. Weisbaum to give them her fur coat, valued at $1,000, and a $150 ring and escaped.

"Secret Six" Open Warfare on Rackets as Crime Cure

The executive committee of the Association of Commerce yesterday empowered its "secret six" committee to form an organization of investigators and lawyers which will oversee and augment the staff of State's Attorney Swanson. The committee will also undertake to provide the state's attorney with evidence, will offer protection to state's witnesses, and in general will seek to combat "crimes of violence, extortion, intimidation, and obstruction of justice."

The committee is to be created for the suppression and punishment of crime, the report of the "secret six" stated, and is to be composed of citizens "of the highest standing, representative of the various commercial, civic, and social agencies, and in no sense shall it be political or partisan." It is the outgrowth of the determination of the business interests to do something to end the surge of crimes that have made Chicago appear to be a lawless city.

Will Help Authorities.

The report of the "secret six" who were appointed to make a survey of crime conditions and recommend remedies declares that through the organization of the new committee they will coöperate with the established agencies. But it is also made clear that the six intend to "supplement the work of the constituted authorities" and assume some of the duties of the county officials.

It appears from the report that the chief object of the new organization will be to make war on those who have been a menace to the safe and orderly conduct of business.

The committee has available all the data on racketeers, bombers, extortioners and union labor officials who misuse the power of their positions, compiled by the Employers' association and tendered to State's Attorney Swanson but not used by the prosecutor. Col. Robert Isham Randolph, chairman of the Association of Commerce and chairman of the special committee, said this material would undoubtedly be used—that it would be used by Swanson's assistants or by special prosecutors.

The committee likewise has the files of the citizens' committee to enforce the Landis award and the records of the crime commission of Chicago. But the commerce commission does not intend to enlarge the activities of the crime commission—which it created and has maintained—and it has not invited the aid of Frank J. Loesch, veteran crime fighter, who is president of the crime commission, as well as a member of President Hoover's crime commission.

Officials Not Consulted.

Police Commissioner Russell said the Association of Commerce members have offered him no assistance, either in men, money or advice. State's Attorney Swanson was not consulted by Col. Randolph's committeemen who, it appears, are to offer him men, money, and advice.

The committee of six, in its report, commended both the police department and the state's attorney because of the recent cleanup by the police department. But in his discussion of the contents of the report, Col. Randolph was not deaf to the inference that the activities it described—"to punish those found guilty of crimes of violence, extortion, intimidation and obstruction of justice"—were suggestive of dissatisfaction with the progress of the state's attorney.

It was recalled that State's Attorney Swanson conducted both his primary and election campaigns on his promises to stop racketeering, bombing and the alliance of crime and politics. Two months ago Swanson appointed Attorney Marshall Solberg as an assistant to prosecute racketeers, and it was said the appointment was made at the request of the Association of Commerce.

Col. Randolph was evasive on the subject of the association's disappointment because there were indictments in only two racketeering cases since Swanson became state's attorney and one of these resulted in a not guilty verdict and the other was nolled.

Will Demand Convictions.

The committee wants convictions, Col. Randolph said, and the purpose of the committee was set forth in this language:

"It is therefore safe to assume that this greater and more important task, looking to the protection of life and property as well as the preservation of the inalienable right to conduct legitimate pursuits without fear of intimidation and violence, will require undivided attention coupled with vigorous and untiring effort until the job is finished."

This was taken to mean that the business men will not concern themselves so much with holdups, burglaries and attacks on women as they will on the crimes involving restraint of business. The committee's attitude was further exemplified in the paragraph of the report:

"It is not sufficient to punish known criminals. It is perhaps of greater importance to ferret out those, no matter what their station in society may be, who profit by the criminal acts of others or by political influence or other means protect those they hire to commit illegal or criminal acts."

Membership Kept Secret.

The committee of six desired that its membership be continued to be secret and Col. Randolph said the lawyers whose services would be used would not become known until they have to appear in court. The committee was empowered to employ such a technical staff as it may deem necessary, including legal counsel, special investigators, under cover men, special prosecutors, guards and such other assistance as it may from time to time require."

Col. Randolph said unlimited funds are available for these purposes as well as to arrange for the protection of witnesses. He said State's Attorney Swanson had complained that his fund for protecting witnesses had been reduced this year by the county board.

No further meetings are to be held, Col. Randolph stated, and the public will learn of the accomplishments of the secret committee and its staff only when its evidence is presented to the grand jury.

Monaco's Prince Closes Parliament to End Rows

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTE CARLO, Monaco., Feb. 21.—Five hundred citizens of Monaco, at a massmeeting tonight, listened to a royal decree of Prince Louis dissolving the country's national council. The edict, which is expected to end the dissension raging in Monaco's "parliament" since the "revolution" a year ago, is effective Feb. 26, following which an election will take place.

DYNAMITE IS PUT BEFORE JURY IN 'BOMB RING' TRIAL

CRIMINAL COURT.

John Taylor, assault to rob, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Otto Kerner.

Oscar Sennit, William Westling, and Wallace Poole, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary; David Spears, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in Pontiac reformatory by Judge John J. Sullivan.

Buffens Porter, murder, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Peter Schwaba.

Twenty-five sticks of dynamite were handled gingerly yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Wayland Brooks as he displayed them in Judge William N. Gemmill's Criminal court, where three butchers are on trial as a result of a trap set for them by Joseph Altmeier, bankrupt butcher. Altmeier turned undercover investigator for State's Attorney John A. Swanson in order to expose what was heralded last summer as the "bomb trust."

The dynamite was separated from its original bomb form containier and the spectators, the judge, and the jury were informed by a chemist that there was no danger in bringing the exhibits into court as long as none of the dynamite sticks was struck a hard blow.

High Point for State.

The exhibition of the dynamite was the high point in the closing day of the state's case against Michael Caselli, butcher, 9300 Commercial avenue; Steve Ficke, a butcher's assistant, and Gus Fiocca, a meat jobber.

The remainder of the day was taken up with the testimony of the state's attorney's detectives on how they had arrested the defendants after Altmeier had arranged to buy four bombs for $300 cash and a check for $240.

Arrested Outside of Court.

Frank Di Battista, 25 years old, 1107 South Winchester avenue, was arrested outside of the courtroom. Altmeier said Di Battista delivered to him the first bomb after he had been urged to take over Caselli's shop and then to have it destroyed by fire or bombing to collect the insurance.

When Altmeier was on the witness stand he made no mention of Di Battista.

Attorney John Jontry, representing some of the defendants, said that the defense this morning will open with an attack on Altmeier's reputation for truthfulness.

GARY SICILIAN CHIEF FEARED SLAIN BY GANG

Rum Hijacker Missing Since Tuesday.

Paul Perconti, chief of the Unione Siciliana at Gary and reputed director of a ring of bootleggers operating through northern Indiana, is believed to have been taken for a ride and slain.

A blood stained cap and a pistol, found yesterday afternoon by a country storekeeper on a farm known as "the old Johnson place," ten miles east of Gary and a mile off the Dunes highway, were brought to Gary police headquarters early this morning and identified by his wife—or widow, as the case may be.

Perconti has been missing more than three full days. It was his habit when away from his home at 429 Jefferson street, Gary, to telephone his wife hourly. She last heard from him at 5:30 p. m. last Tuesday, when he telephoned he would be home for dinner within half an hour.

Find Shooting Evidence.

Late that night a volley of shots alarmed dwellers in a Slavic colony in West 21st avenue, Gary, several miles from Perconti's home. When police reached the scene of the gunplay the street was deserted, but the pavement was strewn with shattered glass and fired cartridge shells from three types of pistols, and there was a pool of blood on the spot.

Police Chief Stanley Buckling made a perfunctory investigation and the matter rested there until early yesterday when Perconti's wife, Mary, appeared at police headquarters in tears and announced that Paul had been missing two days and she feared he had been slain.

The search for his body was started. The undergrowth around 21st avenue was beaten over without result. Near Porter, Ind., 18 miles east of Gary, Sheriff Burney Maxwell of Porter county was informed that blood stains had been discovered on a bridge over a creek just outside the village. The stream was dragged for a half mile on both sides of the bridge without result.

Murdered, Police View.

Chief Buckling said he believed Perconti had been murdered either by jealous henchmen within the Unione Siciliana or by vengeful bootleggers.

Perconti bore a reputation among alcohol runners as a "lasso" bootlegger, one whose method was to cultivate the confidence of another bootlegger, pretend to arrange a purchase from him, and lead his victim into a nest of hijackers, who would steal the cargo. The missing man is known to have carried out such a coup three months ago in collusion with a hijacking band from Chicago Heights.

Perconti is the eldest of three brothers. His second brother, Tony, 33 years old, a Chicagoan, has been a fugitive since October, 1928, when he was identified as the driver of the car in which 10 year old Billy Ranieri was kidnaped. His youngest brother, Joseph, 30 years old, was killed last April 18 in his own back yard at Joliet.

SHOOTS AT PARENTS; KILLS SELF.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Joseph Karnick, 46, shot himself through the heart yesterday after firing eight shots at his father and mother, all going wild.

Exodus of School Trustees Holds Up Airport Expansion

Departures and intended departures of school trustees for vacations in distant places indicated to observers yesterday that plans to enlarge the municipal airport to meet the city's aviation needs will be delayed at least another six weeks. Two trustees are already on their way elsewhere and two more will soon depart. That will leave only six trustees in town and eight are needed for a vote.

The school board members have been debating for months over the adoption of a resolution to lease to the city 600 acres of the board's property at 63d street and Cicero avenue so that the airport there may be expanded. Prompt action has been urged by the Chicago Plan commission, the Chicago Association of Commerce, and hundreds of business men interested in obtaining proper aviation facilities for the city.

Exodus Halts Progress.

Lately the efforts to pass the measure have been balked by two trustees, James Mullenbach and Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, who demanded protective clauses to safeguard the board. The resolution was revised and H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the board, announced he expected an early solution of the problem. It was believed that the eight votes necessary for adoption of the resolution could be rounded up.

The final vote was postponed until next Wednesday, but in the meantime the wholesale migration started. Trustee Walter Brandenberg departed on Thursday for Europe. Trustee John A. English left last night for Atlantic City and New York, to be gone "some time," he said. As soon as money to pay the 20,000 school employés is raised, Trustee Lewis E. Myers will set out for the south and President Caldwell for California.

Mr. Myers has devoted his efforts recently to obtaining money for the school employés and has been active in furthering the work of the Strawn citizens' committee.

Aviation Leaders Dismayed.

School officials and aviation leaders were dismayed at the tendency of the vacation bound trustees to put aside their duties.

"At a time when the board is being with so many problems it certainly seems unwise for the members to scatter," said an aviation enthusiast.

"Why must they select this time to go on vacations?" a business man inquired. He is interested in seeing the board approve the sale of sections of its Austin property. This action has been consistently delayed for months to the detriment of the community development, he said.

It was also pointed out that the trustees' departure will further delay progress on the school building program, which has been at a standstill for five months, despite the plans of Supt. Bogan that new schools be erected at once to relieve the increasing serious seat shortage.

RUMANIA JAILS RUMOR MONGERS OF RUSSIAN WAR

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The Rumanian government today ordered the arrest of the authors of alarmist rumors concerning an alleged threat of Russo-Rumanian hostilities in Bessarabia. It accused opposition newspapers of using the rumors to influence voting in the countrywide municipal elections and said there was no reason for any anxiety in Rumania about the situation in Bessarabia.

Denies Rabbis Face Death.

MOSCOW, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The Jewish Telegraphic agency correspondent here today telephoned a prominent Jewish leader in Minsk and was informed that no apprehensions were felt there that fourteen leaders of the Minsk Jewish community recently arrested on charges of counter revolutionary activity would be executed.

The correspondent was told that the government's attitude towards those under arrest had become, if anything, milder and their relatives were permitted to see them by special appointment. It was stated that Chief Rabbi Gluskin and Rabbi Hopelovitch, who were among those arrested, might be released this week.

YOUNG WIFE STABBED TO DEATH.

Margaret Maxwell, colored, 18 years old, was found stabbed to death yesterday in her home at 5747 Prairie avenue. The police started a search for her husband, Louis Maxwell, 35, after neighbors said the couple had been quarreling.

HOLD BALLISTICS EVIDENCE VALID; 3 KILLERS TO DIE

The first case in which the science of ballistics was used to aid the state in the prosecution of a murder case was upheld yesterday by the Supreme court in a decision affirming the death sentences for Laton Fisher, Leonard Shadlow and Leon Brown, colored men, who shot and killed Patrolman Martin French.

Maj. Calvin Goddard, who has introduced the use of ballistics in the criminal court, testified that he was able to tell scientifically that the bullets in French's body were fired by the revolvers found on the defendants when they were arrested several days after the murder and bank robbery.

The reviewing court set April 11 for the time of the electrocution of the men.

Labor Asks Banana Stalk Discipline for Radicals.

One thousand young persons, who classify themselves vaguely as radicals and who have a penchant for a questionable martyrdom in the interests of Soviet Russia, succeeded in getting their heads cracked and their backs whacked by police clubs yesterday after their parade had tied up traffic in the streets surrounding the city hall.

Numerous bruises and a dozen names on the police register, when the more obstreperous of the radicals were arrested, were the only visible effects of the "gigantic demonstration." Government continued to function in its customary manner after the brief diversion provided city and county employés and other loop workers by the clash between the police and the so-called Reds.

Police Give First Warning.

The marchers met their first resistance as they approached the La Salle street entrance of the city hall on their way from the Redhifer hall, 19 North Wells street, where there had been interminable speechmaking earlier in the day. Six patrolmen called on the demonstrators to disperse, pointing out that their activities were interfering with the traffic, which was considered more important than their parade.

In reply the radicals waved their banners bearing the legend "We Want Work and Wages."

"We want wages, too," the policemen replied, and the parade dissolved suddenly as police sticks began to swing. Leaders of the demonstration rallied their wavering forces, however, and the crowd formed again at the Clark street entrance of the city hall. Loop workers stopped in their lunch hour strolls to watch the proceedings, and again traffic became congested.

The Orators Are Hushed.

The radicals announced that they were going to protest to Mayor Thompson about unemployment, but the mayor failed to appear, and the orators began their speeches, anyway. They failed, however, to reach the ears of their adresses. Mounted policemen, detectives, and patrolmen, who had mobilized at Clark and Randolph streets, began moving on the crowd.

Ax clubs waved and occasionally whacked the radicals completed their own rout, galloping down Clark street ahead of the implacable police sticks.

Most of the demonstrators apparently were from 19 to 23 years old, with an intermingling of vagrants and a few who appeared to be workingmen. Some of those who were loudest in the demand for "work and wages" admitted they had positions, but had taken a day off to participate in the demonstration. Most of the marchers, however, seemed to fall into the class of "young smart alecks."

Called Just Another Racket.

The exact purpose of yesterday's march was not made clear to the public, and even in the minds of most of the marchers there seemed to be doubt as to just what it was all about. While it was known that Josef Stalin, Russian soviet dictator, had issued numerous edicts urging a general revolution of workers, not more than a dozen perhaps of the marchers seeme to have any acquaintance either with Stalin or his views.

The general opinion among those familiar with the "Red" movement is it moves in Chicago was that it was just another "radical racket" engineered by professional agitators who derive a comfortable living from organizing demonstrations. These racketeers, it was pointed out, were not visible in the crowd when heads were being tapped with police sticks, having slipped quietly out of the parade when it had attained the desirable size and when it was apparent that it would reach its destination.

Urges Banana Stalk Brigade.

As an infallible remedy for radical ideas and the demonstration thereof, Martin Durkin, vice president of the Building Trades council, suggested that the police lay in an ample supply of banana stalks with which to discipline the Reds in future. He said that the police are inclined to take the communists and their activities too seriously.

"Ninety-five per cent of them are harmless and are being used by some high pressure gentlemen who travel about in apparent luxury and have no visible means of support," he said.

"Chicago's police should have a banana stalk brigade and should use it to spank these soap box orators when they become a nuisance and block traffic in the city. Banana stalks were used with success last summer when the so-called radical outfit attempted to ridicule law and order on Madison street and Ashland avenue. The radicals are not a part of the labor movement and are a destructive element until fully Americanized."

Cooler Weather Forecast Tonight.

Cajoled by the pleasantries of the weather, nature forgot it was February and stirred from winter dormancy yesterday.

Sap rose in the trees, and those hardy harbingers of spring, the crocuses and tulips, poked green sprouts above the soil. There was good reason, for the temperature had soared above 60 degrees for the third consecutive day, attaining between 2 and 3 p. m. a record breaking altitude of 67.

Chicago's forecaster, J. R. Lloyd, predicted for today a continuance of the mild weather. He predicted a minimum temperature of 50 degrees, a continuance of the balmy southwest wind, and a gentle rain in the late afternoon.

Somewhat Cooler Tonight.

A reaction towards normalcy is due tonight, according to the forecast. Mr. Lloyd thought the temperature might drop to 25 degrees before tomorrow morning, but he added that more warm weather is due on Monday. Yesterday's maximum of 67 degrees, a mark not previously recorded on Feb. 21 since the weather bureau began keeping books, was within one point of the highest ever noted in Chicago during February, he said.

While the school yards rang yesterday with the shouts of youngsters at their summertime games of baseball, marbles and jacks, certain optimistic adults hiked to the forest preserves hunting wild flowers. They found no blossoms, but there was a swelling of the joints of lilac twigs which, when broken open, revealed green buds within. Then, too there were pussywillows to be gathered.

Finds Park Tulip Shoots.

Out in Garfield park, August Koch, chief horticulturist of the west parks system, noted that tulip bulbs which were planted too shallowly last fall were pushing green sprouts through the moist soil.

Reports from the wheat fields of the northwest and southwest indicated that the country-wide mild weather had melted all snow coverings and loosened the frozen topsoils. In some sections winter wheat was greening and another few days of thaw would start the wheat sap running, according to H. J. Donovan, grain statistician.

LEAPS IN LAKE; FIGHTS RESCUE.

Patrolman Harry Parker of Whiting yesterday rescued John Lisik, 28 years old, of Gary, who had jumped into Lake Michigan from a pier in Whiting. Lisik refused to be saved and the policeman had to overpower him.

Show Dance Steps

Sixteen girls vied with each other for the lighest steps and the highest kicks and the most graceful twirls yesterday in the first of a series of tryouts which will decide the six to fill vacancies in the Civic Opera ballet.

The contest, held in the Chicago Civic theater, is open to both professional and student dancers. In addition to the six major vacancies, 12 girls will be picked for minor parts.

Laurent Novikoff, director of the Chicago Civic Opera ballet and for years the dancing partner of Pavlowa, is making the selections, with the aid of Mrs. Ina Hagenow, manager of the ballet.

Apparently he was delighted by the first morning's tryout. "American girls are not afraid of the hard work," he said with enthusiasm. "And they are well built and graceful. More than that, they are intelligent. I prefer intelligence often to beauty in my dancers."

2 DENY SIGNING PAPERS FOUND IN MAYWOOD BANK

Attorney Walter P. Murphy, a director and attorney for the People's State Bank of Maywood, and A. A. Alford, who was at one time connected with the Suburban Publishing company, appeared at the office of Assistant State's Attorney Leonard Rice yesterday to deny any knowledge of documents bearing their signatures which were found in the bank when it was closed several weeks ago.

The name of Murphy appears on many of the checks drawn to the credit of the publishing company on the bank, of which Elmer P. Langguth was president and Miss Laverne D. Lindgren cashier. Miss Elsa Gordon, a stenographer at the bank, is said to have told the prosecutors that she had authority to sign Murphy's name. This the attorney denied yesterday.

True bills which were voted Wednesday against Langguth and Miss Lindgren are to be returned in court next Monday.

SPRING ROMANCE LEADS TO CELL FOR 4 ELOPERS

Romance budded with springlike weather for two young couples of Chicago high school students and died yesterday with the chill of the bars of a jail at Springfield, Mo. Although the young elopers took the attitude that iron bars could not cage their love, two irate fathers were on their way to Springfield last night to return them to their homes.

The two fathers are Albert C. Barbaras, 5712 New Hampshire avenue, and Raymond H. Seib, 5345 Montrose avenue, who ordered their children, George Barbaras, 18, and Virginia Seib Barbaras, 17, arrested when they wired home from Springfield yesterday announcing their marriage at Lincoln, Neb., and asking for money. Arrested with George and Virginia are Lorrain Newboth, 18, and Herman Sherman, 19, who ran away with them. All four are students at the Carl Schurz High school.

"It was just spring fever—too much spring weather too early," Virginia's mother said. "They didn't do anything wrong. But we had them arrested when they wired for money. They were California bound. They all got married in Lincoln."

AT 69 WALTER IS ACCUSED AS HOME WRECKER

Walter C. Marrs, a salesman of 1702 North La Salle street, was pictured yesterday in the South State street court as a gay Lothario, who, despite his 69 years, had wrecked the home of Bernard Rozett, 2538 West North avenue, and had stolen Rozett's wife, Zella, 28 years old. Marrs was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct, but the case was continued until next Friday by Judge Immenhausen to permit Dr. Meyer Soloman, city psychiatrist, to examine Marrs.

Rozett told the court that his wife had been living with Marrs since Dec. 17. Mrs. Rozett refused to return to her husband.

JAMES BUTLER REALIZES HOPE OF 66 YEARS

Finds Mother's Grave in Old Home Town.

Sixty-six years ago James Butler was left an orphan and placed in a Chicago institution. The years passed and Butler, grown to manhood, drifted to Kansas and became a farmer near Bird City. There while he worked he cherished the hope that some day he might return to Illinois to visit his mother's grave at Tuscola, about 30 miles south of Champaign.

Yesterday Mr. Butler, now 70 years old, came to the realization of his hope. He arrived in Tuscola and went immediately to the cemetery where his mother was buried. As he talked with Horace Bierfeldt, secretary of the cemetery association, a stranger standing near by eyed him with curiosity. Presently the stranger approached.

Stranger Enters Conversation.

"Pardon me," he said, addressing the Kansan, "are you James Butler?" Butler nodded assent.

"And your father's name was——" The stranger paused.

"Alfred H. Butler of Tuscola," Butler said. "I was born here."

"Well," said his interrogator, "this is a lucky meeting. I have been looking for you for four years. I am John C. Vanek, representing the Charles E. O'Connor company of Chicago. We traced your father through the 1864 census records in Washington, but a record of you seemed to have been lost here in Tuscola after your parents died and you were taken to Chicago."

"What is this all about?" demanded Butler, who seemed slightly bewildered by the sudden flow of information.

He Comes to the Point.

"I'm coming to that," said Vanek. "Four years ago John Butler of Chicago died. He left no will and my company undertook to settle his estate.

"This estate totaled approximately $140,000—$25,000 in cash, $40,000 in bonds, and Cook county real estate valued at $75,000—and I am glad to inform you, Mr. Butler, that you are the heir to the property. Now I want you to go to Chicago with me and we will settle the matter."

They came to Chicago, it was learned, but Butler could not be found last night. Representatives of the O'Connor company were reticent as to his whereabouts and as to further details about the estate. It was intimated that the finding of Butler may lead to the settlement of another and a larger estate, the details of which could not be learned.

FAILURE OF TAFT TO IMPROVE RAPIDLY IS WORRY TO FRIENDS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—(AP)—The day after day failure of William Howard Taft to rally strongly from his serious illness was regarded tonight as causing apprehension among those close to him.

Dr. Francis R. Hagner reported again that the condition of the former chief justice was not much changed. Weakness has been encroaching surely onto his reserve strength.

Mrs. Helen Taft Manning, a daughter, arrived today from Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania. Justice Taft's two sons, Robert A. and Charles P. Taft, were holding themselves in readiness to come from Cincinnati in event of an emergency. Mrs. Taft communicated with them today by telephone.

Shortly after the 73 year old man signed the letter to his former associates on the Supreme court expressing regret that failing health had forced him to resign, he was reported to have ceased showing the improvement which had been encouraging to his friends. Ever since the doctors have said his condition was "unchanged."

FORMER UNION AGENT SHOT 2D TIME IN MONTH

For the second time within a month Michael Manning, 42 years old, was in St. Catherine's hospital at East Chicago, Ind., last night, dangerously wounded by pistol bullets.

Manning, a driver for Borden's Farm Products company, was waiting for a street car near his home at 1914 East 141st street, Indiana Harbor, to ride to work yesterday morning when a shot was fired from a passing curtained car. Wounded in the chest above the heart, Manning crawled home on his hands and knees.

A month ago Manning, at that time business agent of the Indiana Harbor Teamsters' union, was wounded twice in the chest by one of three men who drove past his milk wagon in a car exactly like that from which he was shot yesterday. He spent two weeks in the hospital, and upon his discharge resigned from the union office. Manning told the police his assailants are unknown to him, a statement they were inclined to doubt.

ENDS LIFE IN HIS HOME.

James Young, 60 years old, 538 Circle avenue, Forest Park, was found dead yesterday in the basement of his home, with all of the gas jets on a laundry room stove turned on. Relatives said he had been despondent.

Fred Goetz Divorced by His Former Nurse

Fred W. Goetz, 3944 Pine Grove avenue, wealthy retired brewery machinery manufacturer, was divorced yesterday by Mrs. Loretta Goetz, 7409 Crandon avenue, his former nurse, in the court of Circuit Judge William V. Brothers. The couple were married on Sept. 18, 1920, and separated in April, 1927. They will share the custody of a daughter, Loretta Mae, 8 years old.

Blast and Fire Demolish Downtown Barber Shop

Fire preceded by an explosion last night demolished the interiors of a barber shop and a restaurant occupying a frame building under the Rapid Transit elevated structure at 314-16 South Market street. Jake Bolton, 3716 Lawrence avenue, proprietor of the barber shop and owner of the building, told police he thought the explasion was an accident.

U. S. HOPES TURN TO THREE-POWER NAVAL CUT PACT

See Chance to Win Only Battleship Slash.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The most notable development at the headquarters of the American delegation today was the steadily rising tide of pessimism regarding the outcome of the London naval conference. Among the Hoover administration supporters who have been looking forward to a navy reduction agreement that would be a political "ten strike" for the President, gloom is thick enough to cut with a knife.

Instead of a five power treaty reducing the strength of navies in all categories of ships, the American delegates now think that they will be lucky if they can take home a three power agreement reducing battleship fleets alone, while allowing an actual increase in tonnage to auxiliary ships.

French Upset Hopes.

It is the French who have upset the calculations, hopes and equanimity of the Americans. Just when the Americans thought that the conference was settling down to brass tacks by compromising tonnage claims, the Tardieu ministry blew up and left the conference without any French delegation. As a consequence the conference has been in a state of suspended animation this week, with little promise of its resumption early next week.

As it now appears, the Tardieu government resigned because it was beaten by a small majority on a chamber of deputies roll call, and there is an undercurrent in the other delegations of exasperated criticism of the French government as irresponsible and frivolous. According to tidings from Paris there is likely to be a succession of futile ministries in the next few weeks, making a sustained representation of France at the London conference impossible. This has further increased the pessimism abounding here.

Paris Opposes Reductions.

Even if a responsible French delegation reappears in London there is no assurance of the realization of what the Americans conceive as the object of the conference, namely: the reduction of armaments. The French, who do not want naval disarmament, except as a part of a general land, sea and air disarmament program, and who have no faith in the purpose of this conference and accepted the invitation to London reluctantly and with their fingers crossed, are blocking the way to reduction or even reasonable limitation.

The fact is that the French are sitting on top of the world at the present writing. They know it, and they are getting a lot of satisfaction in knowing that everybody else knows it.

Combine Tenacity and Poor Mouth.

The French have come back with a bound from the slough of despond they were in, or pretended to be in, a few years ago. A combination of tenacity and "poor mouth" in statecraft has put the French on their feet and has left them going strong.

They have repudiated 80 per cent of their internal debt by valorizing the franc at the value of 4 cents. They pleaded poverty until they got their debt to America cut in two, and their devastated regions have been rehabilitated largely with American donations.

They have successfully maneuvered a reparations settlement that is bringing a stream of German gold into the French treasury. They have acquired a gold reserve almost equal to America's, with deposits in New York and London. By the withdrawal of these they could precipitate financial chaos, if not panic.

Win Control of League.

The French have erected a continental hegemony and have captured control of the league of nations. They have begun to refer to the republic and its overseas possessions as the "French empire" and claim that it requires a large navy for protection.

The French delegation submitted to the London conference minimum needs of 724,000 tons of ships by 1936, which is not only no reduction but an actual increase of more than 200,000 tons over the present French serviceable tonnage. France is determined to regain her position as a naval power of the first rank and has the money to build a navy. Without any promising leverage to bring to bear on France, the other powers are at their wits' end for a means to impel France to forego this purpose.

British May Boost Demands.

France thus is the king log of the conference log jam. Unless France comes down from her demand of 100,000 tons of submarines and 10 big cruisers, Great Britain will not consent to be limited to 15 big cruisers and 35 small ones. Unless Great Britain comes down, America will be compelled to embark on a vast building program to attain parity. The Japanese say that they cannot cut their naval strength unless Great Britain and America do so.

Aside from the program to postpone the replacement of capital ships for five years, the London meeting of the powers looks today more like a naval expansion than a naval reduction conference.

LULL IN NAVAL PARLEY GIVES U. S. DELEGATES CHANCE TO PLAY GOLF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Due to the enforced armistice in the battle of diplomats because of the French political situation, the American delegates and their wives are devoting their time to sports and social activities. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson Page intended to spend the whole time until the conference resumes as guests of the Stimsons at Stanmore playing golf most of the time. Warren house will be open to any delegates who care to come Sunday.

Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow and Mrs. Morrow will motor to Oxford tomorrow and from there will go to Clievden where they will be weekend guests of Viscount and Lady Astor, and Capt. Eugene Regnier is going down Monday to play a game of golf with Lady Astor.

Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, Mrs. William V. Pratt, Mrs. Arthur Wilson Page and Rose Rosenberg, Prime Minister MacDonald's private secretary, were guests at a luncheon today given by Miss Sankey, sister of the lord chancellor, in their house in Dean's Yard.

HUMANIZING OF SUBMARINE WAR BAFFLES EXPERTS

Committee Fails to Find Key to Problem.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Juridical experts of the five power naval conference today discussed "without prejudice" the question of humanization of submarine warfare. George Rublee of America, W. Malkin of Great Britain, Count Rene Massigli of France, Sig. Russo of Italy, and Jugi Enomoto of Japan were present. No progress on the problem was reported.

The experts' committee special ships also met, but failed to reach an agreement for a final report. Acute friction has developed in this committee between the French and Italians over the French claim to the right to replace such special ships.

Want Old Ships Classified.

The Italians claim the French have included every old hulk which is useless except for replacement and accuse the French of planning to scrap them and replace them with up to date fighting ships. The Italians demand that all such hulks be included in the category to which they formerly belonged, regardless of their present usefulness.

Much relief is expressed in conference circles that Aristide Briand will return to London to head the French delegation instead of Andre Tardieu. M. Briand with his incomparable experience with conferences and international relations is generally expected to be more tactful and sympathetic with the views of his fellow delegates than M. Tardieu has proved himself.

Japanese Reported Angry.

If M. Briand has a free hand it is suggested that the French trouble will soon be settled and allow the conference to proceed to deal with the Japanese, who are bitter over America's refusal to grant their demand for a 70 per cent ratio of cruisers.

AIRCRAFT SHOW SEES 150,000 GOAL FOR ATTENDANCE

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—The International Aircraft exposition at the Arena building, embodying the largest and most comprehensive display of aerial equipment ever seen under one banner, will end Sunday night. Indications were today that the original attendance goal of 150,000 would be equaled or eclipsed.

With three more days yet to be counted, the aggregate attendance figure was announced as 103,805 today by F. K. Colgiazier, controller. Today's figure was expected to be in the neighborhood of 20,000.

With the announcement today of the sale of $308,000 worth of planes by the American Eagle Aircraft corporation, the sales report of $115,875 by the New Standard Airplane company, and announcement that the Nicholas-Beazley Aircraft corporation had contracted to deliver $144,250 worth of equipment, the total sales mark soared to approximately $1,250,000 for the exposition, and officials expressed the belief the final figure would be near $1,500,000.

Gangsters Granted Delay on Gun Toting Charges

George Barker, business agent of the coal teamsters' union; William (Three Fingered Jack) White, and Barnard O'Donnell, gangsters, who were arrested on charges of carrying guns in the police drive on hoodlums, were granted continuances yesterday in the Criminal court until March 7. They were released on bond.

DELAY ACTION IN FATHER'S FIGHT FOR 4 CHILDREN

The fight of Lewis E. Schwerin, 1054 Sheridan road, to gain custody of four of his five children from his former wife, Mrs. Grace Schwerin Dibrell, now wife of Commander A. G. Dibrell of the United States navy, was continued until March 14 yesterday by Superior Judge Lewis. The children were awarded to the former wife when she won a decree of divorce March 21, 1921.

Last June she married Commander Dibrell and joined him in the Philippines with her daughter, Florence, 17 years old, leaving Raymond, 21; George, 20; Louis Jr., 8, and John, 7, with her mother, Mrs. Emma Senger. The custody of the children, with the exception of Raymond, was given to the mother through a power of attorney which enabled her to collect alimony payments of $85 a month from Schwerin.

Schwerin charged that his former wife neglected the children in turning them over in the alimony collection arrangement. The judge censured Mrs. Dibrell for the action. Mrs. Dibrell asked that her former husband be cited for contempt of court for failure to meet the alimony payments.

Chicago-Rockford-Madison Air Mail Starts March 8

A new direct air mail service linking Chicago with Elgin, Rockford, Janesville, and Madison will be opened on March 8 over the new Rock river division, postoffice department officials announced at Washington, D. C., yesterday. Northwest Airways has been given the contract to fly mail over the new route.

FRANCE'S LATEST PREMIER TO BACK BIG NAVY STAND

Chautemps Will Face Deputies Tuesday.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 21.—Anxious to show himself just as ardent a champion of French naval ambition as André Tardieu, Premier Camille Chautemps announced after he had formed his government of pure radicals tonight that he would go to London Wednesday with Foreign Minister Aristide Briand and his new minister of the navy, Albert Sarraut, after receiving a confidence vote from the chamber on Tuesday.

He had to take for granted, of course, that the new government will receive the approbation of the deputies when it makes its bow.

However, there is little money on the Chautemps combination surviving this introduction to the French parliament. This is the eighty-third cabinet to govern France since the third republic was set up in 1870.

Presents Cabinet to Doumergue.

Bad though the omens are, Premier Chautemps with good grace got together a fine, upstanding collection of left politicians, and presented them to President Doumergue at Elysée palace. And, curiously enough, the myriad chiefs and subchiefs of the left who make political life exciting and perilous in France struggled to get aboard just as if the craft was seaworthy.

Jacques Louis Dumesnil, reporter of the naval budget in the chamber, who thought he was destined to be the champion in the renascence of the French navy in London, was furious when Premier Chautemps called M. Sarraut to take the ministry of marine.

M. Sarraut had charge of the French delegation in Washington in 1922 after M. Briand and M. Viviani left for the Cannes conference, and it was he, acting on the government's instructions, who refused to accept the extension of 1.75 ratio in lighter classes of warships. He is an intimate friend of M. Tardieu and will undoubtedly back his memorandum to the limit.

The chances that the Chautemps ministry will last a few weeks, long enough to put through the budget, relieving M. Tardieu of that chore when he comes back to power, were dashed this morning when the Republicans of the left, on whose support the new premier counted, informed him they would prefer to await the return of M. Tardieu. Thus cramped on his right Premier Chautemps at the moment seems to command only 275 votes, counting the platonic support of the Socialists, which is even less than that minority which stood by M. Tardieu in Monday's defeat, 281.

When Edouard Herriot, former premier, heard the lineup of the Chautemps government he shrugged his shoulders and laughed. He and other important radicals like Louis Jean Malvy, feel able to resist the lure of a portfolio for a few hours.

Premier Chautemps' idea of going ahead in the face of certain defeat seems merely to be to show his party that when ordered by it to constitute a ministry he can do it. If M. Tardieu persists in claiming the need of a three weeks' rest, it is predicted that M. Briand or some one else will form a transition ministry in the event Premier Chautemps falls next week.

HELD AS BIGAMIST, HE'S SURE HEIRESS BRIDE WILL RETURN

George Howell, 26 years old, was arraigned yesterday before Judge William E. Helander of the Felony court because he neglected to divorce one heiress before marrying another. He remained in the county jail last night on a charge of bigamy after he had failed to give bonds of $5,000.

Miss Marjorie Heisenbuttel, 21 year old New York heiress, who thought she was Mrs. George Howell until his arrest Thursday fled to New York, it was said, without appearing in court. She recently inherited $670,000 from her grandmother. With her was her mother, Mrs. Max Strauss, 450 Park avenue, New York.

Howell, a former lifeguard, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howell, formerly of Glencoe, and prominent in north shore society, appeared unalarmed over his marital difficulties. "Marjorie knew I was married when she married me and she'll be back," he said. "Girls don't leave me that easily."

The case was continued until March 7. If at that time Miss Heisenbuttel does not testify against him the state will agree to nol pros the case, Assistant State's Attorney Frank Mast said.

Alex Kahnweiler, insurance broker with offices at 120 South La Salle street, father of Artelia Kahnweiler Howell, whom Howell married on Dec. 1, 1928, was the complaining witness.

Slug Girl at Ice Box; Rob Her of $1,750 Gems

Miss Vivian Johnson, 24 years old, 3124 Franklin boulevard, was struck on the head and robbed of two rings valued at $1,750 by a bandit who waylaid her on the rear porch of the home of her fiancé, Warthen Hobbs, at 3136 Franklin boulevard, late last night. Miss Johnson was placing food in an ice box on the porch after a late supper at the Hobbs home when the robber struck her with a milk bottle, stripped the rings from her fingers, and fled. She was not seriously injured.

MRS. BRANDON JEERS AT HER 'SAINT'S' TEETH

Concludes Crimson Love Story Tearfully.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Frances Marion Brandon, the tri-angle lady, bowed her head among her scarlet letter diaries this after-noon and sobbed. She was tired, and, right with a "holy man" had ended. She was crying because her head ached and her hat was too tight and because a lot of things had gone wrong.

Today the witness stand in Su-preme Court Justice Louis Valente's courtroom will be occupied by minor witnesses, and then George J. Gilles-pie, president of the water works board, trustee of St. Patrick's cathe-dral, and Mrs. Brandon's "friend from heaven," will give the jury his account of those 55 restless evenings.

She Calls Him "Saint George."

The triangle woman had a hard day on her fifth and last day on the witness stand in her suit for $574,165 damages for breach of promise and trust. Theodore Kiendl, attorney for Mr. Gillespie, just would not let her say things the way she wanted to say them.

Nevertheless, she succeeded in cast-ing Gillespie in a new role—that of Saint George. A number of years ago there was a Saint George who got the best of a journeyman dragon and be-came the patron saint of England. Maybe Mrs. Brandon was, and maybe she was not, referring to that Saint George.

"You want to know what I called him. Well, it wasn't Mr. Gillespie. I called him Saint George—S-A-I-N-T George."

Mrs. Brandon stood up, snatched her hat from her head, grabbed a red rose and looked into it. Then she flung it aside and reached for her hand bag. From somewhere near the bottom she dug up a red card. Next she jerked a chain and locket from her throat and suspended it over the card.

Judge Is Not Interested.

"I'll show you something," she cried.

"Put those things up!" admonished Judge Valente. "Put them away!"

"I will for the time being," agreed Mrs. Brandon.

Gillespie appeared interested. The locket suspended over the cardboard probably held some significance to him. The witness was not permitted to explain what she meant.

Mrs. Brandon was questioned con-cerning the anniversary night of her first intimacy with Gillespie.

"The next year you expected Mr. Gillespie at your apartment to cele-brate the occasion, did you not?" asked the lawyer.

Not to Celebrate, but to Mourn.

"No, not to celebrate," she replied. "I expected him that night to mourn the event."

"Did you show the red triangles to Mr. Gillespie on that night?"

"You showed him the red triangles and the scarlet letters?"

"Yes, I showed them to him. And now I know that while I kept only my scarlet diary, Gillespie kept all the scraps and letters."

Mr. Kiendl took Mrs. Brandon through the renunciation scene with Gillespie—the night she says he threat-ened her.

"He glared at me like a madman when I threatened to expose him, and roared, 'I'll bump you off. I'll have you jobbed.'"

Mr. Gillespie's Teeth Discussed.

"Was that the night he called you a 'damn she'?"

"O, no, he didn't call me a 'damn she'" smiled the witness. "That is a mistake the newspapers made. He called me a 'damn Sheenie.' He raged when he called me those names, and I burst out laughing, because all of his front teeth were missing."

"Now, Mrs. Brandon," said the law-yer, "Mr. Gillespie has only two front teeth missing."

The witness stood up and pointed her finger at Gillespie, who kept his head bowed.

"Now let us get this settled once and for all," shouted Mrs. Brandon. "Let's have the proof. If he hasn't all of those upper front teeth missing, then he is not the right man and you know it."

Nothing, however, was done about it. Mr. Kiendl, apparently satisfied about his client's false teeth, turned the subject to matrimony.

His Proposal Accepted.

"Was Nov. 15, 1924, a normal day in your life?" he asked.

"Yes," responded the witness. "I was not threatened with death."

"Mr. Gillespie proposed marriage on that day?"

"Yes, certainly."

"You accepted?"

"Yes, certainly."

"In what manner"

"By telling him I would."

The great desire of Mrs. Brandon to be a mother was discussed at great length by lawyers for both sides and the woman. The discussion came just before the session ended and after Mrs. Brandon had sobbed that she had been put through "the third degree for days and days and days."

Judge Takes a Hand.

During the latter part of the cross-examination a great deal of trouble was encountered by Mr. Kiendl in ob-taining "yes and no" answers from Mrs. Brandon. He usually got an answer with some reference to "that holy man" that "sneaking saint." Finally he appealed to the court and suggested contempt.

"I'll take a hand in this," replied Justice Valente. "Now, Mrs. Bran-don, where it is possible to answer yes or no to these questions you must do so."

"But I can't answer them. He is putting words in my mouth," snapped the witness.

Mr. Kiendl then began questioning Mrs. Brandon about her law practice and real estate deals in which she and Gillespie were interested. This proved safe ground for a while, but Mrs. Brandon soon grew weary of figures and either refused to answer at all or answered with some dig at her arch foe, the "holy man."

FATHER SURRENDERS AFTER SHOOTING

Loses Suit Against Uncle.

A jury before Circuit Judge Klar-kowski yesterday returned a verdict for Max Marces of Harvey in a $10,-000 damage suit brought against him by his nephew, Harold Strauss, 6 years old, 3226 Cortez street, through his father, David Strauss. The suit asked damages for cuts the boy re-ceived on June 26, 1927, when he was thrown through the windshield of his uncle's car as Marces drove into a parked car at Milwaukee ave-nue and Roscoe street.

GASOLINE BLAST FATAL.

Eli Collier, colored, 23 years old, 4733 St. Lawrence avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital of burns received on Tues-day when a can of gasoline exploded in the kitchen of a restaurant at 3148 Roosevelt road.

U. S. Being Sunk to Make European Holiday, Lewis Says

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

America is the victim of "jugglery and legerdemain" in the London naval conference in the opinion of James Hamilton Lewis, ex-senator and candi-date for the Democratic nomination. He declares the United States dele-gates are surrendering American rights essential to self-defense, while engrossed in watching the sleight of hand artists of foreign lands lift rab-bits out of the silk hat.

Mr. Lewis, who was whip of the senate during the Wilson administra-tion, maintains that the results to date indicate America is being "trapped into the design of another inter-national war—as we were in the Washington conference and Versailles peace treaty."

Entangled in Rivalries.

He says America should withdraw from the London conference before getting further "entangled in rivalries between foreign nations" that may threaten peace. Mr. Lewis is to ad-dress the state bar of Texas today at El Paso and before departing he gave his views on the London meeting.

"It is pitiable news," said Mr. Lewis, "to read that the United States has been flouted at every point where it has pressed a contention of America at the naval disarmament convention in London.

"How humiliating it must be to the American to see his country pulled into a conference room and forced to vote France more submarines to shoot up Italy if it assumes to carry out the threat of Mussolini to retake its old territory of Nice, Monte Carlo, and that part of the Riviera on the Medi-terranean which Napoleon won from Italy.

"And how annoying that we are forced to vote with Italy for a form of ship with which she could war against France or England should either attempt to take Italian interests in Tripoli. All this, mind you, being directly opposed to the position Amer-ica had professed when she entered this convention.

Millions for Nothing.

"How annoying, too, to the Amer-ican mind which only asks for self-defense that we surrender the policy essential to our welfare to adopt the policy of the British possessions, which they say is necessary to them from their standpoint, yet puts a burden of more than $70,000,000 upon America to carry out—and then leaves us with nothing as the result of the payment.

"Then, with our Philippines and Alaska to defend, we vote to adopt a form of naval vessels, useful to European countries in conflicts for Mediterranean possessions, but utterly useless to America in protecting our possessions.

"Keep in mind that, though we have taken all of these positions for na-tions against nations of Europe and Asia in behalf of England, France and Italy of Europe and Japan and China in Asia, yet not one of these people has voted any one thing which is to our distinct and admitted advantage.

"It is hard to understand why our statesmen are unable to remember they went through this same sort of jugglery in the Washington confer-ence a few years ago. Our represent-atives then voted the 5-5-3 pact and gave to Japan the control of the Pa-cific, which put her in possession of naval bases commanding the Mar-shall islands, Guam, and the Philip-pines, and then gave to the naval nations of Europe bulk and weight of navy against the United States as it took from the United States the essen-tial weight and quality for our de-fense.

Recalls World War Plight.

"I have a keen feeling on this ques-tion. I served as vice chairman and chairman of the sub naval committee of the senate and saw us brought to the situation we were in during the world war when it will be remem-bered we were compelled to use the vessels of other lands to get our men to the seat of war.

"This was because all the appeals of Taft or Roosevelt had been ineff-fective to strengthen the navy which had begun its great revival under Grover Cleveland and which Roosevelt tried to carry on under the cry, 'Speak softly, but carry a big stick.'

"Our statesmen forget the Geneva and the Genoa conferences. In the latter I was present and was compelled again to witness how America, in her efforts to antagonize no one and in her willingness to yield to every one, was tricked again because of her too con-fiding nature.

"The United States cannot allow foreign lands to veto any necessary course which the policy of America exacts for peace to mankind or for national defense.

"We should beware of European dictation. We should never create a situation by our own voice and action that gives the privilege to a people with whom we have no political con-cern, to dictate the destinies of America.

"The entrance of the United States into this affair at London as now set forth is an error for which we may pay in the loss of world friendships. We should withdraw before danger arises."

Byfield Still Unconscious 78 Hours After Accident

The condition of Eugene Byfield, vice president of the Hotel Sherman company, who has been unconscious from concussion of the brain since his polo pony threw him at the Chicago Riding club last Tuesday evening, re-mained unchanged last night. He has been unconscious for over 78 hours.

John Hardy, colored, 32 years old, 2974 Vernon avenue, was shot dead yesterday by Addison White, colored, 3121 South Park way, a waiter in a restaurant at 3041 Cot-tage Grove avenue, after he had attacked White with a knife during a quarrel over the amount of a dinner check.

BRUNDAGE WILL DECIDE TODAY ON RACE FOR SENATE

With only a few hours to go—the time for withdrawal of petitions ex-pires at midnight tonight—former At-torney General Brundage said yester-day he had not reached a decision whether to run for the United States senatorship.

"Friends in addition to those who filed the petition in my name," he said, "have been urging me con-stantly all week to remain in the race. Among other things, they in-sist that Illinois be given a square toed chance to express itself as to prohibition. I am to see a number of these people tomorrow morning and then will make my decision."

Mrs. Bertha Baur, Republican na-tional committeewoman, whose peti-tion for congressman-at-large also was filed without her knowledge, said she would announce her decision today.

MELLON FIGHTS TO KEEP POISON IN U. S. ALCOHOL

Appeals for Defeat of Sirovich Bill.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Legislation to compel the government to stop poisoning industrial alcohol and to protect the drinking public by the use of detectable denaturants today met with the stern disapproval of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon.

In a letter responding to a request from Chairman Willis C. Hawley of the house ways and means committee for his views on the Sirovich anti-poisoning bill, Secretary Mellon declared that he emphatically opposed any measure that would prevent his department from "exercising its discretion in selecting suitable but proper denaturants."

A similar position has been taken by Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran, whose recommendation Mr. Mellon followed.

Causes Hundreds of Deaths.

Representative W. I. Sirovich [Dem., N. Y.], author of the bill, explained that he introduced it because of hundreds of deaths and cases of blindness caused by the drinking of poisonous government alcohol.

"You are advised that it is the opinion of the department that the provisions of this bill are impracticable and that the proposed legislation is unnecessary," Secretary Mellon wrote. "Such legislation would prevent the department from exercising its discretion in selecting suitable and proper denaturants, and would prevent the proper administration of the various acts authorizing tax free alcohol.

"It is noticed further that the bill does not define nontoxic or nonpoisonous products. Consequently, every denaturant selected by the bureau of prohibition, if the bill becomes law, might be the subject of controversy or litigation.

Sees Cosmetic Trade Ruined.

"Referring to the part of the bill which provides that all denatured alcohol might contain traces of certain enumerated compounds, you are informed that there are thousands of preparations and scores of processes requiring denatured alcohol which could not use alcohol denatured with the compounds enumerated.

"If this bill became law the result would be that hundreds of permittees now manufacturing legitimate products from denatured alcohol would not be able to secure denatured alcohol suitable for their products.

"For example, the cosmetic trade would be practically destroyed, since it is obvious that that industry cannot use alcohol denatured with the odorous and disagreeable products required in the proposed bill. Moreover, the denaturants proposed would not protect alcohol from diversion.

Sizzling Wet-Dry Debate.

With the house judiciary committee prohibition hearings adjourned until next Wednesday, the sizzling wet and dry controversy temporarily quieted down on Capitol hill today. The lull in the house, however, was shattered for a few minutes by a speech by Representative James M. Mead [Dem., N. Y.], advocating a study by the Wickersham law enforcement commission of the Canadian plan of liquor control.

Representative Mead, who comes from Buffalo, N. Y., just across the Canadian border, reviewed the history of liquor control in Canada, stressing the point that each of the nine provinces tried the experiments of bone dry prohibition and local option and that all but one have discarded them in favor of government control systems.

Purchase Liquor Legally.

The cycle of public opinion on the liquor question in Canada, he said, duplicates that in the United States which has rebelled against prohibition, but unlike the Canadian provinces, tied its hands by amending the constitution.

"The Prince Edward island," he declared, "is the only remaining province in Canada where a citizen may not openly purchase alcoholic beverages, and from latest reports as to conditions there it is about ready to depart from its present dry company, namely, the United States and Finland, and join with its neighbor provinces in Canada by adopting a system of government control."

Ragusa-Dubrovnik is now a part of the kingdom of Jugo-Slavia as a result of the great war. The Slavs had a large share in the founding of this picturesque Adriatic city nearly thirteen centuries ago and their annexation by Belgrade was much in the nature of a homecoming.

The city has been an important fortified port during most of its existence and it is still surrounded by massive

3 YOUTHS DIE AFTER DRINKING RADIATOR "RUM"

Lyons, Neb., Feb. 21.—Special.]—Three men are dead here tonight and two others are in critical condition as a result of drinking from a stolen jug that contained not the wine they thought but a poisonous automobile radiator solution. The dead are Lawrence Kohlmeier, 23; Nelson Jarvis, 27, and Leon Jarvis, 18. Those near death are Reuben Roberg, 23, and Hollis Cleveland, 18.

As the story developed late today at a coroner's inquest in the Kohlmeier death, some of the victims Thursday night had entered the basement of Ed Snethen, Burlington agent, and taken the jug, in which Snethen was keeping a supply of radiator solution. They poured part of the contents of the two gallon jug into bottles and then went to a dance. At the dance they passed the bottles around and several drank.

Report True Bill Voted Against Wife for Killing

Mrs. Florence Leeney was reported named in a murder true bill voted by the grand jury yesterday. She is charged with having shot and killed her husband, Maurice Leeney, 5336 Drexel avenue, a trucking contractor, on Jan. 9. Mrs. Leeney admitted the shooting and said it was over the alleged relationship of her husband with another woman.

DRY TRICKS GIRLS INTO BUYING RUM TO JAIL SELLER

Maine Judge Denounces Practice of U. S. Spies.

Portland, Me., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Use of girls as decoys by federal dry agents was denounced today by Superior Judge Sidney St. Felix Thaxter in his charge to the jury in the trial of Leonard L. Johnson of Sanford, bowling alley proprietor on trial for selling liquor.

To obtain the evidence against Johnson, a dry spy, Alfred Lizotte, former bootlegger, posing as a college man, made friends with Alice Octean and Medora Bergeron, shoe workers. He induced the girls to locate the liquor, then "threw a party" in which much of the evidence was consumed.

Lizotte told newspaper men that his brother was killed by dry agents while running rum from Canada into Maine and another brother was shot. He said he had been a dry agent for two years, but previously was the "bootleg king" in Aroostook county. Lizotte has served two sentences, one for 15 months and another for 10 months.

Seth May, federal prohibition director, denied he knew Lizotte got the girls to buy liquor. He said such a practice would not be tolerated. May declined to comment on the use of a former bootlegger as a dry spy.

Jail Two Women in Raids.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Flavoring extracts such as juniper and blackberry seem to constitute an offense against the prohibition laws, as defined by police and federal prohibition agents here.

The home of Mrs. H. Kohl was raided by dry squads early today. No liquor was found, but she was charged with maintaining a liquor nuisance for having the flavoring extracts.

Mrs. Euelma Shomler's home was raided last night and, although only one ounce of alcohol was found, yet she was required to furnish $1,000 give bond.

Abandon Rum Ship in Gale.

New York, Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Somewhere in the gulf stream between Cape Hatteras and New York is a derelict 37 foot motor yacht carrying a cargo of liquor valued at $25,000. The boat, the Aensis of Nasau, the Bahamas, was abandoned Thursday by John Siversen, 40, who was rescued off Cape Hatteras and taken aboard the Mallory steamer H. R. Mallory by Capt. E. D. Johnson.

The Mallory brought Siverson into New York today. He said he and two Negroes were taking the consignment of liquor to Bimini island in the Bahamas, and that it was legal cargo.

The engine broke down and the boat drifted for three days, while the gulf stream carried her northward. On the third day the Gulf Crest, a freighter bound for New York, hailed the helpless motor yacht and Siversen allowed the two Negroes to go aboard. He elected to remain with his cargo.

When he was hailed by the H. R. Mallory, Capt. Johnson told him that a northwesterly gale was due. Siversen knew he could not keep the Aensis afloat in a gale and abandoned it and the 350 cases of liquor.

Fail to Indict Dry Gunman.

Knoxville, Ia., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Possibility that Charles Hindley, federal prohibition agent, would be prosecuted in Marion county for shooting and wounding Miss Nellie Church two weeks ago was apparently eliminated today when the grand jury returned a "no bill" report after completing its investigation.

The jury returned its report after calling several principals in the shooting for a second appearance, including Miss Church, who was wounded in the back of the head the night of Feb. 8, when Hindley fired a revolver shot through the rear of an automobile in which she was riding.

There still is pending the federal prohibition department's investigation into the case. Hindley and Moon have been suspended without pay.

Dry Gets Year as Bootlegger.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 21.—(AP)—One year's penal servitude in the naval prison at Portsmouth, N. H., with dishonorable discharge from the coast guard at the conclusion of his term, was the sentence meted out today to Frank Eepore, gunner's mate. He was tried last week by a general coast guard court on a charge of bootlegging liquor to his shipmates aboard the cutter Mojave.

Whole Bootleg Family Jailed.

Boydton, Va., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Four members of one family, W. J. Smith, Burton Smith, 24, and Ferrell Smith, 16, his sons, and R. L. Smith, his brother, all of Mecklenburg county, were convicted in the Circuit court here today of manufacturing spirits, following the capture of a still Dec. 29, when two officers were shot. Each of the four pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three years.

OVERHOLT DISTILLERY RESUMES MAKING OF WHISKY AFTER 14 YRS.

Connellsville, Pa., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Shades of pre-prohibition days have settled around old Bradford distillery near this city. Men, long experienced in making whisky, have resumed their positions at the Overholt plant.

The fifty skilled laborers recalled to their old jobs went about with an air of satisfaction. Happiest of these was Charles Gray, general superintendent of the distillery, who had charge of making Overholt whiskies for many years before the plant was closed in 1918.

"All of the men holding responsible positions when work was suspended 14 years ago are back on their job," Gray said. "Each of these men knows his particular work in the making of Overholt whisky and that is why we wanted them back." The federal permit issued the company authorizes the making of 250,000 gallons of whisky for medicinal purposes.

MABEL WHISPERS "GUILTY"; FINED $10 FOR SPEEDING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt paid a ten dollar fine in the Washington police court today after pleading guilty to a speeding charge.

Washington's Traffic court has never been noted for its speed, but today Judge Given was on the bench promptly at 9:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Willebrandt walked quietly to the defendant's chair as son as the judge took his place.

The defendant nodded.

"How do you plead to this charge of speeding?" came another whisper.

"Guilty," was the reply.

Mrs. Willebrandt was hurried from the courtroom to the chambers of another judge to avoid photographers.

IOWA GROCERS INDICTED BY U. S. FOR LIQUOR PLOT

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 21.—(AP)—The United States attorney's office here announced yesterday that the Hubinger Bros. company of Keokuk, Ia., grocers, had been indicted for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, chiefly for its activity in soliciting business of central Illinois bootleggers.

Forty names of these bootleggers, most of them unpronouncable, were made public. It is charged that three of them formed the "Capitol Products company" here and did business with the Hubinger company, acting as a distribution center.

Sugar and yeast are the two commodities purchased by the firm of bootleggers, the indictment charges.

Seventeen overt acts are charged, including violation of the liquor laws in apartments, flats, sheds, barns, garages, boats, restaurants, saloons, soft drink parlors, hotels, barrooms, and distilleries.

"MAN IN GREEN HAT" IS HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—George L. Cassidy, better known as "the man in the green hat," today was held to the grand jury by Judge John P. McMahon of the Washington police court.

Prohibition agents, who had been trailing Cassidy since his arrest near the senate office building two months ago, nabbed him a second time in the rear of the building Tuesday. They testified that he alighted from his car, carrying four quarts of hooch, and was hastening toward the senatorial quarters when caught.

Cassidy and his attorney insisted that the case is a frameup.

It has begun to look like a thirsty time for the scofflaws among America's statesmen. Only yesterday David William Goldberg, another well known vendor, was nabbed while carrying a bulky package of stimulants into the senate office building.

LIQUOR SEARCH MADE EASIER BY HOOSIER JUDGE

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Indianapolis police were informed today by Thomas Garvin, one of the four Municipal court judges, that hereafter they will not be required to swear to personal knowledge of liquor law violation before obtaining a search warrant from his court. All that he will require will be a formal statement by police that in their belief liquor is kept illegally on the premises in question.

"Former regulations merely made snoopers and peepers of police," Judge Garvin explained. "This is not conducive to proper enforcement. Please realize that the courts are now cooperating with the police and both are expected to do their duty."

SEVEN ARE HELD AS SUSPECTS IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Forest Glen Vigilantes Ready for Duty.

While the police last night were holding seven men suspected of the killing of Mrs. Agnes Lavander, 5451 Lillian avenue, who was shot to death on Monday night, nine Forest Glen business men were completing their organization of a vigilantes' association and were preparing to take up their duties as special sheriffs to police the Forest Glen district.

The nine men, all members of the Forest Glen Progressive Men's club, conferred with Sheriff Traeger yesterday and were given permission to act as deputies. They will be sworn in as soon as they have provided the bonds required of all deputies. Arrangements to police the neighborhood of the Forest Glen station of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, near which Mrs. Lavander was slain, were discussed at a meeting at the home of Claude C. Kenney, 5809 Balmoral avenue, who is president of the men's club.

Fails to Identify Suspect.

Among the three suspects taken into custody yesterday was one whom the police at first believed might have been the actual killer. Later, however, Miss Ruth Farriner, who said she saw the slayer on the station platform the night of the murder, viewed the suspect and was unable to identify him.

The man is Henry Hines, 40 years old, 666 North Mozart avenue, a laborer. He is the only one of the suspects to have a criminal record, and resembles the description of the slayer. He was three times arrested on rape and assault charges, and served one sentence of six months for assault with a deadly weapon in 1917. In 1918 he forfeited his bonds on a rape charge and the charges were later dismissed, to be reinstated in 1920, when he was sentenced to one year in the Bridewell. In 1921 he was sentenced to 90 days for contributing to the delinquency of a minor, and in July, 1927, he was arraigned on a charge of assault with intent to rape, but no disposition was made of the last case.

Picked Up Near Home.

M Tarkowski, 21 years old, 5207 Lotian avenue, was arrested at the funeral services for Mrs. Lavandar at St. Cornelia's church, at Lieb, Lynch, and Long avenues, yesterday afternoon. Policemen, noticing that he acted suspiciously, placed him under arrest for questioning. He said that he attended the funeral services merely out of curiosity. A second man was taken into custody, but was released immediately, the police finding that he was a respectable business man and refusing to reveal his identity.

Another Suspect Is Held.

William Gluckner, 26 years old, 1020 Lathrop avenue, Forest Park, who was arested early yesterday at Root street and Union avenue, was still being held, but the police were convinced that he had no connection with the case despite his story that he had "bummed" a dime from Mrs. Lavandar on the night of the murder.

Maj. Calvin Goddard, ballistics expert at the Northwestern university police school, completed an examination of the bullet which killed Mrs. Lavandar yesterday, and announced that it was an old cartridge, which apparently had been lying in a drawer for eight years or more.

CAUSES STIR

MRS. MARK K. WERKMAN.

Mrs. Mary K. Werkman, 28 years old, 2629 North Spaulding avenue, a teacher in the Carl Schurz High school, was safe in Cedar Rapids, Ia., early this morning after her disappearance here had started the police on a search in the fear that she had met with an accident.

Mrs. Werkman was to have met her husband, John D. Werkman, promotion manager for the Central Y. M. C. A. schools, and her mother, Mrs. J. J. Reichelderfer, last evening at the Chicago and North Western station, where they were to take a train to Cedar Rapids. When she failed to appear they notified the police.

Shortly after midnight, however, word came that Mrs. Werkman was with her husband's parents at Cedar Rapids. She said she had entered the train shed through another gate than the one at which her husband and mother were waiting, expecting to find them aboard the train.

DEMANDS CANADA PUSH PACT WITH U. S. FOR SEAWAY

Will Ask Commons' Vote on Proposal.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Immediate action on the proposal for a St. Lawrence waterway development treaty between Canada and the United States is urged in a resolution prepared by T. L. Church, Conservative, of Toronto, for introduction in the house of commons.

The resolution advocates that "immediate action should be taken, without further unnecessary delays, to enter into a treaty with the government of the United States for the immediate development and generation of water power on the St. Lawrence river, and its deepening and development in the interests of navigation, and that a great St. Lawrence waterway is an immediate and economic necessity for the welfare and best interests of Canada."

Mr. Church recommends in the proposal that the government undertake the construction and operation of the waterway as "a public undertaking itself and the power incident herein should be developed and generated at cost by the government for the people and under public ownership and not alienated to private interests for gain or exported for use outside of Canada."

A resolution asking an export duty on pulpwood has been drafted by George Parent, Liberal, of Quebec.

Mr. Parent said "the time has come for Canada to impose an embargo or exportation duty on pulpwood coupled with such legislation if necessary as would assure settlers a fair remuneration for the wood taken for their lands."

Assassins Kill Lawyer for Enemies of Yrigoyen

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 21.—A dispatch from the city of San Juan states that former Judge Manuel Ignacio Castellanos was assassinated in his home by unknown persons who fired three shots through a window. Señor Castellanos was the lawyer engaged to defend the prominent men recently arrested as anti-Yrigoyenists, including Carlos Porto, candidate for the national chamber of deputies.

Thuringia Schools to Pray for Peace Pact Annulment

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—Dr. Frick, new minister of education in the province of Thuringia, today issued an order for daily prayers in Thuringian public schools for the annulment of the treaty of Versailles.

SENATE VOTES MORE INCREASES IN DUTIES ON FARM PRODUCTS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—(AP)—In a spirit of compromise and with only slight opposition the senate today disposed of individual amendments to the agriculture, spirits, cotton, and flax schedules and thereby completed action on two-thirds of the fifteen rate sections of the tariff bill.

Seven more increases in farm duties were put through today, with principal opposition being voiced against an amendment by Senator R. B. Howell [Rep., Neb.] to double the existing 18 cents a pound rate on dried eggs. This was approved after Senators Millard E. Tydings [Md., Dem.] and Royal S. Copeland [N. Y., Dem.] argued the 36 cent rate would raise the cost of bakery products.

Frozen eggs also were assigned a higher levy, 11 cents a pound, as compered with 8 cents in the bill and 6 cents at present.

Other farm rate advances were on celery, lettuce, cabbage, and alfalfa and red clover seed.

Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.] lost in an attempt to restore the existing levy of 50 cents a hundred pounds on white potatoes and the 75 cent rate was retained in the bill.

The bill rate of 2 cents a pound on cordage of manila, sisal, and other hard fibers was approved after Senator John J. Blaine [Rep., Wis.] lost a proposal to cut it.

EXPECT ARREST TODAY OF GIRL "STRIP BANDIT"

A girl bandit and her man accomplice, who specialize in stripping the trousers from taxi chauffeurs after robbing them, may be in custody today, it was declared last night by Lieut. William Lang of the Summerdale police. Lieut. Lang began a fresh search for the "strip" bandits after obtaining their supposed identities from Lois Cohen, 18 years old, and Francis Hoffman, 27 years old, 4700 North Racine avenue, who are held after Hoffman's admission that he has robbed more than 40 oil filling stations.

"I thought this couple we've got must be those 'strip' bandits, but several chauffeurs who lost their trousers have looked at them and can't identify them," said Lieut. Lang. "But Miss Cohen and Hoffman gave us the names of a girl and a man who they say are the 'strip' bandits, and we hope to pick them up with little trouble."

Imprison Negro "Back to Africa" Leader for Libel

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Marcus Garvey, Negro "back to Africa" leader, today was sentenced to six months imprisonment for publishing a seditious libel against the British government in his newspaper, the Black Man.

GULF WATERWAY IS FIRST GOAL, DENEEN AVERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Completion of the final links in the lakes to the gulf waterway is the most important objective on the program of the Illinois delegation in congress, Senator Charles S. Deneen [Rep., Ill.] told a delegation from the Illinois Manufacturers' association today.

The Illinois senator, together with a number of officials of the department of commerce, spoke before the 45 members of the association who are now in Washington on a trade extension trip. Methods of developing export business in the central states as well as domestic commerce were the principal topics of discussion.

Progress Being Made.

"The Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic ocean are being moved closer and closer to the export shippers of Chicago and the central states," Senator Deneen said. "The Illinois delegation is working as a unit to develop the nine foot waterway connecting Lake Michigan with deep water in the Mississippi and we are making progress."

Senator Deneen devoted most of his time to outlining governmental activities conducted with the object of helping "every American producer—the farmer, the manufacturer, the miner and the fisherman."

Department of commerce experts told the Illinois manufacturers that, while production costs have been reduced in recent years, the costs of distribution have been increasing.

New Census Work Explained.

"One of the reasons why the nation has not made progress in increasing the efficiency of distribution is due to the fact that there has been relatively little comprehensive information about the movement of commodities from the producer to the consumer," R. J. McFall, chief statistician for distribution, of the bureau of the census, stated.

"At the urgent request of business interests that the whole national field of distribution be covered, the bureau of the census is now preparing for a national census of distribution, which, it is hoped, will make available information of a character to increase the efficiencies of the processes of wholesaling and retailing," Mr. McFall added.

President Hoover today recommended that congress make 12 million dollars available at once for maintenance and improvement of river and harbor works. Much of the work proposed would be in the great lakes region.

CHINA APPOINTS LEADERS TO END REBEL MENACE

Radical Slain in French Quarter of Shanghai.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 21.—The Chinese political question advanced another step in the direction of actual warfare against the rebels in Shansi today as the result of a number of preliminary military moves following a military conference in Nanking this morning.

President Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nationalist government, announced the appointment of Gen. Ho Ying-chin as chief commander of the Hankow district, and Gen. Liu-chin as chief commander of the district made up of northern Kiangsi, Anhwei and eastern Honan, while President Chiang is holding himself in readiness to proceed to the front immediately.

Rebel Appointee Quits.

Chu Shou-kuang, acting minister of war at Nanking and an appointee of the northern rebel leader Yen Hsi-shan, resigned today while President Chiang, who had asked all the leading military commanders to come to Nanking for a conference, suddenly canceled the orders, telling the officers to remain at their posts.

The radical wing of the Kuomintang entered the game today with a proclamation circulated in Shanghai denouncing the Nationalist government for the alleged assassination of Wang Loh-ping, a member of the left wing of the Kuomintang, who was slain here last night within the borders of the French concession. Three other occupants of the house he was in were also slain.

Broadside Scores Chiang.

The proclamation carried the alleged signature of Wang Ching-wei, radical leader, and denounced the so-called "Nanking military dictatorship which is violating the rights of the people and is ruthlessly suppressing the press and free speech."

President Chiang ordered an investigation of the murders and issued orders for the arrest of the criminals who had succeeded in escaping.

JACK KEARNS SUES TO ANNUL HIS "MARRIAGE"

Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey and now managing Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, yesterday filed a suit in the Circuit court for annulment of his "marriage" to the former vaudeville actress, Edith Angel. The bill asks that a separation agreement made by Kearns providing Mrs. Kearns with $500 a month be revoked, and that she be ordered to return him $30,000 paid in the five years of the agreement.

Kearns avers that he met Miss Angel in May, 1920. On March 22, 1924, he says, she forced him to sign the agreement by which they were married, on threats of ruining him financially by "exposing him." The bill, drawn by Attorney Albert Sabath, declares that no marriage existed.

On the possibility that the courts might hold that the contract in itself constitutes marriage without the formality of a ceremony, Kearns asks that the marriage be set aside. Kearns ceased making the monthly payments three months ago and the former actress secured three attachments against his property. He is now living at the Morrison hotel. His wife is in New York.

TRADE EXPANSION SEEN PERILED BY BRIDGE NUISANCE

View Is Based on Great Traffic Increase.

Chicago's plans for business expansion and growth cannot be perfectly realized if the open bridge nuisance is allowed to exist, in the opinion of Attorney Benjamin F. Goldstein, special assistant corporation counsel assigned to the aldermanic bridge committee. Mr. Goldstein bases his beliefs on the crowded traffic conditions which cannot but increase as expansion continues.

"No constructive solution of the bridge traffic problem can be made without making provision to take care of the future growth of Chicago, especially as it affects the business district," Mr. Goldstein said yesterday.

"The Association of Commerce, the Chicago Plan commission, the World's Fair committee, the park systems, the regional Planning commission, and kindred organizations are continually concentrating their energies upon various means of increasing the activity of the city as a whole on the one hand and on the other hand of improving the traffic problems which will necessarily arise therefrom.

"The business district is bounded on the east by the lake, where outer drives have already been constructed to utilize the adjacent area; on the south by a network of railroad tracks which will some time be bunched in one terminal, and on the north and west by the Chicago river. Just to point to a few of the projects which will increase traffic over the crowded bridges, there are the Randolph street viaduct, the Merchandise Mart, and the coming World's Fair, all of which will create problems in traffic which deserve special consideration."

6,000 USE TRIBUNE SERVICE IN FILING INCOME TAX RETURNS

More than 6,000 citizens have been assisted in filing their income tax returns by THE TRIBUNE Public Service office since Jan 15, Manager Hugh Donaldson announced yesterday. Deputy Collectors of Internal Revenue Schultz and Shriber have been assigned to the offices by Collector Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge and are helping from 100 to 200 persons each day.

Last year about 20,000 persons filed their returns through the Public Service office and Mr. Donaldson predicted that as many or more will take advantage of the service this year before the close of the filing period, March 15. He called attention to the fact that, if they desire, citizens can pay their tax by check at the Public Service office, which is at Dearborn and Madison streets, without going to the internal revenue headquarters in the federal building.

"Get the truth; the Tribune dares to print it!"

Arthur Sears Henning

"GET the truth for America. The Tribune dares to print it!" This is the Chicago Tribune's only order to its extraordinary staff of correspondents now on the job in London at the Naval Conference.

If you have been following the Naval Conference as reported by the Chicago Tribune, you know that the Tribune not only has been reporting the facts, but in addition has been throwing the spotlight on the inner-workings of the publicity machinery as it functions at an international parley. The Tribune considers this to be a part of the reporting job. It is not enough to give merely the facts. Readers have a right to know what is behind those facts—to know which powers want certain facts emphasized—and certain other facts soft-pedaled.

David Darrah

Chicago Tribune readers get the complete story. Arthur Sears Henning, John Steele, Henry Wales, and David Darrah—seasoned Tribune men—are on the job for you, sifting the truth from the welter of propaganda and bunk which surrounds the conference.

John Steele

They are Americans. They see and hear with American eyes and ears. Their interest in America's welfare is not merely a professional interest. It is a personal interest as well.

Henry Wales

COOLIDGE DRAWN INTO INQUIRY ON MUSCLE SHOALS

Letter Mentioning Name Read at Lobby Quiz.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Former President Coolidge today was dragged into the Muscle Shoals lobby inquiry by the production of correspondence in which Chester Gray, capital representative of the American Farm Bureau federation, asserted that Mr. Coolidge was aware of negotiations for an agreement between fertilizer and power interests for control of the Muscle Shoals project.

Other letters in which he claimed much credit for Coolidge's "pocket veto" of the Norris government operation bill and pictured himself working closely with Claudius Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, against the "Norrisites," added to the discomfiture of Gray, who spent two miserable hours between a cross fire of questions from Senators Hugo Black [Dem., Ala.], and T. J. Walsh [Dem., Mont].

Quizzed on Agreement.

Gray was compelled to admit that he knew that in December, 1928, when the American Cyanamid company, whose bid for a lease on Muscle Shoals has been pending before congress for several years, and the Alabama Power company were supposedly bitterly fighting each other for control of the project, they were actually negotiating secretly for an agreement upon division of the power produced if the Cyanamid bid was finally accepted.

The admission was forced when Senator Black read a letter in which Gray wrote to E. A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau federation, that "negotiations are going forward in an extraconfidential manner, with the White House in knowledge of what is being done."

He was not asked and did not volunteer the source of his information that the White House knew of the dealings.

Gray also admitted that he was told by W. H. Bell, president of the Cyanamid company, that the proposed agreement was not to be written in order to leave the principals to it free to deny its existence because it was realized such an agreement would constitute an illegal monopoly.

Questioned About Bell.

"And only two weeks ago Bell appeared before the house military affairs committee and denied there was any agreement between his company and any power companies, did he not?" asked Bell.

"Yes," answered Gray, adding that so far as he knows, no agreement was ever reached.

In another letter to O'Neal on June 8, 1928, Gray wrote that one of the important factors which moved Coolidge to "pocket veto" the Norris bill was Gray's appeal to the then President that to sign the measure would ruin O'Neal, who was under attack for his opposition to any proposal of government operation of Muscle Shoals. Gray finally admitted the letter was largely bunk, written to honor O'Neal, a life long Democrat, whose acquaintance with Coolidge was limited to one or two brief conferences.

Minority Report Considered.

Gray's files disclosed that last June he and other farm bureau leaders, as well as J. W. Worthington, executive chairman of the Tennessee River Improvement association, the Muscle Shoals lobby, formerly headed by Huston, debated the wisdom of having Senator F. C. Walcott [Rep., Conn.] file a minority report, written by the general counsel for the Cyanami dcompany, against the Norris resolution. The report, written by T. W. Martin, was given to Gray, whose letter to O'Neal indicated the plan to have it presented by Walcott, was abandoned because the senator is a director of the Union Carbide company, of which the Cyanamid company is a subsidiary.

Prompted frequently by Black's reference to letters found in his files but which were not read into the committee's record, Gray told of "sitting in" with officials of the Alabama Power company, the Tennessee Power, the Electric Bond and Share company, and other power companies, in at least one conference in New York to discuss the prospects of Muscle Shoals legislation.

When Gray insisted he could not recall what proposals "Aylesworth of the Electric Bond and Share company" made to secure the former's assistance "in helping power companies to get Muscle Shoals," Black promised to jog his memory next Tuesday with another batch of letters.

Washington Notes

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—(AP)—The first deficiency appropriation bill, carrying $48,151,000 to be made available immediately for various government departments and agencies, was passed today by the house and sent to the senate.

The house bill to liberalize provisions of the act enabling the mothers and widows of deceased soldiers now buried in France to visit that country was reported favorably to the senate today by its military affairs committee.

On the eve of Washington's birthday Representative Treadway [Rep., Mass.] today introduced a bill to provide for the acquisition by the United States of Mount Vernon.

ROBBED OF OVERCOAT AND CASH.

Arthur Janke, 5652 South Honore street, was robbed of his overcoat and $75 early yesterday by four men who forced him to drive from his garage at 6721 South Honore street to 68th street and Hamilton avenue, where the robbery occurred.

EDGE PICTURES U. S. DIPLOMAT AS BUSINESS GETTER

Tells France Yanks Seek New Trade Pact.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 21.—President Hoover's health was drunk in good French wine at the Washington birthday banquet given tonight by the American club in Paris, the American chamber of commerce and the Paris post of the American Legion in honor of Walter E. Edge, Uncle Sam's new envoy.

To be specific, it was Graves, that mellow golden wine of the valley of the Garonne, which filled the glasses that were raised by the ambassador, the staffs of the embassy and the consulate, distinguished Frenchmen, and 400 members of the American colony in Paris.

Stand in Silence for Herrick.

At the request of Theodore Rousseau, president of the American club and toastmaster at the banquet, the dinner began with an impressive tribute to the late Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, with the guests standing for a moment's silence in his honor. In the speech he made later Mr. Edge described his predecessor as a "living symbol of Franco-American understanding."

In his address Mr. Edge dwelt on the ties that link America to France and said that he considered his first big job in France was to bring about an economic agreement between the two nations, the first to be formulated on a general basis for almost a century. Industrial coöperation with the rest of the world was America's motivating force, he added.

Tells of Business Diplomacy.

"The day has gone by when nations or their emissaries can assert their power or set out to conquer new worlds, for ours is an era more influenced by economic understanding than by political power," he said. "It can truthfully be stated that international influence and international friendship today rest most of all on solid economic and spiritual realities. Nations cannot build themselves at the expense of other nations.

"This is a principle which has long been recognized by our statesmen and accepted by our people. It has become almost a truism to say we Americans are not politically but economically minded, and indeed it is a profound truth which has shown itself in our refusal to admit the validity of political obstacles to our economic well being. For us the object of national policy is not political power but economic welfare.

"We have a well defined American business diplomacy which seeks to encourage American trade generally and protect individual American interests in their duly acquired rights. It does not, however, and will not promote the advantage of any single American firm or interest but seeks to fairly represent all."

Sackett Gives First Speech.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 21. — Ambassador Frederick M. Sackett made his first public speech in Berlin tonight when he was entertained by 300 Americans as the guest of honor of the American club's traditional Washington birthday celebration. The envoy praised Washington's qualities as one of the finest traditions of the American nation, which despite its youth does possess traditions.

PIONEER DIES

MRS. LOUISE D. SHERMAN.
[Underwood & Underwood Photo.]

Mrs. Louise Dickinson Sherman, 95 years old, widow of Penoyer L. Sherman, prominent attorney, who died in 1911, died yesterday at her home at 213 Linden street, Winnetka, after an illness of a few days. She came to Chicago from Binghamton, N. Y., when she was married in 1857.

Mrs. Sherman was one of the pioneer residents of Kenwood, having moved to the old Sherman homestead at 47th street and what is now Lake Park avenue in 1859. She lived there until about 15 years ago, when she moved to Winnetka. She and her husband, who was once president of the American, Illinois, and Chicago Bar associations, were active in the development of the south side.

Mrs. Sherman was one of the organizers of St. Paul's Episcopal church and had been a member of the Chicago Woman's club since 1882, serving as president from 1898 to 1900. During the civil war she and her sister, Mrs. James H. Woodworth, wife of the then mayor of Chicago, organized the Camp Douglas Relief and Aid society, providing food and clothing for confederate prisoners in the camp at 35th street and the lake. Mrs. Sherman had been regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution and vice president of the Fortnightly club.

She is survived by four sons, Lucius B., Dr. Penoyer L., Samuel S., and Roger Sherman. Funeral services will be held at the residence at 2 p. m. today, with burial at Oakwoods cemetery.

'SLAYER' OF NINE INSANE, THINKS FOSTER MOTHER

Baker Kicked in Head by Horse, She Says.

Warren, O., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Teresa Parks of Warren, stepmother of James Baker, now held in Detroit on his confession of killing nine persons, said today she believes her stepson is insane.

"He was kicked on the head by a horse when he was a child in Mount Washington, Pa.," Mrs. Parks said.

The stepmother added that Baker's confession of shooting and killing her husband was not true. The stepfather, Cyril Parks, was shot by the youth in February, 1924, but was wounded in the foot, not killed.

After the shooting Baker fled and might have believed the shooting was fatal, Mrs. Parks said.

Baker Identified as Robber.

New York, Feb. 21.—(AP)—One of two truckmen who were held up, bound, and gagged in the Guggenheim laboratories the night of Dec. 28, 1928, shortly after Henry S. Gaw, the night watchman, had been killed, today identified a photograph of James Baker, who is held in Detroit, as the man who had bound him.

The district attorney's office is preparing extradition papers in connection with Baker's indictment for robbery of $20 from the laboratory safe the night Gaw was killed.

Baker has not been indicted in connection with Gaw's death.

LINDY CALLS ON COOLIDGE IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh visited Calvin Coolidge at the latter's hotel suite tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge had returned earlier in the evening from a two-day visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Wrigley Jr. of Chicago, on Catalina island. Mr. and Mrs. George M. Reynolds of Chicago also were guests on the island.

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge will go to Santa Barbara, Cal., tomorrow.

Niece of Abraham Lincoln Is Dead in Arkansas at 70

Pine Bluff, Ark., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Anita Kellogg Thompson, 70, a niece of Abraham Lincoln, died here tonight after a brief illness. Mrs. Thompson's mother before her marriage was Margaret Todd, a sister of Mary Todd, whom Lincoln married. Mrs. Thompson was a native of Cincinnati, coming to Arkansas in her childhood. She was organizer of the Daughters of the American Revolution in the southeast section of Arkansas.

2 DEAD, 3 BURIED BENEATH 1,800,000 POUNDS OF COAL

New York, Feb. 21.—[Special.]—An avalanche of 900 tons of coal roared down on a group of laborers working in a coal yard on the Bronx bank of the Harlem river at 174th street this afternoon, when the steel understructure collapsed. Five men are believed to have been trapped and killed. Two others were injured. Two bodies had been extricated tonight, while policemen, firemen, and employés of the coal company still were at work in an effort to locate the others.

Cop's Wit Saves Friend from Wearing a Barrel

When Sergt. Jerry Griffin of the Hyde Park police station saw Harold Selle, 18 years old, of Detroit, carrying a suit of clothes at 48th street and Greenwood avenue yesterday, he recognized it as belonging to William Leonard, 40 years old, a handy man around the police station. Knowing that Leonard had only one suit, the sergeant suspected something was wrong and arrested Selle. In the basement at 4727 Ingleside avenue, where Leonard sleeps, the police found him waiting for some one to bring him some clothes. Selle had stolen his only suit.

Children Cross Sea Alone to Join Parents in Chicago

Two sober faced children stepped off a New York Central train at the La Salle street station yesterday wondering if the end of a journey across the Atlantic would really bring them to their parents. But their faces beamed when they saw Mr. and Mrs. Peter Labuwes, 5644 South Aberdeen street. The children, Peter Jr., 8, and Mary, 4, came all alone from Luxemburg where they had been left with their grandparents when the Labuwes came to Chicago last year to establish their home.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 21. — Eight German citizens in the Italian province of Upper Adige—formerly southern Tyrol—who formerly were accused of anti-Fascist activities, today were pardoned by Il Duce. Of the eight, only one, Dr. Joseph Kiener, was actually in jail, but the others were under police surveillance. The government declared police measures against the Tyrolese for political reasons have now ceased.

PRESIDENT WILL SEE WASHINGTON BIRTHDAY PARADE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—(AP)—From President Hoover to the humblest clerk, the capital will join tomorrow in celebrating the birthday of George Washington.

President and Mrs. Hoover will leave shortly after noon for Alexandria, Va., the home of the first President. There they will review, with Secretary Hurley, Gov. Pollard of Virginia, and other officials, the annual Washington's birthday parade.

Washington itself will be dressed in flags and will have its own community observances. The government departments will be closed.

It is a long established tradition that on Washington's birthday the senate listens to his farewell address. Senator Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] has been designated by Vice President Curtis to read it. The house will hear a lengthy program of speeches.

SUPREME COURT ASKED TO STAY SNOOK EXECUTION

Columbus, O., Feb. 21.—(AP)—The United States Supreme court will be petitioned next Monday to stay further the execution of Prof. James H. Snook, under sentence to die next Friday for the murder of Theora Hix.

The announcement was made this evening by his attorney, E. O. Ricketts, after Chief Justice Carrington T. Marshall of the Ohio Supreme court, had refused to grant an application for another thirty days' respite.

Should the federal tribunal in Washington refuse to grant a stay that would permit that court to consider Snook's application to have his case reviewed by the highest court of the land, then appeal will again be made to the Ohio tribunal next Tuesday afternoon, Ricketts said.

Four Are Injured as Plane Makes Forced Landing

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Four persons were injured, two critically, tonight in the forced landing of a cabin monoplane at Logan field.

Capt. Lyman Patterson, pilot, and C. W. Carnan, student aviator, both of Baltimore, were unconscious when taken from the wreckage. Thomas L. Kane, Perryville, student aviator, and Harris Kirk, Baltimore, passengers, were less seriously hurt.

BOOKS

Big British Era of Edward VII. Has New Vogue

Miss Sackville-West Has Book About It.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—The spring publishing season is now in full swing. While the earliest books of the year have been devoted to the war — for there have been a number of new books, of which "Her Privates We" at present leads the way — those which are promised deal largely with the recent past.

MISS SACKVILLE-WEST.

Indeed, it might almost appear that war books were slackening off; and as if encouraged by the notion Cyril Falls, whose name is known in connection with several very interesting studies, including a brief book about Rudyard Kipling, is proposing to give us a survey of war books, divided into sections, with analyses and comments. This should prove a valuable piece of bibliography. But, like the lamb which was exhibited in the circus lion's cage, it will probably "need renewing occasionally," for unless my information is incorrect we are now at the beginning only of what may be called the flood of war literature.

One of the nonwar books to which I referred earlier is Miss Sackville-West's "The Edwardians." This should be exceptionally well worth reading. Her book is not, however, a plain record of the Edwardian era. It is a novel of manners set in or about the year 1905. Its characters include the late King Edward himself, and range as far as the housemaids of the time.

Historical fiction, stimulated by Messrs. Chatto & Windus' historical novel competition, will be much to the fore. In addition to Miss Margaret Irwin's "None So Pretty," we are to have "Cecile," by F. L. Lucas, and "The Lost Crusade," by Daphne Muir. Mr. Lucas is a don at Cambridge, has written much criticism, and has edited the works of John Webster. He is the husband of E. B. C. Jones, whose delicate novels have been much admired. This is Mr. Lucas' first novel.

Mrs. Muir is the blind lady who wrote "A Virtuous Woman." She is a scrupulous artist. It is to Mrs. Muir that Miss Phoebe Fenwick Gaye has for some time acted as secretary; and it is no secret that Miss Gaye's "Vivandiere" was originally written for entry for the same competition in which Mrs. Muir shares second prize with Mr. Lucas. "Vivandiere" never was entered for the competition, and as a consequence of this fact Miss Gaye received publication a year earlier than would have been the case if she had followed her original intention. A valuable year, as it proves, for Miss Gaye.

LINCOLN'S DAYS OF PARTY STRIFE RELIVE IN CARTOON HISTORY

"Abraham Lincoln—A Cartoon History" is the title of a very interesting two volume addition to the shelves of Lincolniana. Dr. Albert W. Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews, conceived the idea of collecting the cartoons of the period which constituted "His Path to the Presidency" and "The Year of His Election." With them as a basis he has written a new and popular life of our most misunderstood President. For the circumstances of Lincoln's death built up an immediate tradition which certainly would have pleased the simple Abe Lincoln less than any one else. That his time and his whole country looked upon him as a demi-god neither was true nor possible under the circumstances of the rift in national ideals that bore him to the presidency.

Dr. Shaw creates (with the aid of the cartoons of the period) a human being. Lincoln was as well hated as he was well loved. Any panoramic picture of him presents that hatred as well as that adoration which was born, so history points out, through his martyrdoms but did not precede it. Lincoln emerges from Mr. Shaw's volumes a great man whom we can all understand—greater perhaps on account of his frailties and the venom with which he inspired his enemies.

As historical record these two volumes are priceless, for there is nothing which so instantly creates historical atmosphere as the pictorial records of the period. Dr. Shaw used to live in Chicago. "I was a reviewer of economic books for the Dial in the early days," he wrote not long ago, "when I was always hanging about with my old friend, F. F. Browne, at McClurg's, and with Poole of the Index-to-Periodicals fame, and with Melville Stone and Eugene Field and many others.

So, in a sense, we can add Dr. Shaw's two volumes to our shelves of the work of Chicago writers.

'Windjamming to Fiji' Is a Story of Women Who Really Sailed Sea

"Windjamming to Fiji," by Viola Irene Cooper [Henkle], is the story of a trip that two women made in an old barque, its last voyage before being used for a storage barge. Viola Irene Cooper in a western paper read the story of the sale of the old ship and she determined to have a hand in such an historic trip as its last promised to be. She persuaded a friend of hers to make the trip with her.

After beating against every stone wall of red tape and convention possible, the ship sailed with the two women as midshipmen — enrolled legally and everything.

Miss Cooper kept the ship's journal and from that and her diary she has made "Windjamming to Fiji." That it differs radically from Joan Lowell's record of her life at sea is said to be rather a proof of its veracity than a token of its lack of reality. Count von Luckner says Miss Cooper shows a lot more knowledge of the sea (and she was only a landlubber) than most of the professional writers on the subject can muster.

Everything You Need to Know to Improve Your Speech in social life, business, public speaking, is now explained in this great book—a complete guide to the fullest development of your powers of expression.

HOW TO TALK
A Manual of Effective Speech

35 Chapters
647 Pages

By JOHN MANTLE CLAPP and EDWIN A. KANE

A treasury of ideas and methods for IMMEDIATE USE in Business Meetings, Interviews, Selling, Committee Work, Club Meetings, After-Dinner Talks, Public Speeches, and every other situation of personal or business life.

Thousands of men and women have already sent for this new handbook of speech, because, for the first time, it deals with problems of expression in an intensely practical way. It tells clearly just what you want to know; just how to use the priceless information it offers; covers completely every situation, and explains how to master that situation. Here are some of the subjects treated:

OVERCOMING YOUR PERSONAL DIFFICULTIES
Analyzing Your Own Case. Practical methods you can apply at once.
Improving Your Vocabulary. Accuracy in using words.
Enunciation. Pronunciation. Speaking plainly and correctly.
Developing Your Voice.
Self-Training in Language. Adjusting expression to audience and occasion.
Self-Training in Delivery. Nervousness, gestures.

PUBLIC SPEAKING
Getting Ready to Speak. How great speakers prepare.
Facing Your Audience. Main points to keep in mind.
Informal Addresses.
Formal Addresses.
Festive Occasions. Good form. The Toastmaster.

NO ADVANCE PAYMENT

The Plea for a Cause. Getting action.

YOUR BUSINESS SPEECH
Speech in Your Business Life. Avoiding abruptness.
Conversations with Your Employer. Making suggestions.
Business Conferences. Getting results.
Service Conversation. Complaints. Adjustments.
Trading Conversations. Methods of the skilled salesman. Buying.

YOUR ACTIVITIES IN CLUBS AND OTHER ORGANIZATIONS
Committee Work. Chairman.
Meetings — Parliamentary Practice. Motions. Managing Discussion.

HOME AND SOCIAL LIFE
Social Conversation. Talking with strangers.

"... it is a veritable speech-encyclopedia ... presented so simply and so directly and with such a wealth of illustrative material that it is self-teaching."—M. M. Hoover, Assistant to the Director, University Extension, Columbia University.

"... should be kept for frequent reference and studied by every one who is forced to meet and consult a number of people or has to address groups ..."—William F. Anderson, Bass & Co.

"... it is one of the most stimulating and interesting books I have ever read—a handbook of courtesy and tact ..."—H. F. Young, Assistant General Auditor, New York Telephone Co.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

CONSTIPATION IS A HEALTH THIEF

Drive It from Your System with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Constipation steals the best out of your life. Robs you of strength, vitality, health itself! And many people do not realize that perpetual fatigue, coated tongues, bad breath, are often signs that constipation is in their system.

You must move poisonous wastes out of your system and keep them moving. But there's a right way and a wrong way. Pills, drugs and ordinary cathartics give but temporary relief—and their dose must be constantly increased to be effective.

The great natural cleanser is Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. A tasty cereal, which brings you iron for blood building—and, above all, corrects constipation. The abundant roughage in ALL-BRAN gently and naturally sweeps out poisonous wastes and impurities.

Physicians recommend ALL-BRAN. It's guaranteed. Two tablespoonfuls daily. Recurring cases—with every meal. Remember that Kellogg's is the original ALL-BRAN—the product that millions have proved effective.

You'll like the nut-like flavor of ALL-BRAN. Eat it in many ways. Delicious with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Make muffins with it. At all grocers. Served in hotels, restaurants, dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Called by many THE biography for the American people
LINCOLN
By EMIL LUDWIG
At last the famous author of the tremendously successful biographies of Napoleon and Bismarck has written the human story of the Great American in the same moving, sympathetic style.
William E. Dodd in The New York Herald Tribune: "A popular biography . . . A most interesting book. It is true to the spirit of the subject; it portrays Lincoln in his own words."
F. Lauriston Bullard in The Boston Herald: "The real Lincoln is here; the portrait is genuine."
The Detroit News: "Here is a masterpiece. The book will live, for it is vivid with the essence of Lincoln."

Wilder Revives Grecian Beauty in His Novel

'The Woman of Andros' Delights Critic.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Woman of Andros," by Thornton Wilder. [A. and C. Boni.]

"The Woman of Andros" is the most eagerly awaited novel of the year. Added to the number of readers who thought "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" was one of the most beautiful books they had met and the readers who said they thought so because such was the fashion there is a large and pompous phalanx of the big hearted who are sharpening their bowie knives ready, whatever it is, to give the little book a carving.

One of the most characteristic manifestations of human reactions was the wave of adverse criticism which followed the success of "The Bridge." As long as it was a masterpiece enjoyed by only the few, those few were ecstatic about it. The moment that it became a popular success, by some mass magic which no one has ever been able to analyze afterwards or predicate beforehand a number of people began to say it, was a mediocre book.

On the theory that no book which has a phenomenal sale can possibly be a good book, that group of serious belittlers has increased. So one of the most eagerly waiting bands of readers is that one, hoping "The Woman of Andros" will give an excellent opportunity of saying how smart they are and how not smart Mr. Wilder is.

Mr. Wilder has fooled everybody by writing exactly what he pleased. He has not written another "Bridge" in any sense of the word. He has not written another "Cabala." He has written an entirely new kind of book. "The Woman of Andros" is, more than anything else, a philosophical snapshot of life (to use words of our day), a fragment of Greek plastics (to use more classic terms).

"The Woman of Andros" is as classically beautiful, as self-sufficient, as compact, as much a seed of beauty which breeds in each beholder whatever of art and philosophy his soul has the substance to nourish as any exquisite fragment of Greek sculpture. It is not what the characters say or what Mr. Wilder says that makes "The Woman of Andros" a thing of beauty. It is what the words generate in the reader's own spirit that makes it a memorable piece of work.

As far as the polishing of the marble of his fragment is possible, Mr. Wilder has made it perfect. There are only 162 pages. Every word in it is a part of a rhythm whose undercurrent is much firmer, much stronger than the surface ebb and flow of the words. The surface tide is a slight one—the story of a few years in the life of a strange woman in a tight Attic community, the story of the love of her young sister and one of the young men who sat at her feet, the story of death. The sub-rhythm is the ebb and flow of life itself, the ebb in love, the flow in death. The woman of Andros (like how many of us!) is dead long before the moment when her body is carried to the pyre. How she faces the cycle of her years is what gives the little book some of its majesty.

The whole spirit of the writing in "The Woman of Andros" is Greek. There are some phrases in it which are forever unforgettable. "It astonished her to find some one laconic in a chattering world, and with quiet hands in a gesturing civilization," for instance. Or this further description of the old sea captain: "He seemed to be too large for daily life; his very eyes were strange—unaccustomed to the shorter range, too used to seizing the appearances of a constellation between a cloud and a cloud, and the outlines of a headland in rain." Restraint is in every word, every line, and yet a rich suggestion.

Mr. Wilder has proved that "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" was not a miraculous accident but the result of conscious effort. For he has done something different from either of his other two books and something of its own genre that is just as fine. "The Cabala" was an excellent, a brilliant, novel wholly of the conventional pattern. "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" was a novel of a pattern almost impressionistic, although the material seemed classical. "The Woman of Andros" is a pattern purely classical, the material is of a mood with the pattern, and neither pattern nor material nor the way it is used is in any sense conventional. It is not a novel in the accepted definition of the word. It is, however, a vivid picture of human life and man's relation to his world implied rather than delineated. It is—there is no other phrase which so well describes it—a beautiful Greek fragment.

Ready Review

Joseph Anthony, author of "The Lost Shirt" [Brentano's], being also the editor of another publishing house, the Cosmopolitan Book corporation, has studied the situation for a long time and believes that both good reviews and bad ones help a book. Wherefore he has concocted what he calls the patent interchangeable book review, to which this department has acquired the exclusive rights. He says:

A certain book that [pleases] me

So read Joe Anthony's "Lost Shirt"
And [you will laugh] till it will hurt.

"Retreat," by C. R. Benstead. [Century.]

"Retreat" comes to us from England with praise so high that "the best English war book yet" is one of the milder pronouncements.

What has caused the reading public of late to immerse itself so passionately in war novels is inexplicable. The experts know no more about it than the rankest amateurs. "All Quiet on the Western Front" was turned down by four American publishers (so rumor says). All of them were convinced the American reading public was (last summer) fed up on war books. "All Quiet" has bred a whole new generation of war books. Mostly they are like Arthur Guy Empey's old opus, "Over the Top," in the sense that they are personal narratives. They are, however, overlaid—this generation of them—by the trappings of fiction. They are as factual as the old volumes of personal experiences, however.

One thing that makes "Retreat" such a memorable book (and it is everything the heralders have proclaimed it to be) is that besides being a narrative of the war, with that intensity of a personal narrative, it is a very fine study of character, its integration and its disintegration. It depicts man's clash with his environment—the fact that the environment was the war only makes man's reactions the more vivid, the more sharply cut.

The hero of "Retreat" would have had (to a lesser degree) the same reaction to any mass contact with intense human life. It would not have made the wreckage of his life that the war did, but all of the weak spots in his character were inherent, not induced. That is why the book is of the intensity which it is because it is primarily a well made novel besides being an almost photographic picture of war.

The hero is a chaplain, who, after three years of fighting with himself about going to war, joins up and reaches his unit the night before the great retreat. In that retching of the war he and his message are subordinated to the business in hand—the business of making the retreat as successful as any failure can be made. He has a deep and passionate conviction in the call of his God and his king. As the days pass and he finds that neither his God nor his king has anything for him to do, his inherent neurasthenia gets the better of him. That is the story of the hero. It is told with slow, skillful, certain relentlessness, just as it happened. For the picture of the hero's losing fight with his ideals, "Retreat" would be great.

It is for the picture of what the war did to the officers of the unit that most people will remember the book, however. The callousness (as the hero thinks it), the sodden dead-weariness of their lives, the essential decency of them almost drowned at times with drink, the crust that the war made over their souls (as the hero again saw it) the author has made so real that no reader can fail to understand the spiritual necessity which bred what to an outsider might have seemed, as it did to the chaplain fresh from a quiet English countryside, gross irreverence and callousness. The same quality of reality, of complete understanding between audience and characters that has made "Journey's End" the great war play makes "Retreat" one of the few great war books.

Add together reality, vividness of description of psychology as well as of events, and the panorama of a man's personal and private war with his own soul, his faith in his God, and you have a novel of proportions!

"Retreat" is not memorable for its writing—like the last half of "All Our Yesterdays" for instance, which for sheer interpretive descriptions of the war is a masterpiece, but it has a reality about it which, although it does not clutch you suddenly (like the tremendous writing of the Tomlinson book) lays its heavy hand upon you and holds you in a grip so firm that you will never forget it. GERMAN REPUBLIC PLEDGED TO PEACE, AUTHOR DECLARES

BY JAMES T. HATFIELD.

"The New German Republic," by Elmer Luehr. [Minton Balch.]

The advice of the chief executive of our city that the inhabitants unite in trumpeting its fame is justified by this imposing Chicago work, which claims quite as much civic enthusiasm as a national victory in football or the building of the world's tallest skyscraper.

The author is fortified by an astounding fund of research and essential information; has a masterful grasp of the whole picture, to its last detail, and possesses a wide technical knowledge of economic history and theory. The book is vivid, dramatic, and eminently readable; its diction notably full and vigorous, salted with picturesque idiom and lively satire.

A colorful, reasoned panorama of events is unrolled, from the signing of the armistice up to the Young plan of the present year. Financial, industrial, political, and racial factors are taken into full account. Much credit is given to Hoover, Dawes, Young, and other Americans for helping to avert the dissolution of Germany during a period when its fate hung by the slenderest thread. The book makes no bones of protesting against the Versailles treaty as a deliberate violation of Wilson's fourteen points, upon which peace negotiations were founded.

Mr. Luehr, whose temper throughout is detached and judicial, finds that Germany has honestly carried out treaty agreements as to reparations and disarmament, and has been pitilessly squeezed beyond all deserts. Germany is embarked upon a deliberate policy of peace and is a leader in all pacific and conciliatory movements.

The final verdict reached, after surveying all the changes and chances which followed the armistice, is that "the republic is impregnable."

Authors Debate, Both Winning, Hearers Glad

Then New Yorkers Greet H. M. Tomlinson.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—One may label H. M. Tomlinson an Englishman and thank that land for the rare cadence of his voice, but the author of "All Our Yesterdays" dwells beyond frontiers of nationality. Music of sea surf or symphony orchestra . . . cathedral, skyscraper or springtime meadow . . . books and human beings—his talk is that of a keen, kindly citizen of the universe.

H. M. TOMLINSON.

His dark eyes sparkle when conversation veers to something fine. "'Moby Dick'! Who in England was writing like that in the fifties!" He puffs his straight stemmed pipe reflectively when in doubt. "I've come to the conclusion that if a book is dull there's really nothing in it," he remarks regretfully. "It's lack of idea, not unpracticed writing, that makes it stodgy."

In New York but a few days longer than a fortnight Mr. Tomlinson made but one tea party appearance, being guest of honor on Thursday afternoon at the bookshop of Elizabeth Drew—who, by the way, is soon to be his daughter-in-law.

Max Beerbohm once set down for our everlasting delight a bit of dialogue between two literary gents, each—though politely speaking in turn—relentlessly pursuing his own line of thought. More or less after this manner was the debate of Hugh Walpole and Thornton Wilder at the Selwyn theater on Sunday evening. It was a really perfect debate, for both won. And the audience, after the pleasure of hearing two brilliant speakers, went home happily equipped for endless debating as to what the debate was about.

The "international contest of intellect," as the preliminary advertisements featured the occasion, turned on the resolution: "That reading great fiction and drama throws a better light on experience than reading great history and biography." Walpole spoke for fiction and drama, contending that by virtue of the creative faculty of their authors, works of the imagination go deeper than any records of fact and event.

Little given to gesture, Walpole's talk gained emotional power from his own deep appreciation of the pageant of the great figures he called to support his climax—Tolstoy's Anna Karenina, Flaubert's Emma Bovary, the haggard Karamazoff of Dostoyefsky, Shakespeare's Lady Macbeth.

Wilder set forth that fiction does not tell the truth about life, doesn't intend to. Life as we live it is unforeseen. "Fiction's business is to stand up against the stream of inexplicable events, to extract from it a portion, and to impress upon that portion what is not life's business—form. Form is the triumph of art and the despair of life."

Wilder's delivery, staccato as he commences each new point, becomes gently intimate as he explains; he leans closer to his audience as though imparting a sad secret. "We live only in those moments when the heart is conscious of its treasure. Art is a kind of hope—a pretense that the heart is strong enough to love long, to grieve long."

Those who make a hobby of limited editions will rejoice that Aldous Huxley took pen in hand and signed three hundred copies of "Brief Candle"; that T. S. Eliot inscribed five hundred of his new book of poems, "Ash Wednesday"; that there is a limited as well as an ordinary edition of Walter de la Mare's "Desert Islands"; that George Moore's new novel, "Aphrodite in Aulis," will be issued this spring in a single edition of seventeen hundred and fifty copies.

Meetings and Lectures

Mr. Hugh Walpole will make his only appearance before a Chicago audience next Friday. He will speak on "The Art and Immorality of the Novel" in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel at 11 a. m., under the auspices of the Cordon. Tickets for the lectures are to be had either at the Cordon or at the leading bookshops.

On Tuesday evening at the Nation Club of Chicago Miss H. Margaret Boe will give a lecture-recital of Eugene O'Neill's play, "The Great God Brown."

The Friends of American Writers will hold a meeting on Wednesday in the Wedgwood room at Marshall Field's, when Howard Vincent O'Brien will give a talk on "Making Books Fashionable." Mrs. R. B. Carter will review "Laughing Boy" by Oliver LaFarge.

Rollo Walter Brown will lecture on "The Creative Spirit" at the Jewish People's institute on Wednesday evening.

THE PERFECT LEAF
Something more than a novel. Written by Frank A. Fortescue. Recommended by the Book-of-the-Month Club. You will wonder as you read whether the people next door, whether your own friends are perhaps like these "perfect leaves," each one—mother, older son, younger son and young heroine following the old Persian saying that "Under the most perfect leaf lies an adder." $2.00

MANHATTAN FEVER
The author, Sally Brookes, actually came to New York only a short time ago, to make her way alone. This book is the startling exposé, in intimate confessional form, of what a twenty-year old girl goes through mentally, emotionally and physically, when she comes alone to New York City and works for her own living. FROM THE FAREWELL ADDRESS.

Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her policies or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to pursue a different course. If we remain one people, under an efficient government, the period is not far off when we may defy material injury from external annoyance; when we may take such an attitude as will cause the neutrality we may at any time resolve upon to be scrupulously respected; when belligerent nations, under the impossibility of making acquisitions upon us, will not lightly hazard the giving us provocation; when we may choose peace or war, as our interest, guided by justice, shall counsel.

Why forego the advantages of so peculiar a situation? Why quit our own to stand upon foreign ground? Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalship, interest, humor, or caprice?

It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world, so far, I mean, as we are now at liberty to do it; for let me not be understood as capable of patronizing infidelity to existing engagements. I hold the maxim no less applicable to public than to private affairs that honesty is always the best policy. I repeat, therefore, let those engagements be observed in their genuine sense. But in my opinion it is unnecessary and would be unwise to extend them.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, NATIONALIST.

Where did George Washington get his conception of his country? He was a Virginian, and Virginia as a colony was proud of its identity and distinction. He was an aristocrat and in his early days his ambition was to be a British soldier. His closest friends, the Fairfaxes, were loyalists. They were liberals and Whigs, and in a fashion exiles, but they remained loyal. Virginia's relations with Great Britain in the main were profitable and not unpleasant. Virginia planting and British industry and commerce complemented each other to the satisfaction of the planters.

It is difficult to see where any pressing economic reasons would have made Washington the great American nationalist of his time. Virginia was not interested in making goods. It could trade tobacco and foodstuffs for such articles of clothing as it was required to import, for the books, wines, tea, plate, etc., that it needed. The arrangement was so satisfactory that Virginia went back to it after the revolution, and did not have any such adventures as Massachusetts had in taking to the sea to establish its fortunes by trade in the orient.

Washington's nationalism found its inspiration in conditions which would have seemed naturally to have lessened it and his idea of the states as a country was the clearest. It was as if generations of his forbears had been devoted to the United States as it is today. This was not a sentiment common in such intensity to all the patriot leaders. John Hancock as governor of Massachusetts after the revolution made himself some trouble with the President by trying to assert the precedence of a governor in his own state over the head of the nation visiting that state. Jefferson, another great nationalist, was a hesitant federalist, and his preoccupation was with free humanity rather than with the nation as a country. Hamilton at times revealed that he was British born, although it was his work which set the states in the form of an enduring unity.

It was entirely inherent in the experiences and traditions of the colonies that as states their citizens should think first of the states and then of the confederation, and when conflicting interests pulled them apart they seemed willing to fall apart. The union was of questionable value to many of the revolutionists and of dangerous import to some. The confederation did not make a country. It made a league, and yet as such it was regarded as preferable by many to a federalization which meant a nation.

There were conflicting ways of life and different economic desires. New England and the tidewater south remained in fact closer to England than they were to each other. With New England the consideration was the London banking system necessary for its foreign trade. With the south it was the British markets necessary for its raw material and for its imports. The Massachusetts counting houses and the Virginia plantations were soon finding that they did not have the common purposes which will keep states together when they are loosely knit. Even common danger was not enough, as was proved when New England virtually pulled out of the war of 1812, although suffering from depredations, and in the Hartford convention skirted the idea of secession.

Hamilton was an authoritarian and with pride in what the revolution had accomplished he was concerned to see that the work went ahead to make a nation. He knew that nothing else could preserve what had been done, but he is not observable as influenced by the purity of idealized sentiment that governed Washington. Washington had love for the spiritual abstraction which cannot be defined in the terms of so many human beings, so many material assets, so many units of territory, in weights and measures of economic benefit, and community welfare. Human beings were more Jefferson's concern, material prosperity more Hamilton's. The clearest concept of a country devoted, of course, to all these values, but having something which partook of none of them, was Washington's.

These conflicting states with their various pulls of self-interest were his country. He was not in this a Virginian. He was an American, a nationalist, and his country made subordinate every other consideration which might arise.

This sublimation of the forces at work before, in and after the revolution may be carelessly accepted as the expectable sentiment of patriots, but more nearly the reverse would have been natural to the conditions. Washington had "his country" when not so many of his fellow countrymen were emotionally involved thus. He is still the first of its citizens, having been the first to find it.

THE UNITED STATES UNDER PROHIBITION.

The house judiciary committee hearings in Washington on pending prohibition enforcement bills have made possible a poll of the intelligent opinion of the country on the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. Thus far it is the opposition which has been heard, but it seems unlikely, if not impossible, that any answer in reason can be made to the statements. The reply may be emotional, fanatical, or fantastic, wishful or denunciatory, but it can be expected to be valid only where there is a refusal to examine facts and accept experience.

The citizens, men and women, who have made out the case against national prohibition have been of the highest order of citizenship, concerned for the welfare and future of their country, persons of responsibility, character, and intelligence. Many of them at first were advocates of prohibition, believing that it might be the corrective of social ills which it was not wise to ignore. They were, however, too honest and intelligent to close their eyes to results.

There has been a demoralization of government and law and it is apparent now that it was inevitable. The failure of prohibition was written in it because, as Ralph M. Shaw, the Chicago attorney, told the committee, the law "did not have back of it a deep rooted custom of society, developed over long periods of time." As he further said, the political influence which has mustered majorities for the law has become detested as representative of a coercion which law properly enacted and administered does not undertake and cannot successfully undertake.

There are well meaning people who may continue to regard dictates, issued by legislative bodies under peculiar incitements, in passing moods or in illusion of good, as permanent and inviolable, but they can be so only to people for whom they represent a habit of life voluntarily adopted. Prohibition only goes by the rule. It does not make it. It is the oldest rule of law.

It has been ignored by temporary authority in the United States, but it has asserted itself and it cannot be stopped by fanatical outcry or by government submission to such outcry. The question is merely, as the opposition stated it, when the fact is to be recognized and the law modified to meet the situation. Are events to be controlled or are they to go wildly to their end with violence and scandal, demoralization, humiliation, and lawlessness?

This social question is now tied to the backs of wild horses. Government hasn't control of it. Authority has run away from the stampede and is a futility in the eyes of all people. By ten years from now, or sooner, the answer will have been given outside the law if it is not found within legal process. The noble experiment will be dead, but the record may be one of legalistic fury exhausting itself. In that case it will have added another unfortunate episode to American history.

WASHINGTON PROTESTS.

[Baltimore Sun.]

Senator Grundy's reference to Mr. Hoover's lack of political experience has some pertinence in view of the violent opposition which has developed in Washington over the selection of Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby to be a commissioner of the District of Columbia. The press is united in criticism of the selection and its protest is echoed by various organizations, from the chamber of commerce to the labor unions, indicating that the people of the city are seriously disturbed by the nomination, and that a fight will be made upon it in the senate.

The basis of opposition is that the selection of an army man, though on the retired list, would violate the law of the district, which provides that two of the three commissioners shall be civilians. There is already one army man on the board. Thus Gen. Crosby's addition to it would seem to be a violation of the spirit of the law, to say the least. And as Washingtonians are not permitted to vote and have practically no voice in their own government, it is understandable that they should cling to what little protection they enjoy under the organic law. The surprising thing is that the Washingtonians retain so much spirit of protest.

If the President had known a little more about politics he would have sent up a trial balloon, that ancient method of ascertaining the state of public sentiment. Any ward boss could have told him that the way to avert trouble was to give the district opportunity to blow off steam before choice of a commissioner was definitely announced. Why some of the presumably shrewd young men who attend to chores of this kind for Mr. Hoover did not protect him from this tactical error is a mystery.

Beyond the mere matter of strategy there is also occasion for surprise that a Quaker President should call in the military for a civilian job, even if there were no question of his legal right to do so.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

There's Only One Thing for Us to Lecture on Today—

and that's the life and public services of G. Washington, for this is the anniversary of his birth. We don't know why we celebrate George's being born; lots of people have done that and not much of anything else, while George has got a lot more to his credit.

He was a great man and a great American. Whether Cal can horn his name into the expurgated history of the United States that he is writing to be engraved on the mountain or mountains out in South Dakota is said to be a question. It may be that Cal will leave him out altogether, but if words could tell what G. Washington did for this country it would take a large part of the Rockies and a section of the Appalachians to carve it on.

In school we stood up and glibly recited that George Washington was the commander in chief of the American army during the Revolution. And that's true (for a wonder, considering what histories are), but it's only partly true. As a matter of fact, George Washington was not only the commanding general in the Revolution—George was the Revolution. Congress then was what it is today—listening eagerly to organized minorities and throwing the monkey wrench into the machinery and crabbing the game about every way it knew how. But George kept going.

Some snooty Englishman said that any other general but Howe would have licked Washington, and that any other general but Washington would have licked Howe; but the trouble with that is that even if Howe had licked Washington, Washington wouldn't have known it. He would have listened coldly to the guy that had the nerve to tell him he was licked, stared at him silently for five minutes, then blinked his eyes and said, Set 'em up in the other alley, I'm going to hit 'em again. That was George.

Then take George while he was being First President. Mr. Hoover talks a lot about the hair-shirts the newspapers make him wear, but George could tell Mr. Hoover he don't know nothin'. Why, the things the newspapers said about George while he was First President would make the things that get Mr. Hoover's Angora sound like "A Little Kiss Each Morning, a Little Kiss at Night." However, George was pretty good on what we call the snappy comeback. They told us in school about how, during the war, when things went wrong, George used to go out and get right down on his marrow bones in the snow to pray; and maybe he did. We don't know about that. But we do know that once when somebody reminded him of what a newspaper had said about him that morning he leaped to his feet and cussed until he was blue in the face. Yessir, today we take our fedora off to that fightin', cussin', never-knew-when-he-was-licked gentleman, the Father of His Country, George Washington.

"MAY I NOT," mayinots Beehill, "say just one good word for prohibition?" And may you not, indeed, Beehill; far be it from us to stop you. And you're the first one to say a good word for prohibition for this long time, and so speak freely, Beehill, and none shall say you nay. "Well," continues Beehill's letter, "you see it's like this: If it hadn't been for prohibition I wouldn't have had any glycerin in the house. But prohibition compelled me to have glycerin in the house because we use it in bootlegging our own in the cellar. Well, the other night the baby suddenly developed the earache and I wanted glycerin to put in his ear. And the cellar was just full of glycerin; we hadn't started on our new batch of gin yet. Oh, hooray for dear old prohibition!" Thank you, Beehill, and now having spoken your good word for prohibition, you may return to your cellar.

TREATMENT OF MENINGITIS

IN the late spring of 1929 Surgeon General Cumming warned the country to look out for an epidemic of meningitis. The disease was mildly and intensely seeded; outbreaks of meningitis had been numerous during the preceding winter and spring. At that time we advised that there was no danger of immediate trouble but that the same could not be said of the following winter and spring.

Meningitis is a disease of cold, wet weather. During the summer season there is little of it. When the winter cold and wet commences the disease comes out of its estivation and proceeds to prey on men. As a rule its prevalence increases gradually until December; then it spurts and reaches a peak about March, after which there is a slow decline in April, followed by a rapid one in May and June.

When noses are examined bacteriologically in the earlier part of the season about one to two out of each hundred will be found to harbor meningococci. Before the New Year this proportion is apt to increase to five or ten to the hundred. In these circumstances experienced military medical officers and physicians to schools—boarding schools especially—know that trouble is impending and precautions are begun.

The disease is especially prone to develop among young men in military camps and dormitories. No crowding is allowed. Double decking of beds is done away with. The space between beds is increased. Beds are arranged so that heads to the wall alternate with feet to the wall. Screens are placed between beds. Crowding in mess halls and in assembly rooms is forbidden.

If the spring is very wet these precautions are redoubled. While exposure to outside cold and rain, with wet clothing and wet shoes, is harmful, exposure to crowds indoors is still more so. Every effort is made to prevent susceptibles from catching cold. When a man develops a coryza he is put to bed and thus both he and his associates are protected. He is especially cautioned against exposing others to his sprays when he sneezes and coughs.

It would seem that the best way of preventing epidemics of meningitis would be to discover who are the carriers of the coccus and to sterilize their noses. This has been tried many times and on an extensive scale. During the world war the carriers went into huts where the air was filled with zinc solution spray. They sat about or lay down breathing this spray for a few minutes daily. This seemed to be of service, yet it was not wholly satisfactory, and it is far from certain that the military authorities would repeat this method if they were called on to control meningitis today.

BOTHERED WITH NOSE BLEEDING.

J. D. J. writes: I am a young man 22 years old in very good health, but I am bothered with nose bleeding. It has given me trouble since childhood. It usually gives me more trouble in warm weather. Just before it starts, my head feels as though the blood had rushed to it, the way you feel when the head is lower than the body. After it starts, it bleeds very freely from five minutes to half an hour, and nothing that I do will stop it. When it gets ready it will stop all of a sudden. It does not seem to make me weak, but it does leave me a little nervous.

REPLY.

Why do anything? If you want action have a nose specialist find the point of bleeding and treat it.

COMPLAINS OF FATIGUE.

Mrs. J. W. writes:

1. I had a serious operation and after three months' rest am back at work. I get about eight hours' sleep daily. Is this enough?

2. By noon I am completely exhausted and just force myself to continue the rest of the day. How can I overcome this? I seem to be as tired in the morning as I was at night. Is this possible? I am 28 years old.

REPLY.

1. Probably not for you.
2. I expect you need a tonic. Do you get the right diet? Probably some sunlight and daily cold baths would pep you up.

LACTIC ACID FOODS.

W. D. L. writes: In what foods can one obtain lactic acid other than buttermilk and sour milk? Can one purchase lactic acid at a drug store? This is for treatment in starch indigestion.

REPLY.

Lactic acid is found in all sour milk preparations, such as buttermilk, sour milk, clabber, and cottage cheese.

It can be purchased in drug stores.

Lactose, or milk sugar, the antecedent of lactic acid, is present in all milk foods and is for sale in all drug stores.

DEEDING REAL ESTATE.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A. In Illinois, can one deed a piece of real estate to another to be held in trust by donor till death of donor, title thereafter to be in fee simple to survivor?

B. Is action contestable by relatives—in other words, is deed final and ironclad?

C. If yes is answer to A, will the state or nation collect inheritance tax, and if so, at the time of the deed or at the time of death?

D. How about collecting tax retroactively? C. E. W.

A. Yes. B. It can be made final. C. Depends upon whether the surrounding facts are such that the transaction is regarded as being made in contemplation of death. D. We do not understand the question. If you contemplate making such an arrangement, we advise you to employ a lawyer.

THROW TIN CANS.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—[Friend of the People.]—Adjoining my home in the 4700 block, South Kolin avenue, is an empty lot. The families next door make a practice of throwing their empty tin cans and rubbish there. Would you kindly stop this practice? E. B.

Report is made that investigation disclosed complaint was justified. Notice was served on offenders to desist from practice complained of. Assurance was given there would be no further cause for complaint and that the cans would be collected and placed in a receptacle for collection when city forces are going through alley as per schedule.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

FEBRUARY 22, 1865.

WASHINGTON. — It was ordered that a national salute be fired on Feb. 22 at noon at West Point and at every fort, arsenal, and army headquarters in the United States in honor of the restoration of the Union flag upon Fort Sumter. Maj. Gen. Q. A. Gillmore sent an official report of the fall of Charleston to Maj. Gen. Halleck. He says: "The city of Charleston and all its defenses came into our possession this morning (Feb. 18) with about 200 pieces of good artillery and a supply of fine ammunition. The enemy commenced evacuating all the works last night and Maj. Macbeth surrendered the city to the troops of Gen. Schimmelpfennig. The cotton warehouses, arsenals, quartermaster's stores, railroad bridges, two ironclads, and some other ships in the harbor were burned by the enemy."

CINCINNATI.—Col. Benjamin M. Anderson, the confederate officer on trial as one of the conspirators to burn Chicago last fall, who shot himself last Sunday, died of his wound.

WASHINGTON.—President Lincoln has ordered the release of most of the Washington merchants who were tried and convicted by Doubleday's commission on a charge of furnishing goods to rebels. They were released, it is said, on petition of reliable citizens of Washington. The trial and conviction has cost the government thousands of dollars, but the merchants were turned loose without even being made to pay the costs.

CHICAGO.—Seth T. Minckler and Miss Mary Meigs were married on Feb. 21 by the Rev. Arthur Swazey. C. W. P. Alexander and Emily Clarke, both of London, England, were married at Trinity church in this city on Feb. 19 by the Rev. Dr. Cummins.

FEBRUARY 22, 1900.

CAPE TOWN. — The special correspondent of the Cape Argus says: "Gen. Cronje is surrounded at Paardeburg Drift, but he is offering a stubborn resistance. The British are shelling the Boers vigorously and expect to capture the whole force."

LONDON.—Any hope that Gen. Cronje is running away from Lord Roberts' army without showing fight was dispelled when the war office issued a partial list of the killed and wounded at Paardeburg, where the battle is still raging. The list shows that nine officers were killed, 39 wounded, and one is missing. The list includes two of the best fighting generals at the front, MacDonald and Knox. MacDonald's wounds are serious, but Knox's injuries are not given.

LONDON.—The Boers claim to have captured the rear guard of Gen. French's column with 180 wagons. Buller crossed the Tugela and drove back the Boer rearguard. There is no confirmation of reports that Ladysmith has been relieved.

NEW YORK.—Olga Nethersole, who has been appearing in "Sappho" at Wallack's theater, was arraigned in police court, accused of violating that part of the penal code which regulates matters offending public morals. The complaint was made by reporters for a newspaper which has been conducting a crusade against the play. Miss Nethersole's arrest did not affect the play tonight, which was given as usual to the largest audience during its run.

LOS ANGELES.—Dr. Leslie E. Keeley, whose system of gold cure for the liquor habit has won for him a world-wide reputation, died here of heart disease at the age of 68.

FEBRUARY 22, 1920.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Organized labor lost its fight to defeat the railroad bill when the house, after five hours' debate, adopted the conference report on the measure by a note of 250 to 150. The senate, where approval of the measure is assured, will act on it Feb. 23. The President will have several days to consider the bill before railroads go back to private ownership on March 1 under the proclamation issued some time ago.

CHICAGO.—Tenants and landlords, face to face before the aldermanic rent committee seeking to curb gouging landlords, called each other names, shook their fists under each other's nose, and finally, with few exceptions, agreed to arbitrate.

LONDON.—Bolshevik forces commenced an attack on Poland on Feb. 20, according to a news agency dispatch received here. The soviet advances were repulsed after an all day fight, the report said.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Fred D. Foss, the man who sent the first alarm of fire over the department wires in Chicago when the conflagration of 1871 started, is ill at the Union League club here as a result of injuries suffered at Madison and Dearborn streets in Chicago last fall when he was struck by a taxicab. He is 75 years old.

CHICAGO.—When Adolph Luetgert, the "sausage magnate," was convicted after two trials for the murder of his wife, Louisa L., in 1898, one of his lawyers was Lawrence Harmon. Yesterday Mr. Harmon, at the age of 75, was committed to the Kankakee hospital for the insane.

COMMUNISM AMONG SEAMEN.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—The editorial in THE TRIBUNE in reference to the fire aboard the German liner Muenchen raises some interesting points in reference to Red activities among seamen throughout the world.

The position of the American Federation of Labor in reference to communism is well known. The International Seamen's union, as an A. F. of L. affiliate, shares and supports the position of the parent body in regard to Red philosophies and has been active in counteracting all efforts to spread those doctrines among seamen. The peculiar position occupied by seamen in society caused our organization to be among the first to be attacked by these alleged saviors of the world immediately following the world war, and they have continued their attacks upon the bona fide unions of seamen not only in this country but throughout the world to this day.

The Reds' first objective was the capture of existing unions of seamen for the purpose of using the seamen as carriers of Red propaganda to the four corners of the world. Failing to capture the legitimate organizations of seamen, they proceeded to set up dual organizations, using various names from time to time, for the purpose of destroying, if possible, the bona fide trade unions of seamen. It is with a sense of regret that I must state that some American shipowners apparently supported the Reds in their efforts. At least they permitted agents of the Red groups access to their docks and ships while our representatives were denied that right.

At the present time the Reds are promoting the so-called International Seamen's clubs and are maintaining such clubs in many of the seaports of the world, including some located in this country.

Gastonia provides an illustration of the fertile field shortsighted employers furnish for Red activities in their blind refusal to recognize and deal with legitimate trade unions. Little is heard of communism among well organized industries, such as the printing trades. The persistent refusal of the majority of American vessel owners to recognize the bona fide organizations of seamen and establish decent wages and working conditions creates a situation which the Reds can, and do, use for the furtherance of their destructive activities.

Treasurer, Sailors' Union of the Great Lakes.

THE POLICEMEN'S PLIGHT.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Today was pay day for the police department for the first half of January. The poor policeman who joined the force on July 1, 1929, received the large sum of $57 for the first half of January. These boys had not received any money since the first of the year. When the city council decided about the first of the year Chicago could get along with a smaller police force they were not taking bread and butter from their own table. What did they do? They dismissed 550 policemen who joined the police department July 1, 1929. These 550 men were laid off for five days. Isn't it an outrage to think that a city like Chicago would deduct those five days' pay from their salary? This is just another indication that Chicago needs a whole new city council.

WHAT LINCOLN WOULD THINK TODAY.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Allow me to congratulate you on the historical accuracy of your editorial, "Abraham Lincoln, Nationalist." You leave your readers to add a thought after you close with: "Lincoln was a nationalist. His humanitarianism was subordinated to his country's good." To bring this up to date we must add: "And if Lincoln lived today he would be an internationalist. His nationalism would be subordinated to a larger realization of his country's true interests."

PAUL ROSENFELS.

THE REPRESENTATIVES OF WET STATES.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Twenty-five people, all of whom I know to be wet Republicans, all favored Charles S. Deneen until I told them he voted for the Jones law.

This is only an example of how people pay attention to the doings in congress. Is there any wonder we have so many dry senators and representatives in Washington and Springfield to deny us a state or national referendum?

L. F. MEYER.

MAKING JURY SERVICE MORE ONEROUS.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—I was summoned to jury service in the Criminal court for the month of December. I served as a juror for two weeks and did my duty as an American citizen. I understand that there are about 500 jurors summoned for jury service every two weeks from all over Cook county. There is only one car line, Blue Island, 26th, and Kenton, that will take you to the Criminal Court building. I complained to the conductor about the service, as I had to wait for over twenty minutes for a car, and the conductor said: "Eight ruhs have been taken off this service and have never been put back." A juror has to make this trip twice a day, and in the cold weather, such as we have had this year, what a hardship it means to 500 jurors a day.

If the alderman of this ward, which I understand is the Twenty-second ward, would see about getting better car service, now that the street car company is asking for a new franchise, it might help the jurors who are forced by law to make these trips. And this same alderman should make it his business to see that there are more lights on the south side of 26th street, between California avenue and Sacramento avenue, along the high wall on the north side of the county jail, because it is so dark there. The darkness would be a great aid to escaping prisoners and also hold-ups of jurors and pedestrians who would have to go that way to get a car to go to their homes. GEO. JOHNSON.

THE SPORTING DRYS.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Much has been said about the wets being poor sports. They are likened to contestants who lose in games and are unwilling to abide by the decision. They are dissatisfied, they cheat, and they defy the supreme law of the land. They are a sorry lot. By way of comparison, look at the drys.

They were instrumental in passing a law which sent an agent out on the open highway where he shot a man peacefully driving home with his wife and children. The agent has been acquitted. Who, then, is guilty, if not the combined forces of the drys? The situation which made this outrage possible is the direct result of dry legislation. Are the drys sports enough to remedy, as far as possible, the damage done?

By all that is fair and human, the widow and children of Virkkula are entitled to a substantial pension. If the drys have any sporting instinct or sense of decency, they will see that it is provided. In other words, it remains to be seen whether there are any real sports within the dry ranks, whether in private life, in the membership of the Anti-Saloon league, or in the legislative halls of this country.

H. J. DOY.

STATE RIGHTS.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—I have admired exceedingly your courageous, forceful and persistent protests against the encroachments of federal statutes into the domain of state legislation. I recognize the necessity of a strong national government as to purely federal powers, but I can see the serious danger which threatens the freedom of the people from federal usurpations of state powers.

In this connection when I was reading recently the opinion of Chief Justice John Marsnall in the case of McCulloch vs. Maryland I was impressed by the following passage:

"No political dreamer was ever wild enough to think of breaking down the lines which separate the states, and of compounding the American people into one common mass."

Yet this very thing which Marshall said was never dreamed of is becoming a reality today. ROBERT HAIR.

AT THE LINCOLN MONUMENT.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—When I was too young to appreciate Lincoln's greatness I played around his huge statue in Lincoln park, an action that Arthur Burton censors because he says it encourages disrespect, and I couldn't, and still can't, see anything wrong in it. I used to play for hours at the foot with other children and surely we were not accused of desecrating his name when we were seen by passers by. Mr. Burton must remember that the statue is not a tomb and the sight of children playing around it is only symbolic of the kindly heart of the great man. JACK WALTERS.

The Ace of Spades

SYNOPSIS.

Jim Rutledge, accompanied by Sim Hart, is sent out with a herd of cattle to fulfill a contract made by his father, Chandler Rutledge. On the trail they are overtaken by other men from the Moss outfit, enemies of Rutledge. The Moss men start a stampede and drive off some of the Rutledge cattle. Jim recovers them, but in doing so shoots and kills one of the Moss raiders. The men of the Moss outfit swear to be revenged for the killing and pursue him. Jim takes refuge in a ranch house, where he finds Ellen Lawson alone in the house. She hides him when the Moss gang comes to the house inquiring for him and sends them off on another trail, even though she learns that he has injured her brother. Jim rides on into town, after saving Ellen from the unwelcome attentions of Tom Moss. Shear, the town marshal, threatens to arrest him for the attack on Steve Lawson, but Harrison Pendleton, an old trail driver, arrives on the scene in time to save him from arrest. Shortly afterwards Shear kills Doc Brown, who he claimed had threatened his life. This causes a great deal of excitement in the little cattle town. Jim goes to the local gambling den and is astonished to find Ellen Lawson there. She tells him she has come to speak to her brother, Steve. Jim guides her to where Steve is sitting at a poker game with Shear, Buck Roe and others. As they reach the table the lights go out and when the room is again lighted Shear is found crumpled in his chair dead with Jim's nails in him. Ellen's right hand is covered with blood. She had become separated from Jim in the dark and some one had jostled her. In putting out her hand for support she had touched the crumpled figure. Jim and Ellen are questioned by the sheriff, Manders, and Jim is arrested.

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

RELEASED.

Pete thumped his fist on the table, palpably annoyed. "When she's mine I'll promise to take that foolishness out of her, dad. I sure will, or burst a bull tryin'. I never did see a girl so bullheaded. She'll be hell to live with till she's broke."

"No!" Ellen cried.

"That, or Steve will be arrested. Take yore choice, my dear."

"If you'd listen to me——"

"I've listened a-plenty. This gabfest is over, girl. You tell that woman where you're staying, the widow Glen, to buy what defunnies you need to fix you up for a wedding and to charge it to me. Get the stuff at Wright's. Say she's got to have everything ready by 3 o'clock tomorrow. And you'd better be on the dose—if you are fond of Steve. That'll be all now. . . . Want to go, too, Buck?"

Roe had come into the room and stood watching the girl with amusement. "Fixin' up a little love nest, eh?" he asked her.

Ellen left the room without answering him. Her eyes were blind with tears. Hope was dead in her heart. She would have to do as Devil Dave said. How could she stand against him alone? She must marry Pete. There was no other way to save Steve. But she would never, never tell any lies that would hurt Jim Rutledge.

Sheriff Manders sat in the cell of his star prisoner smoking an after breakfast cigar. The officer was taking it easy, to use his own words. He occupied the only chair, and his feet were crossed and rested on the bed. Through a screen of smoke he observed his well worn boots lazily.

"I got to get me a new pair of boots," he mentioned casually. "These

an all run down at the heel. I hate to break in a new pair. Funny how a blow gets attached to his old clothes, like they were friends."

"That's so," Jim agreed, looking at the boots indifferently.

"Well, that's got nothing to do with the price of longhorns, as the old saying is. I reckon I'm here to third degree you. But what would it get me? You'll tell me what you want to tell and no more. Probably you're talking out on me right now."

He had hit a bull's-eye. Jim was holding out a good deal. No more definite reason urged him to keep his own counsel than the desire not to broadcast suspicions that might reach the unknown guilty party.

"Why should I hold back on you?" the young trail driver asked, smiling at him. "I'm more interested in finding who killed Shear than you are."

"In a case like this everybody holds back something," Manders complained. "If they didn't the trail would lead right to the man we want. Maybe it's something that puts them in bad, or points a finger at a friend; or maybe it's something that might help an enemy. Then the public hollers because the officers don't get the guilty guy."

"Do you really think that is true, sheriff? That everybody holds back something, I mean."

"Sure. Take your friend, Miss Ellen." Manders turned his cold gaze on the prisoner as he continued: "Her evidence wouldn't be worth a last year's almanac if she knew anything against you."

Jim flushed, and was annoyed because he did. "That's plumb foolish, sheriff. She's seen me only twice."

"No value a-tall. She's as sweet and nice a girl as I've seen for quite some time, but in that case I wouldn't give a plugged nickel for her testimony. So there you are."

"I don't think she's holding back anything, but it's certain some others are. For instance, Pete Moss and Buck Roe claim I fired the last shot. They are lying. Maybe they know who did. They sat one on each side of Shear. Their legs and their elbows must have been touching his, they were that close. Looks reasonable to me they must know something about who killed him."

"Is that any more reasonable than that you ought to know who took your knife—if anybody?" Manders asked, eyes stabbing into his.

"It looks so to me, but I'm an interested party. How do you pry information out of a witness who doesn't want to tell it?"

The sheriff laughed sourly. "If I knew that, fellow, I would have had this killer in jail before now—that is, if I haven't got him here in this cell."

"I don't reckon you have, sheriff," Jim replied. "That is, speakin' for myself. I didn't do it. Did you?"

For a moment Jim regretted his pleasantry. The bulbous eyes of the sheriff lost their friendliness. They bored into those of the prisoner.

"Thought you meant it at first," he said. "Better be careful what you say about this thing even when you're joking. Words are like sticks of dynamite, liable to explode anywhere."

"That's so," agreed Jim. "A fellow can be too plumb careless of them."

He spoke lightly, but his mind had picked up and was turning over a curious bit of food for speculation. Manders had stated a general proposition. Was it true of him, too? Had he also something to conceal?

"You Texans sure stick together," the sheriff said, reverting to the object of his call. "Looks like every trail driver in town has been at me to turn you loose. Not one of 'em has a vote here, but Dave Moss and his men have. Politically, it won't do me any good to free you."

"Nor any harm," Jim added. "You won't get the votes of the Moss faction, anyhow. So what's the diff?"

The shrewd eyes of Manders observed the young man. "You're nobody's fool," he remarked. "Well, you and your friends win—for the present. Personally, I think you're safer right here in my calaboose than any other place. Don't blame me if Dave Moss has you bumped off."

"I wouldn't be here to blame you," Jim commented. "I've got to take my fighting chance of that."

"Humph! It wouldn't be a fighting chance if they strike at you. What kind of a chance did Shear have?"

Their eyes met. So that was Manders' opinion. Naturally it would be, but not as reflected. A man is not a logical thinking machine. His thoughts are affected by his hopes and by his interests. The sheriff would prefer to think that this crime had been committed by his foes rather than by his friends. So would look to the Moss crowd as its author rather than to the Brown brothers.

Doctor Aubrey drew back a cloth that covered the table. Seven or eight fresh plaster casts were exhibited to view.

"I don't know what good they will do you, Jim, but there they are," he said.

"You certainly did a good job," young Rutledge approved. "I notice you've even got 'em labeled."

The doctor was a heavy set, middle aged man with a fine head of silvery hair. He had a precise, rather oracular, manner of speech. Before he spoke he had a way of settling himself on his feet and clearing his throat, as though to put the matter due deliberation.

"I thought I might as well be thorough," he replied. "There are here casts of three sets of footprints. I should say partial prints in some cases. Unfortunately, numbers five, six and seven are defective. Another foot walked out a portion of the track."

"Three sets," Jim repeated eagerly.

"Without doubt three. Examine number one. A large boot made it, one comparatively new, with long pointed heel set well forward."

Jim nodded. "Yes, sir. A cowboy's boot, sure enough, made that track. I guess he was a big man."

"Take the one I've labeled two." The doctor set his feet and his shoulders before he proceeded. "Made by a short, broad boot with a heel not as long or so pointed."

Good morning!

"Chasing Rainbows" is a genuinely delightful offering.

We must admit that the piece is another "backstage" revelation and that, by fits and starts, it reminds you of "Broadway Melody"—in which Bessie Love and Charles King also appeared. But, these two admissions off the chest, we can let enthusiasm have its way and declare that "Chasing Rainbows" is the baby that can show "Broadway Melody" and a lot of other musical shows we could name, how it ought to be done.

Directness of treatment is the punch behind the charm. Charles F. Riesner, who made that laugh wonder, "The Better 'Ole," directed "Chasing Rainbows." If he hadn't slipped by slopping over in a couple of scenes featuring those ludicrous ladies, Moran and Dressler, this output would sure have got four stars. The parts mentioned have their moments—but the moments should have been seconds.

As was true in "Broadway Melody," the work of Bessie Love leads the van. She is a dancer, a singer and a darling and there's no doubt but that the right somebody could make a Bernhardt of her. If inclined to quarrel with the last assertion, please note especially some of her scenes with Charles King. THEN write in and tell me what you think about it. (Which brings us to the story.)

Carlie (Bessie) and Terry (Mr. King) have been stage dance partners for a long, long time. She mothers him and he looks on her just as a dear sister and pal, not realizing the truth, which is that she loves him madly and whole-heartedly.

Terry always is falling in and out of love with other girls in the road show, and Carlie has learned not to take his amours seriously. But when Daphne arrives on the scene—she has to. (This is as far as I go in revealing the plot.)

"Chasing Rainbows" abounds in clever situations, snap, human interest, bright dialogue, catchy music and effective staging. It has plenty of droll humor—note Jack Benny's contributions as the understanding stage manager of the "Good-by Broadway" show.

But Bessie Love . . .! Ah, there's a natural! She may not be the whole show—BUT——!

Wouldst care to know how "they" do things in Hollywood? Step right over to the State-Lake, ladies and gentlemen, and learn about directors, producers, premieres, leading ladies, dance specialty dames, camera men, parties, press agents, talkies, and tenors from the musical extravaganza "Let's Go Places."

The things that happen in this piece DO happen, because a certain blushing youth with a tenor voice and picture aspirations is mistaken by the movie colony for a temperamental celebrity bearing the same name who fails to arrive when expected.

Charles Judels as the t. c. gives a bangup performance—the best this show has on tap. Frank Richardson as a sort of press agent-promoter runs a second. Walter Catlett is smooth and convincing as a producer. Lola Lane, as a lady star, is pleasantly natural and the rank and file speak their pieces well. Joseph Wagstaff, the leading man, is rather a weak actor, I think, and I'm not keen about his voice—but, then, what do I know about singing.

The picture is commendably directed and moves along interestingly enough, sprouting several pretty songs as it goes. It has a trick ending that OUGHT to tickle you.

See you tomorrow.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

Do you like to change your place of residence every year or two?

The Answers.

H. L. Bredberg, 1227 Eddy street, salesman.—I do not. It is expensive and disrupts your mode of living. Nearby acquaintances are lost and one has to start in again with new neighbors, which may not be so good.

Miss L. Oxen Handler, 319 South Central Park avenue, secretary.—I do not. I hate the bother, expense, and inconvenience of moving. I have done it more frequently than I have cared for, but we do things we dislike in hope of betterment. I am old fashioned in this respect.

J. B. Moore, Western Springs, real estate.—Well, as I own a home I am not qualified to speak. I cut out moving quite a while back. It didn't pay. It was too much to the moving man. Some people like a change of residence.

Miss Laura Schwarr, 4450 Sheridan road, actress.—I do not. Do you know why? I am a member of one of the oldest families in Chicago, and my folks stayed on one piece of property for over ninety years. I moved from that place not so long ago.

Harry E. Rice Jr., 7 South Dearborn street, vice president National Consumers' Credit system.—The only importance I place on it is that I believe people should arrange to live in the same community. In a large city like Chicago one doesn't get the real home life except through a long period of residence in one or nearly one spot.

Scientist to Show an Einstein Test of the Relativity Theory

The public is invited to attend a demonstration of the fundamental experiment on which the Einstein theory of relativity is based, to be given by Prof. Dayton C. Miller of the Case School of Applied Sciences at Cleveland, before the Midwest Association of Sigma Xi on Wednesday evening. The lecture, to be preceded by a dinner, also open to the public, will be held on the twenty-second floor of the Medical and Dental Arts building. Many leading scientists of the middle west will be present.

The experiment, originally performed at Case by Prof. Albert A. Michelson, famous physicist of the University of Chicago, and the late Prof. Edward W. Morley, is known as the ether-drift experiment. Their results indicated that the velocity of light, measured in the direction of the movement of the solar system, was the same as that of light at right angles to the movement of the solar system. Einstein postulated his theory on the accuracy of that finding.

Recently, however, Prof. Miller has repeated the experiment and announces that he has obtained results indicating that there is a difference in the time required for the trip of the two beams of light. If he is correct, the Einstein theory collapses.

Elmhurst College's Alumni Do Honor to Dr. Daniel Irion

To honor the seventy-fifth birthday of Dr. Daniel Irion, president emeritus of Elmhurst college, 250 alumni, faculty members, and friends of that institution gave him a birthday feast in the college refectory at Elmhurst last evening. The Rev. C. W. Locher, Webster Groves, Mo., president of the evangelical synod, was toastmaster.

Following the banquet Irion hall, a 75 room dormitory recently erected on the campus, was dedicated. Dr. Irion was one of the original fourteen students at Elmhurst, graduating in 1871. Four years later he returned as a member of the faculty and in 1880 was elected president, an office he held until 1919, when he retired and became president emeritus.

Harvard, '05, Plans for $250,000 Fund as Gift

It is a tradition at Harvard that classes, on the silver anniversary of their graduation, return with a substantial gift to their alma mater. Yesterday the Harvard club of Chicago met at the University club to lay plans for their share of a $250,000 gift to be presented at the class of '05 reunion in June. W. O. Batcheller is chairman of the club's committee. Other members present were Theodore Sheldon, Cecil Martin, Neil C. Ward, Ray Daniels, W. H. Lord, Frank Mason.

Pupils Call N. U. Faculty Small, Pay Too Little

Say Overcrowding Harms Teaching.

Northwestern university's college of liberal arts, the main unit of the institution, is so badly overcrowded and understaffed that effective instruction is impossible, the faculty is consistently underpaid, and scores of capable students and scientists have severed their connections with the university because of inadequate equipment for research. Such is the consensus among faculty and students, as presented yesterday in the report of the faculty committee appointed last fall to consider the expenditure of $8,000,000 left to Northwestern by the late Milton H. Wilson, chairman of the board of directors of Wilson brothers.

Only one new building, Harris hall, has been erected in the last 25 years on the Evanston campus, while the enrollment has quadrupled, the report emphasizes.

"The present provisions for the physical and biological sciences," the report says, "are sadly insufficient to meet the needs. Science hall, which houses physics and chemistry, probably was adequate a generation and a half ago, when the student body numbered less than 400."

Building needs listed by the faculty were placed in the following order: Two buildings for the physical and biological sciences; accommodations for mathematics, relieving the crowded condition of Swift hall of engineering; adequate housing for philosophy and psychology; a language building; a chapel; laboratory facilities for the social sciences; freshman dormitories; a student union; a woman's building.

"The quality of the teaching," the report comments, "depends upon the quality of the teacher. If the best men are to be retained on the teaching staff of the college there will need to be a marked adjustment of salaries upward."

To keep men of recognized ability with the university these changes in salaries must be made, the report says: Professors' salaries must be increased from $7,000 to $10,000; for associate professors, from $5,000 to $7,500; for assistant professors, from $3,300 to $6,000; for instructors, from $2,400 to $3,600.

A canvass of the faculty revealed that the majority of the teachers find their present salaries adequate for only two-thirds of their expenses, and in most cases do outside work to earn the remaining one-third.

PLANNED CAPITAL

Today, as one feature of the general celebration of Washington's birthday, American engineers will honor one of the first in their profession by entreating congress to immortalize Washington's engineering genius by making a national memorial of a little stone house now standing in the Georgetown section of the District of Columbia. The house was used by Washington and Thomas Jefferson when they were surveying the nation's capital in 1791. The request to congress is being made by the American Association of Engineers.

The association, according to its announcement yesterday, declared that extensive research has revealed that Washington was the real planner of the national capital and not Maj. Charles L. L'Enfant, a French engineer heretofore credited with the feat. A bill asking congress to authorize an appropriation of $200,000 to purchase and restore the stone house as the survey headquarters, now at 3049 M street, Northwest, Washington, had been introduced by Representative Fred A. Britten, Chicago.

"Few of us know Washington as our great pioneer," William A. Boone Douglas, chairman of the legal research committee of the association, said yesterday.

"After the revolution and his presidency, when the senate passed a bill fixing the seat of government on the Potomac river, President Washington was appointed engineer-in-chief by congress. Then he commenced the plan of a city so beautiful that it would forever fit the country's needs. Jefferson was second in command. We owe the beauty of Washington to the first President's engineering genius. He insisted that the capitol, the President's house and other public buildings in form, size and elegance should look beyond the present day."

More than 200 children from Kenosha county schools will spend Washington's birthday in Chicago on their sixth annual educational tour of the city.

Last night the Union League club held its 43d annual Washington birthday dinner. The Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Washington, D. C., was the speaker.

At the Hamilton club this afternoon at 2 o'clock Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom will speak. William D. Saltiel will act as chairman.

A message from President Hoover in response to an invitation to the Glen Ellyn Washington birthday naval holiday celebration to be held in the high school auditorium tonight was received yesterday by W. W. Shaw Jr. of the Lions club, sponsoring the event.

"The indomitable will of George Washington insured the success of the American revolution, and his towering moral authority was the decisive force in welding the states into a solid union under the constitution," the President said. "Every reminder of his multitudinous services to his country helps to strengthen the reign of free government under the law that was the ideal of his life."

At the Chicago Historical society school children, Boy and Girl Scouts, and Camp Fire Girls will assemble and march to the Drake hotel. There Frank J. Loesch and Dr. James A. James will speak at the celebration of the Pioneer Citizens' club.

The Heroes of '76 are giving a military ball and dinner this evening at the Medinah Athletic club. In connection with the ball there will be an elaborate military pageant, showing the history of the United States army from the revolutionary days to date.

HIS CANDOR SHOWN

Dispatches yesterday indicated the reappearance of important documents dealing with the career and policies of George Washington. From New York came word of the purchase of papers, accumulated in the British headquarters in America during the revolutionary war.

Thousands of such papers already are in the possession of the University of Michigan, which at the first of this year also obtained those of Gen. Sir Thomas Gage, chief British commander in the colonies, who retained that place until after the battle of Bunker Hill when he was superseded by Sir William Howe.

In yesterday's dispatches was one from Boston. It indicated that among the very many foreigners who sought commissions in the revolutionary army and later in that of the young republic was a distant relative of George Washington. It appears that one of the Washingtons had fled from England in 1684 and 1685, and James Washington, that man's great-grandson, had written asking for a commission to which George Washington, as President, replied, urging against his coming from Europe to seek such a place. This letter is in line with statements Washington is known to have made in other cases.

Side Lights on Struggle.

New York, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Acquisition of headquarters papers of the British army in America during the revolution, correspondence between the English and American commanders, was announced today by Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, dealer and collector.

The manuscripts, he said, numbering about 20,000, were acquired from the Royal institution of Great Britain, where they had been since 1804. Dr. Rosenbach said the institution had sold them primarily to finance the reconstruction of its original building and theater in London.

Included in the collection are the colonial declaration of war, bearing the signature of John Hancock, and a letter from George Washington to Gen. Howe in which the declaration was inclosed; a letter from Washington to Sir Henry Clinton explaining the necessity for the death penalty for Maj. Andre; letters from Lord Cornwallis to Sir Henry Clinton after his surrender, and various other correspondence and records of the French, British and American forces. Many of the documents never have been published.

Advises Far Off Relative.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 21.—(AP)—The Christian Science Monitor, in a dispatch from Vienna, today said that among the important documents possessed by Georg Freiherr Von Washington, last member of the European branch of the Washington family, were records of the family history written by his grandfather, James Washington, and a letter from President George Washington of the United States. Von Washington died recently in Graz, the capital of the Austrian province of Styria.

The great-grandfather of the James Washington referred to in the letter fled from England in 1684 or 1685, and reached Holland via Portugal. He was the ancestor of the European branch of the family. Georg Freiherr Von Washington was honorary knight of the order of St. John and captain of cavalry [rittmeister].

The letter from President Washington to James Washington, after saying there was little doubt they both descended from the same stock, continued:

"The regular course of application for military appointments is to the President of the United States, through the secretary of war—but it would be deceptious not to apprise you beforehand that it does not accord with the policy of this government to bestow offices, civil or military, upon foreigners to the exclusion of our own citizens;—first, because there is an animated zeal in the latter to serve their country;—and second only, because the former, seldom content with the rank they sustained in the service of their own country, look for higher appointments in this;—which, when bestowed, unless there is obvious cause to justify the measure, is pregnant with discontent — and therefore is not often practiced;—except in those branches of the military science which relate to engineering and gunnery; for in these our military establishment is defective; and men of known and acknowledged abilities, with ample testimonials thereof, would certainly be encouraged.

"Deeming it better to give this candid detail, than to raise hopes that might prove fallacious, is the best apology I can offer for my plain dealing—at the same time, be pleased to accept assurance of my being,

"Sir,

"Your most obedient and very humble servant,

"G. WASHINGTON."

Mischa Mischakoff New Concert Master for Stock's Orchestra

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mischa Mischakoff, violinist, made his first bow to a Chicago audience yesterday afternoon, and about an hour later signed his name to a document which will assure him a number of others in the future. He was the soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Orchestra hall, and as soon as might be after the program was over he was engaged as concertmaster of the orchestra, succeeding Jacques Gordon, who is leaving at the end of this season.

Negotiations have been pending for some time, but were concluded with great promptness once he got into the city. Mr. Mischakoff is a native of Russia, a graduate of the conservatory at Petrograd, and in 1917, when he was only twenty years old, he became concertmaster of the Petrograd orchestra under Albert Coates. Later he made concert tours of Europe and after coming to America was concertmaster of the Philadelphia orchestra under Leopold Stokowski. This season he has been concertizing again.

As closely as one can judge from a single appearance as soloist, Mr. Stock made a wise choice. In that venerable but still lively and curveting warhorse, the Tschaikowsky Concerto, Mr. Mischakoff created the impression of being an uncommonly competent artist, competent with the workmanship that comes from studious, intelligent attention to the music pages, their notes and indications, rather than from a sudden burst of inspiration. His tone is commanding, fine, and exact, his technical display is polished to a high stage of accuracy, and these materials he uses to interpret what the composer has put down in the way he put it, and that is an entirely logical, warmly sympathetic, and wholly admirable fashion. Needless to say, he at once became greatly popular with the audience.

For the first or orchestral part of the program Mr. Stock went back twenty-two years in the records, bringing out two works that had appeared during the orchestra's seventeenth season and not since. One was Marco Enrico Bossi's "Intermezzi Goldoniani," a suite for string orchestra, pleasantly and melodiously conceived after the manner of a couple of centuries ago, with stately dances, graceful serenade, lively tunes of various

This is the work which, by Strauss permission if not his actual authorization, tells the tale of a day in the home of a father, mother, and child. It is too bad that Strauss did not insist upon silence and let his music speak for itself, for trills in the woodwind representing the baby's bath, clarinet passages illustrating the father's burst of ill temper, and the like—this is no exaggeration, they are there—are comic rather than musical.

Mr. Stock maintains that the way Strauss has interwoven his themes is a marvel of contrapuntal ingenuity, but he also admits that they look better on paper than they sound in performance. It is typical Strauss music throughout, with spots here and there of the typical Strauss charm, but in general Strauss here is heavy handed.

Earth Cometlike, Scientist Declares; Explains His Theory

New York, Feb. 21.—[Special.]—The theory that the earth has a tail like a comet, visible under favorable conditions, as the zodiacal light that long has interested science, was outlined today by Dr. E. O. Hulburt of the naval research laboratory in Washington. He spoke at the annual meeting of the American Physical society at Columbia university.

This tail, Dr. Hulburt explained, is the extension of the upper spray of the earth's atmosphere, which surrounds the earth in a great ovoid ring, and lengthens out perhaps a million miles or more on the side of the earth away from the sun. This ring extends perhaps 30,000 miles from the earth on the side toward the sun.

This luminous envelope around the earth is formed, Dr. Hurlburt believes, in much the same manner as is the corona which surrounds the sun and is so spectacularly visible in total eclipses. The earth's corona is so faint, however, that it is unlikely that it could be seen by a hypothetical observer on a neighboring planet.

"The zodiacal light," said Dr. Hulburt, "can be seen only on clear, starless nights. It appears as a faint band of light, sometimes stretching clear across the heavens.

"At its far end ions continually stream away in the direction of the sun's rays, so that the ring merges into a sort of comet's tail."

Dr. Hulburt added that a bit of the earth's atmosphere was constantly passing out into space, but that since this leakage constituted only a millionth part of the atmosphere in a million years, there was no need for alarm.

Tryouts for Civic Players Start on Next Wednesday

Tryouts for the first play to be given by the Chicago Civic players will be held at the Sherwood Music school in the Fine Arts building, Wednesday, Feb. 26, at 8 p. m. The tryouts are open to those over the age of 17, who may present short scenes, readings, or monologues of no more than five minutes' duration. The play to be produced will be chosen after the tryouts.

Indian Bones, Other Relics Presented to University of Chicago

A collection of bones and tools forming one of the most extensive and systematic collections on Indian archeology yet made, have been presented to the University of Chicago by George Langford of Joliet. The collection contains skeletons of 400 Illinois Indians and about 10,000 crude implements and ornaments.

The relics will be added to material excavated by university expeditions during the last four years and are expected to aid in the university's effort to write the story of Illinois Indians from the days before Columbus to the coming of the white man.

"Mr. Langford's contribution is of the utmost importance," Dr. Wilton M. Krogman, who will direct the study of the collection, said yesterday. "It represents an intelligent effort to conserve the prehistoric remains in the state against careless plundering. Because Mr. Langford has documented every bit of evidence, it will become valuable for scientific purposes."

Mr. Langford has been made a research associate of the university, but will continue his work in Joliet.

British Woman Explorer on Her Way to Amazon

Violet Cressy-Marcks, an English explorer and soldier of fortune, has come to the United States for a look about before tackling the Amazon river in South America. The young woman, who is well under thirty, looks scarcely more than a girl, with yellow curly hair and blue eyes. But she has in the last six years traveled in most foreign countries, hunting their out-of-the-way places for the sake of solitude and science.

"Civilization doesn't give one much time to think," Mrs. CressyMarcks explained yesterday, shortly after her arrival in Chicago from New York."

Britain May Reject Brangwyn's Painting for House of Lords

LONDON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—What may develop into one of the greatest sensations England has known in many years was hinted in the Daily Mail today.

That paper said it understood that the royal commission of fine arts was not satisfied that the huge mural painting which Frank Brangwyn, Royal Academician, has been doing for the house of lords, is suitable for its surroundings.

Brangwyn, whose fame is world wide and who has done many striking pieces in the United States, has been working three years on this picture for the royal gallery of the house of lords. He has another three years' work to do.

Five sections of the painting were put in place recently and the royal commission viewed them. The commission has prepared a report, which thus far has not been published, but the Mail understands that the commission disapproved the work, although it did not make any reflection on the artistic merits of the painting.

Mrs. Hutchins Has Her Day with Sculpture

BY THALIA

The tea to open the exhibit of portrait busts by Maude Phelps Hutchins at the Chester Johnson galleries yesterday afternoon was crowded and fashionable.

If the interest and admiration aroused is indicative, Mrs. Hutchins has also to be as popularly encouraged in her professional guise, as she is as the wife of her husband, Robert Maynard Hutchins, the new president of the University of Chicago, have been welcomed socially since their arrival here. The tea tables were bright with great bunches of yellow roses, freesia, and pussywillows. Mrs. Walter S. Brewster in pale blue frock and hat was one of the first of the matrons to take her place at the tea urns. Mrs. Hutchins wore a smart beige tailored dress and a brown draped beret. Mrs. William Mitchell Blair in a suit of brown tweed and a cunning small brown and tan hat, and her sister, Mrs. Charles Edward Brown Jr. in a springish black print with organdy collar and cuffs, had come in from Lake Forest to be present.

Others included Mrs. Francis Johnson wearing a stunning black coat trimmed with Persian lamb and a chic black felt hat; Miss Mabel Linn, Mrs. Rosecrans Baldwin, Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, and her daughter, Mrs. Stuart H. Otis; Miss Florence Lowden, Mrs. George T. Langhorne; both Mrs. John Elliott Jenkins, senior and junior; Mrs. E. Harris Brewer, Mrs. Arthur A. Small, Mrs. William G. Hibbard, Mrs. J. M. Patterson, Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, Mrs. John Paul Welling, Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, and Mrs. William N. Pelouze.

The engagement of Miss Ada Josephine Bruce, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Angus Bruce of Boston, Mass., to Henry Kent Chapin Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kent Chapin of 2430 Lake View avenue, was announced with due celebration at an announcement dinner given by the Bruces last evening at their residence.

Miss Bruce is a student at Emerson college in Boston. Mr. Chapin, who is a grandson of the late Charles A. Chapin, attended St. Albans school and the University of Illinois. He and Miss Bruce are to be married next fall. Miss Bruce is a niece of Miss Clara Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hines of Evanston have left to join the winter colony at Palm Beach, Fla. They are to be guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Howell Hoffman Howard of Dayton, O., at their house, Casa Loma, which they are occupying for the winter.

The departures continue at such a rate that it's surprising there are any members of our fashionable populace left in town at all. Chicagoans sailing tonight on the S. S. Bremen apparently are not daunted by the tales of the terrific seas the ship encountered on its last trip across the ocean.

Mrs. George B. Dryden of Evanston and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Eastman Dryden of 425 Aldine avenue, are going over to Cairo, Egypt, to join their respective husbands, who have been hunting big game. The Duncan Hodges of Lake Forest are to make a visit in England. Frieda Leider and Alexander Kipnis of the opera company and Mrs. Kipnis also sail on the Bremen for Europe.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert H. Harvey of 340 Barry avenue and their daughter, Miss Roberta Harvey leave tomorrow night for their usual winter stay in California. The John B. Drakes and their two daughters, Elizabeth and Katherine, are also taking the Golden State Limited for California tomorrow evening.

Mrs. Dwight Smith of Evanston and her daughter sailed from New York yesterday on the Pan America, which is headed for Bermuda, Rio de Janiero, and Buenos Aires.

Mrs. Honore Palmer and her sons, Honore Jr., and Potter D'Orsay Palmer and the newly married James Beach Clows are listed among the passengers on the Majestic, which sailed last night from New York. Mrs. Clow was Miss Edith Louise Newcomet. The Clows are on their way to Egypt for their honeymoon, and the Palmer family is on its way to Paris.

The Ralph Gardners of 223 East Delaware place accompanied the gay party that included Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift and her youngsters; Mrs. George R. Nichols Jr. and her two sons; Lawrence M. Viles and Lawrence Jr.; Huntly Gilbert, and the Clarles Daniel Freys and their children, who went to French Lick Springs, Ind., for a Washington's birthday week-end party.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—The secretary of the interior and Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur gave a dinner tonight, having among their guests the Chinese minister and Mme. Wu, Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts, the assistant secretary of the navy and Mrs. David S. Ingalls, and Dr. and Mrs. Dwight L. Wilbur, who are visiting the hosts, parents of Dr. Wilbur.

Tomorrow night, Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur will have the President and Mrs. Hoover at dinner and will have a number of out of town guests.

Professor Urges City Adopt Industrial Management Plan

If the city management plan of government based upon the organization of private industry did not work, industries would have devised another plan, Prof. Clarence Ridley of the University of Chicago declared yesterday.

He addressed six women's organizations in an all day conference on the advisability of the adoption of the city manager plan for Chicago. It was held in the Woman's City club. Prof. A. R. Hatton, head of the political science department of Northwestern university, was another speaker.

Prof. Ridley declared government was the greatest industry in the United States and should be run as an industry is run. In the city manager plan, he explained, the voters elect a board of directors, called a council. That body chooses the city manager, and if he does not produce results he must get out, he said.

Youngsters Told to Let Reducing Entirely Alone

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If any more of you little girls, 13, 14, and 15, write in telling me you want to reduce, I'll write and tell your maws on you, or I'll put a policeman on your trail and have you locked up as menaces to your own good health, or I'll do something just as terrible to you as you youngsters are threatening to do to yourselves.

Young girls of 13, 14, and 15 have no right to be busying their heads at all with reducing talk. I suppose, however, you children are not to blame, since you hear it on every side. Perhaps some of your mothers, too, in their zeal to reform their own appetites, make the rest of the family do penance at the same time.

The mothers, however, that I hear from do not belong to this group. They're sick at heart, themselves, over the failing appetites of their young daughters. And they are heart and soul against reducing by anybody. Which is foolish, too. But where their young daughters are concerned they are absolutely right. And, if necessary, they should stand over the young sinners with an old fashioned switch and force them to eat their meals three times a day.

The figures about increased tuberculosis among young girl are not scarehead figures. They are reliable, and while the fault is not always reducing, this early loss of strength from insufficient food intake prepares the way for later difficulties.

But that is not the point so much as that an undernourished looking girl is not a pretty girl. Nothing but food can make an undernourished one look pretty, either. One of the greatest charms of the early teens is just that lovely rounding out of figure that you cannot have if you go without meals or even foods that your mothers may go without if they are plump.

You can be moderate in your eating of sweets and you can get along without eating between meals, but at the table you want to eat—and a good, healthy meal, too. If, perchance, one of you honestly is abnormally fat, your business is to ask your mother to take you to a physician and have him determine whether the disturbance is not of the glandular type. But if you are normal and only want to be skinny because you think it is more stylish, don't ask me for help, because you won't get it.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

W. W. A.: COLD CREAM WILL overcome that rough or chapped condition of the skin. After the wash up at night, massage the cream into the skin and allow as much as possible to remain on during the night. Protect the pillow with an old towel.

Pajamas Flare in Seagoing Fashion

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Paris has long since accepted pajamas as an essential element of every chic woman's wardrobe. Whether she is adventurous or stay at home, she needs some of these sartorial aids to relaxation. They encourage those leisurely dreams on the sandy shore or the downy divan that do such wonders toward rebuilding nerves frayed by the dizzy round of the Paris season.

Gone are the days when pajamas were considered boyish. There is nothing masculine about the new ones. They are as gracefully becoming as the most floaty tea gowns, and Parisiennes are wearing them for their afternoons "at home" and, in glorified form for intimate dinners and the smaller evenings. Trousers, by the way, cannot in themselves be considered masculine. The most feminine of women—Turkish, Hindu, Chinese—have always worn them. The new pajamas are more ample than most of our skirts and they certainly do fulfill that suppressed desire for freedom.

Young Couple Has Everything to Offer Child, Doris Thinks

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am 22, have been married three years to a man 27, and without a doubt we are the happiest, most contented pair imaginable. Our two year courtship and our married life have been nothing but sunshine. Like every one else, we have had our troubles—but we love each other.

"We have a lovely apartment, no debts or bills of any kind, and $1,000 in the bank. My husband's salary is only $40 a week. Is this sufficient income and nest egg on which to bring up one child? We are anxious to have one child, but we want it to have every opportunity. We would want it to be as well dressed as other children and, of course, to have a college education. That is looking pretty far ahead, perhaps, but we both feel we would rather not have any than to have to scrape to get along.

"THE JONES."

It sounds to me like a pretty royal welcome awaiting that young hopeful when it arrives! If you two didn't have the thousand you would still have the most precious thing in the world to offer—a home where real love dwells.

But why all the planning with material comforts uppermost in your minds? Why worry about the college education? And why put a one-child limit on your family before you know anything about the happiness that children bring into lives? Of course, they bring trouble, worry, expense, and sleepless nights and dozens of other things. On the other hand, they bring unparalleled happiness. Also, they often solve a limited salary problem. Not always, of course, but so many, many times have I seen it happen that when a child or children arrive on the scene, father discovers for himself business talents he never dreamed he had before. Many a married man's progression dates from the arrival of a first young family member.

But the thing is that we cannot order our lives the exact way we want them to be or would like them to be. The planned college careers may turn out to be futile plans. The child may choose another course. Again, countless numbers of college careers have been accomplished without parental planning and due to the youngsters' own grit and ambition.

The whole point is that there is not any "system" by which you can beat the game of chance that life is. So, you might just as well do a little reckless gambling and have your children early, even though it may upset your well laid plans. You've heard about the well laid plans of mice and men and how oft they go astray!

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

End of a Romance.

"Dear Miss Blake: During the summer I met a girl up in the country. We corresponded for three months. I wrote a letter to her a month ago and received no answer.

"PUZZLED."

She has had time to answer, if it were her intention to do so, Puzzled. I guess it means the end of that little romance.

CLEAR CUT SKILL, ABSENCE OF FADS—THAT'S HUTCHINS ART

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Maude Phelps Hutchins today must be welcomed in her own personality, that of a clever and able and sincere workman, a sculptor. The feminine of sculptor does not meet her case at all. She is as devoid of frills and affectations as a boy, in her own refreshing person and in her approach to her profession. An exhibit of portrait busts by her opened yesterday in the Chester H. Johnson galleries, Fine Arts building.

Maude Phelps Hutchins is deft with her tools, clear visioned and understanding. She combines the purity of line of the classicist with the naive sentiment of the portraitist. Her models are persons to her, first, subjects, afterwards. She works with little effort and finishes in a clear cut, practical fashion, leaving no loose ends nor meaningless details to clog one's appreciation of the character she has developed. In bronze, in marble, in terra cotta, each medium is clay in her fingers. Her ideas work through to convincing and natural anticipated goals.

There is a portrait of a little girl, "Lolly," a fat child with hair as smoothly winged as a Breton peasant's cap. She is a jolly mite, the butt of all family jokes until rescued by Mrs. Hutchins who chose her from an entire attractive family to "sculp." There is "Philip," a boyish head, who in the flesh spent most of his time when he was supposed to be sitting for the artist, under the table. There is "Anne," a young lady of probably five who sat about three times and always audibly wished her luck onto her older sister!

The "Yale Oarsmen" is a brilliant impression of the Yale spirit made flesh. He typifies "Old Eli" in the way the college posters have made us see Yale for years. As Mrs. Hutchins remarked, "It's hard to be that good looking and not verge on the sentimental." She has kept safely away from the danger line, but the young man is extremely good looking. The portrait of "Col. Isaac Ullman" is the artist's latest achievement and one of her most successful. It is stunning. The portrait of "Hildegarde Donaldson" is very lovely and the "Anne Frazer Brewer" is delightful.

Here's Cook Book for Children; It's One of the Best

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A cook book for children has just come out which, in its simplicity and atractiveness of arrangement, is perfectly suited to its purpose. When I say cook book for children I mean just that, for both boys and girls, for boys no longer feel that it is silly or "sissy" for them to go into the kitchen and cook. Many of them choose to take cooking at school and, of course, the camper or Boy Scout is proud of his ability to concoct a good meal. This litle book, however, because of the kind of recipes it contains and because of its name, "Jane Louise's Cook Book," will appeal more to girls. Even quite little ones can use it, because of the plan of the book.

In the first place, all of the text is in large, clear, hand lettering. Each recipe is given a page to itself, and enlivened and clarified by little sketches of the measures, the ingredients, and frequently a clock face to help with the timing.

There are enough recipes given so that a full meal could be cooked, if a child or several children became ambitious enough.

Of course, no one would turn a child loose with this book—or any other cook book—who was entirely inexperienced. An apprenticeship of the sort dating back to the "Please let me cook, too, mommie," days is necessary. A boy or girl will need to have acquired some control of utensils and a degree of deftness before using the book alone. But most children in homes of average circumstances have a practical, first hand acquaintance with the kitchen and its ways, and should soon be able, with very little guidance, to use the book quite independently. So, "Jane Louise's Cook Book" should be a source of fun and profit.

The main food topics that it covers are bread [yeast and quickbreads], cake, candy, cookies, desserts, drinks, eggs, fruit, dishes, meat, fish, and vegetables.

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Mushroom Seasonings.

Because the flavor of mushrooms is such a delicate thing, it is my opinion that when we want mushrooms we should add few flavorings to the preparation we make. If we want something else, then add the flavorings or seasonings. For instance, people serve mushrooms à la king, that is, creamed mushrooms with the pimento, the egg yolk in the cream sauce, paprika, and lemon juice.

This preparation is served on toast, or with cases of bread or patties or puff paste, or in ramekins, or timbale cases, or in nests of mashed potato, and as a hot sandwich. When the sauce is thin enough it can be used as a sauce with boiled rice, with chicken, and with sweet breads, to which mushrooms are so closely related in flavor and in other ways.

And speaking again of mushroom sandwiches, it gave me pleasure to find a recipe for them in "The Economy Administration Cook Book," which was put out in 1913, and it gave me even more pleasure to find that the author of this recipe—an educator, lecturer, author, and great woman of the world, whom I was privileged to call a friend because of some weeks of association with her—was Mrs. May Wright Sewell whose death occurred while she was still the principal of a famous girls' school. That she, who counted as one of the representative women of the world, who had had a salon as a real feature at the time of the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893, who had been a president of the international congress of women and all that, should have had a collection of recipes is to me a pleasing fact.

Mrs. Sewell's mushroom sandwich recipe reads: "Any variety of edible mushrooms, broiled, may be used either whole or chopped fine—preferably the latter—as a filling for sandwiches or whole wheat bread. The mushrooms may be seasoned with only butter and celery salt, or to this may be added lemon juice, or they may be rubbed to a paste with mayonnaise dressing in which no mustard should be used." Two interesting comments follow this recipe, one which showed Mrs. Sewell's political status, and the other the fact that she was a vegetarian.

Educator Is Honored.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Black canton crêpe, with the youthful cape collar of Alençon lace in an ecru shade, is used for this pretty dress. The slender waistline is emphasized by the skirt being fitted snugly through the hips, and lengthened with a circular flounce that takes an upward line at the center front. The close fitting sleeves flare at the wrists, and the dress is one of those wearable types that meet everyday needs.

The pattern, 3214, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting material for the collar.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

A Pitiful Case.

"Little Vera is 4 and has just had her third operation since October for hare lip and cleft palate. She has no mother and her father has deserted her. We are anxious to get a tricycle for her so that she can exercise and strengthen her legs, but we cannot afford to buy one, as we are doing all we possibly can in caring for her.

"Do you think one of your readers would have one to give away? She is large for her age and is about the size of a 6 year old girl. MRS. R. W."

Little Vera's 4 years have been filled with a great deal of unhappiness and with her affliction I fear her pleasures are not many. Wouldn't a tricycle fill her baby heart with joy and compensate a bit for the misery she has had?

MOTHER HANGED AND BURIED IN ARIZONA PRISON

Florence, Ariz., Feb. 21.—(AP)—The state of Arizona today performed the unpleasurable task of hanging a woman, Eva Dugan, 52, and mother of seven children, for the murder three years ago of A. J. Mathis, aged rancher of Tucson, Ariz.

This was the first execution of a woman in Arizona, and it was witnessed by six other women, including the prison matron. Mrs. Dugan remained outwardly calm to the last, even smiling grimly as a guard placed the black hood over her head. The steel gallows trap at the state penitentiary swung open at 5:11 a. m. Her body and head parted as the rope jerked. Physicians said she died instantly.

Poison Brings Inquiry.

Mrs. Dugan almost escaped the gallows. In her cell was found a small bottle of poison, which the vigilance of the death watch presumably prevented her using. Warden Lorenzo Hoyle started an investigation as to how she procured it.

Mrs. Dugan's attorneys had exhausted every legal effort to save her. Appeals, petitions for clemency, questions of insanity, all were refused successfully by the state, which charged she killed Mathis to gain his money. She had been arrested in White Plains, N. Y., for theft of an automobile, and when his body was recovered, a year after his death, was in a makeshift grave on his ranch. She was tried for murder and convicted.

Bid Warden Good-by.

Throughout her last night Mrs. Dugan played cards with friends, talking occasionally. The rain-smeared light lighted her march to the gallows, where she spoke three words as Warden Wright shook her hand and said, "God bless you, Eva."

"Good-by, Daddy Wright," she replied.

She was buried today in the bare Florence graveyard, in the silk shroud she had made, with its decorations of cloth and not artificial flowers. She is survived by her father, William McDaniel of Dora, Cal.; a sister, Mrs. Ruth Stevens of Weston, Mo., a daughter, Opal Loveless of South Bend, Ind., and a son, whose whereabouts is never disclosed.

Hereditary Royal Armor Bearer of Scotland Dies

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Feb. 21.—Sir Douglas Seton-Steuart, holder of one of the most historic positions in Scotland, that of hereditary armor bearer and squire of the "royal body of Scotland," died today at the age of 71 years. One of Sir Douglas' ancestors presided over the execution of the marquis of Montrose—a stanch friend in the time when Charles I. had just been beheaded and Charles was without a throne—in 1650.

Wm. Clark, Secretary of Dartmouth College, Dies

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 21.—(AP)—William Eugene Clark, secretary of Dartmouth college, died here today of heart failure. He had been ill with pneumonia for two weeks. Professor Clark joined the Dartmouth faculty in 1889 as an instructor in German. In 1894 he was promoted to a full professorship. In recent years he devoted himself entirely to the work of secretary of the college.

Radio Sketch of Beethoven Pleases Elmer

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

One of the most worthwile broadcasts of radio last evening was Pat Barnes' "half hour with Beethoven," over W-G-N, from 9 to 9:30 o'clock. Mr. Barnes' treatment of the great composer was worthy of a Beethoven anniversary program.

Beethoven's genius, his deafness, his erratic traits—these and more were touched upon gently and understandingly.

The last act of this impressive picture had to do with the return of Beethoven "to this planet," and his conducting of the station's symphony orchestra in the scherzo, or "metronome" movement of the composer's Eighth symphony. The dramatic stage, with all its mechanical and scenic equipment, could scarcely have done it better, and perhaps not so well.

In this connection there are a number of programs distinctly of and for radio, which could not be conveyed by any other media. Three features in this class may be heard on W-G-N from 10 to 10:40 o'clock: Quin Ryan's "Tomorrow's Tribune" feature, Louie's Hungry Five, and the Want Ad boys.

DR. OYAMA, ONCE PROFESSOR AT LOYOLA "U," DIES

Dr. Yutaka Oyama, former professor of abdominal surgery at Loyola university, died yesterday at Mercy hospital of pneumonia. He was 40 years old.

Born in Korea, Dr. Oyama took up a medical career against the wishes of his wealthy Japanese family. He studied at Osaka university, Leland Stanford university and in the clinics of Berlin and Paris. He held the Loyola professorship from 1922 to 1925.

With Dr. A. C. Ivy of Northwestern university he was author of a tract on gastric diseases which is recognized as a definite contribution to medical science.

Dr. Oyama lived at 3613 Ellis avenue. He is survived by his widow, the former Myrtle Fitzsimmons, and two daughters, Iwana, 7, and June, 3 years old. Funeral services will be held at 9 a. m. Monday at Holy Angels church. Burial will be in Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

RANDOLPH PAGE, AIR MAIL TRAIL BLAZER, IS DEAD

Page, who had been an aviator for fifteen years, made the first night air mail flight in the United States and delivered the first transcontinental air mail bags from New York to San Francisco in September, 1920.

During the world war he served overseas as instructor and test pilot.

The body will be sent to Washington, D. C., for interment in Arlington National cemetery.

STEPS ON NAIL; DIES.

BASS RITES TO BE HELD MONDAY IN MANITOWOC

Funeral services for George Bass, 84 years old, at one time leader of the Republican party in Chicago and a veteran attorney, who died on Thursday night at his home at 1142 Pratt boulevard, will be held Monday at St. James church in Manitowoc, Wis.

Mr. Bass was born in Williamstown, Vt., in 1847, came to Chicago in 1860, attended public schools here, and was graduated at Harvard in the class of 1871. He returned to practice law here. In 1880 he was a Republican presidential elector. In 1890 he was elected to the senate, and in the same year served as south town collector.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Merrill Bass, a national leader of the Democratic women and a prominent suffragist in pre-war days.

C. C. WRESSLER, VETERAN HOTEL OPERATOR, DIES

Carl C. Wressler, a part owner and operator of the Atlantic hotel at 316 South Clark street, for the last 30 years, died last night of a paralytic stroke at his home at 5301 Winthrop avenue. Mr. Wressler, who was 58 years old, became ill last Tuesday and had since been confined to his home. He had spent most of his life in the hotel business in Chicago, having been connected with the Bismarck hotel before he became associated with the Atlantic, which originally was operated as the Kaiserhof. Mr. Wressler is survived by his widow and one son, Ernest C. Wressler. Funeral arrangements will be completed today upon the son's arrival from Florida.

E. S. Rice, Long an Agent for Du Pont Co., Is Dead

Elliott S. Rice, 78 years old, for many years manager of the Du Pont real estate interests in Chicago, died yesterday at his home at 5450 Blackstone avenue. The body will be at the chapel at 124 East 22d street until Sunday, when it will be taken to Erie, Pa., where funeral services will be held on Tuesday. Mr. Rice came to Chicago in 1883 and had charge of the Du Pont Powder company's western agency until 1908. He was widely known in trap shooting circles. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Annie Rice; one son, Fred C. of Pomona, Cal., and two daughters, Mrs. William E. Langrill and Mrs. Gladys R. Eckerson.

CHICAGO POSTOFFICE RENTAL 'EXORBITANT'; INQUIRY IS PROPOSED

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Charging that "enormously exorbitant rentals" are paid by the government for postoffice buildings in Chicago and other cities, Representative Melvin J. Maas [Rep., Minn.] introduced a resolution in the house today calling for the appointment of a committee investigation.

In a statement to the house Representative Maas declared that the government pays, under its lease for Chicago postoffice property, a rental of $2,500,000 on property estimated to cost $350,000. At St. Paul, he said, it pays $120,000 a year on a property appraised at $317,000 under a noncancelable lease.

Under the Maas resolution a house committee, with power to travel and subpoena witnesses, would undertake a complete review of all postoffice leases and the leasing policy of the postoffice department, with instructions to the attorney general to cancel or readjust all exorbitant leases.

HIGH RENT CHARGE DENIED.

K. P. Aldrich, chief postoffice inspector, yesterday denied allegations made by Representative Mass [Rep., Minn.] in the house that exorbitant rentals are paid for postoffice substations in Chicago. Bids on leases for postoffice sites are handled through Mr. Aldrich's office. "We would welcome any investigation," he said.

DR. R. W. OWENS, PRESBYTERIAN LEADER, IS DEAD

Dr. Ralph W. Owens, 41 years old, director of religious education of the Chicago presbytery, died yesterday at the Presbyterian hospital after an illness of six months. Dr. Owens lived at 1212 Lunt avenue.

He came to Chicago six years ago from Philadelphia, where he had been field representative of the board of Christian education of the Presbyterian church. Before entering the ministry he was engaged in Y. M. C. A. work during the war. He was a graduate of Marysville college in Tennessee and the Lane Theological seminary in Cincinnati. He is survived by his widow.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. today at the chapel of the Fourth Presbyterian church under the auspices of the Chicago presbytery. Burial will be at Booneville, Ind., Dr. Owens' birthplace.

HAMAGUCHI IN LEAD ON BALLOT FOR JAPAN'S DIET

Early Returns Indicate Government Victory.

TOKIO, Feb. 22 [Saturday].—(AP)—Premier Hamaguchi's government, seeking parliamentary support through a general election, today made substantial gains on the basis of early returns from yesterday's election. Most of these reports, however, were from districts favorable to the premier's continuanve in office.

The Minseito party, supporting Hamaguchi's administration, had secured 79 seats in the lower house of the diet by 11:30 a. m. today, compared with 44 candidates elected by the Seiyukai party, chief opposition to the government. Proletarian, or labor groups, gained seats for three candidates and five were obtained by other groups.

Fought Domestic Election.

Supported by only the 173 members of the Minseito party, and unable to make headway for its measures against the opposition of the Seiyukai party, 237 of whose members sat in the lower house of the diet, the Hamaguchi government Jan. 21 declared the diet dissolved and ordered a general election held.

Only domestic policies had a place in the campaign; the foreign field was scarcely mentioned by party orators. Ten million voters going to the polls in the second election under universal male suffrage, were asked by the government to indorse its policy of drastic retrenchment of public expenditures, its recent return to the gold standard and its advocacy of a sharply reduced budget balanced without loans.

Labor Party Loses.

Against this program the Seiyukai party charged that the government's economic measures were too vigorous, were premature and had caused business depression, with increased unemployment.

The Proletarian, or labor group, on the showing of first returns were losing in the effort to raise the number of their representatives in the diet. They had lost five seats won in the 1928 election, and elected only one candidate.

6 Millions from 2 Banks Moved in Child's Wagon

The wagon, in its several trips, carried $6,000,000 in securities and $250,000 in cash from the Merchants and the Illinois National banks, recently merged into the Commercial National Bank and Trust company.

CHARLEY WHITE KNOCKED OUT IN 2D ROUND

HORTON SMITH'S 66 TIES RECORD, 6 UNDER PAR

Tops Savannah Golf with 137.

HORTON SMITH.

While the Detroit golfer, who formerly registered from Joplin, Mo., was stroking his way around in eight under par and equaling the course record, Bobby Jones of Atlanta, national open king, was encountering trouble at almost every hole.

Jones faltered badly on the outward nine for a 40, three over par, but settled down on the home nine for a 36. His 76 today together with his 75 of yesterday placed him in a tie for fifth place with 142.

Jones' Putting Off.

The golfing barrister from Atlanta, who has won every major crown in golfdom except the British amateur, clearly showed his lack of practice today as he blew up on the outward trip and shot little better than par on the home nine.

His score today was caused largely by his inability to hole his putts.

His drives and approach shots were generally up to the Jones standard, but during the round he found the cup with only one of the many long putts he attempted. He required 18 putts on the outward nine.

Farley Clark, slim blonde local shot maker, equalled his 69 of yesterday and was a step behind the leader with 207.

Four strokes away and tied for third honors were Emmett French of Southern Pines, N. C., and Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., with 141. French had a 73 today to add to his 68 of yesterday, while Dudley, who posted a 73 yesterday, shot a great 69 today.

Horton Smith, Detroit, collected seven birdies and an eagle as he shot his low score today. Here's how Smith made the round:

[illegible]	432	543	544—34
[illegible]	434	234	444—32

After shooting a par four on the first hole Smith drove into a trap near the second green, but made a nice recovery and was on the carpet in two. He sank a short putt for a birdie three. Horton got another birdie on the third but had trouble on the par four fourth and took a bogie five. He needed two putts.

Gets a Birdie on 12th.

After a par four on the fifth Horton scored a birdie three on the 251 yard sixth, made par figures on the seventh and eighth, and finished the outward trip with a birdie four on the ninth hole.

The first two holes of the inward nine were made in par, while Smith got a birdie four on the twelfth and scored an eagle on the 248 yard thirteenth. He was on the green with his drive and sank a 15 foot putt. The fourteenth and fifteenth were made in regulation figures, while Smith got birdie fours on both the long sixteenth and seventeenth holes. He completed the great round with a par four on the 18th hole.

LATZO SURPRISES JOHNSON; TAKES 10 ROUND BOUT

Latzo, competing now as a light heavyweight, inserted himself forcefully into the foremost group of contenders for the crown vacated last July by Tommy Loughran. The former welterweight champion, bringing into play all his generalship gleaned from his long campaign in the ring, broke up Johnson's attacks time and again to earn the decision. A crowd of 15,000 saw him score his triumph.

VANCE AGREES TO $5,000 CUT; SIGNS FOR YEAR

New York, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Arthur Dazzy Vance, star right hand pitcher of the Brooklyn Robins, agreed today to sign a one year contract at a salary of $50,000, the Brooklyn management announced. Vance, one of the highest paid hurlers in organized baseball, received $25,000 for his services last season.

BUSH PICKS SOX 2D BASEMAN; HIS NAME IS CISSELL

Donie's Private Lessons Work Miracles for Bill.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 21.—Bill Cissell's stock boomed even higher after today's workout of the White Sox — to the extent, in fact, that Manager Donie Bush announced the afternoon's doings, added to previous demonstrations of the week, had caused him definitely to decide upon switching the young man from short to second.

BILL CISSELL.

Cissell, who came to the Sox two years ago from Portland, with the handicap of being labeled a $123,000 beauty, was more or less of a bust in his first two years. Last year he seemed to lose his best asset—aggressiveness. A naturally happy and spirited youngster, he became something of a crab. His game fell off accordingly and there were times when the money invested in him probably was all that staved off his banishment.

Lead League Shortstops.

The high priced youth led the American league shortstops last season by playing a full schedule of games and making 357 putouts and 459 assists, but he also made 55 errors. He steadied toward the close of the year, having had about 40 errors at midseason.

When discussing prospects after signing as manager, one of Bush's earliest inquiries was about Cissell's woes. He was told that a ball hit right at Cissell was his greatest weakness.

Donie in his time has heard of many infielders with the same trouble, and suggested that Bill come down with the first squad for a little private instruction. Bill was delighted and came on with the first squad, although no infielders are due until March 1.

Until today Donie gave Bill his private lessons, but had not decided definitely on the shift to second. But this afternoon at practice he said, "I've got my second baseman picked out, and I'm tickled pink." Irv Jeffries works out at short whenever Cissell is at second and has no intention of letting Bill Hunnefield or Ernie Smith push him around much when they arrive a week hence. Bush likes little Jeff's work, but, of course, is not making any such definite statements in regard to the peppery rookie as he did about Cissell.

Ted Conquers Appetite.

Atoka Ted Blankenship continues to attract about as much interest as any one around the camp. The big cowboy is hustling like everything and really seems to have conquered his ravenous appetite. A sly watch has been placed at his performances at the table, and it is known that no victuals have been sent up to his room surreptitiously. These observations have revealed that Ted eats like a movie actress on the 18 day diet.

There will be two more workouts at the New York Giants' camp tomorrow and Sunday. Then the Sox will move to their own camp at Van Daele stadium.

Because of the absence of clubhouse facilities at the new camp there will be one continuous long session instead of short morning and afternoon hitches. Beginning Monday, work will start at 11 o'clock and continue through the lunch hour and afternoon until such time as Bush calls a halt.

Grade School Cage Team Claims Record; Wins, 126-2

Robinson, Ill., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Robinson grade school claimed a record for high scoring last night when they defeated Star school five by 126 to 2 in their first game of the Crawford county grade tournament. The score at the half was 55 to 0.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

BY DON MAXWELL.

I wish I were an advertising copywriter (just for the night), with a gift of glib expression. If I were I might write an ad that would sell you on the opportunity that is yours next Tuesday night to see the greatest boxing show you've ever watched.

I wish I were a Pegler or a Burns. Then I might write so interestingly of this coming show that you'd make it your first job this morning to visit THE TRIBUNE Public Service bureau and purchase tickets for each of the four nights.

The best that I can do is to tell you why I think you'll be sorry if you don't attend all four nights of the Golden Gloves tournament.

Some professional bouts are fine entertainment. Many of them are worth the high price of tickets. But few of the professional cards list more than one or two feature bouts. Promoters can't stage an all-star show, what with the ever increasing purse demands of boxers, and make a profit.

The Golden Glove tournament can and does offer the customer an all-star show of mammoth proportions. There are no tiresome preliminaries, no bouts to pad out the evening's program. Every time two boys climb through the ropes the fastest, hardest fight of which they are capable is assured. There will be no difference in the quality of the first night or the last night's show. In fact, the Tuesday and Wednesday customers will see more fighting on those two nights than they will on the two final evenings. Two rings will be used on those two opening nights. Schedules call for more than 30 bouts in each ring.

Every bout a feature!

And that's not all. An army of husky, hard hitting young fellows from 59 cities and towns are coming to Chicago for the tournament. From Vincennes, Ind., on the south, to Oshkosh, Wis., on the north; from Fort Wayne, Ind., on the east to Davenport, Ia., in the west, the trek to the jousting starts on Monday.

If you would be sure of seeing these George Rogers Clark boys, the battlers from Jackson, Mich., or Streator, you had better make your reservations today for those two opening nights. There are 9w young Mandells and Dempseys from Chicago perfecting their timing, polishing up their hooks right now with the intention of sending the country boys tramping back to the country. The last two nights may be an all-Chicago tournament. Maybe.

Where are the strongest boys developed?

Is it in the 36 downstate precincts of Illinois from which 61 punchers are coming? Or are the lads from the banks of the Wabash heftier and more courageous? Does shoveling snow in Oshkosh or milking cows in Iowa make for sturdier muscles? Fifty-four boys don tights Monday and Tuesday nights confident that Hoosiers are the pluckiest, fightinest fellows in the land. North side, west side, south side Chicago lads are eager to send them back to the candle light.

We'll be disappointed if the folks in South Bend and Fort Wayne, Kokomo and Springfield miss this opportunity to visit Chicago. Surely some fan right now is organizing a routers' contingent in every one of those 59 towns. Those boys from Kokomo, that heavyweight, Bus Green, from Davenport; those Purdue football players from Lafayette will try the harder if they know they're fighting in front of the home folks.

Some time ago we heard that South Bend would send a trainload of fans. We haven't learned the details. We hope the plan goes through. The Peoria rooters' section arrives Tuesday noon.

Before we forget it—and it's worth mention as another feature—the top cost of seeing this Golden Gloves tournament is $3, and there are lots of good seats for $1.

Schaaf Wins 10 Round Decision Over Christner

Boston, Mass., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, squared his accounts with K. O. Christner of Akron, O., by edging him out of the decision here tonight in the 10-round contest that featured the Argonne A. A. show. Schaaf weighed 202 and Christner was seven pounds lighter. The latter won when they clashed here several months ago.

Avalon, Catalina Island, Cal., Feb. 21.—The advance guard of the Cubs came bumping over the ocean and into the harbor of Avalon this noon, and bumping is used advisedly. The ocean was fretful as the aftermath of a healthy blow and more than one athletic member of the party staggered down the gangplank expressing hope that William Wrigley would build a bridge to the mainland before it came time to return.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

The arrival for spring training was just like coming home. The same old natives who have been coming down to the pier for years were on hand to see if their favorites had been changed by the distressful world series strife of last fall. The Legion drum corps, dressed up in baseball uniforms, made sufficient noise to drown the ship's orchestra, which was trying to do a good job of 'Happy Days Have Come Again."

There on the dock was Wrigley himself, who even though host to so notable a man as Calvin Coolidge, refused to stay away when his pet steamer brought in a part of his pet ball team.

Cal Didn't Choose to Visit.

Coolidge didn't choose to take part in the welcoming ceremony. Machines for the taking of sound pictures were all set up in anticipation of catching the former President of the United States shaking hands with a horde of athletes, but about the time he should have been doing this he was up on the front porch of Wrigley's mountain home, looking down on all that was taking place. Mr. Coolidge is not a ball fan. Neither is he a golfer. He has shown only passing interest in the various Wrigley developments on the island. The only thing that gave him a laugh here was a pet macaw which sat on his shoulder and made noises like a distressed Democrat.

Everybody supposed to be in the advance squad has been accounted for and there was only one unusual thing noticeable when the gang got together on the pier. That is that there is going to be a fat men's club. Pat Malone probably will be elected president. He looks as if he has a toothache in both cheeks. Sheriff Blake is large all over, indicating an early call on his part for a rubber shirt, which is the first remedy for excessive weight. Charlie Root also is going to be a member of the select company.

Root Eight Pounds Overweight.

With golf, hunting, motoring and house chores Root has kept himself in trim all winter, but even with all his activity he has gathered about eight excess pounds. Malone tips the beam at 212, which is rather a large collection of meat for a man who hopes to remain active for a few more years. Blake's problem consists of about ten pounds. But while the others pick up weight Guy Bush remains as sylph-like as an eighteen year old kid who grew rapidly.

When the first big sweat for 1930 is ordered on the training field tomorrow there will be nineteen participants, fifteen of them pitchers.

Miss Orcutt Beats Miss Van Wie for Florida Title

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Miss Maureen Orcutt, New Britain, Conn., former national women's golf champion, won the Florida women's tournament today from Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, in a match that went to the 20th green.

Illinois Women's Athletic club swimmers and divers triumphed over the Indianapolis Athletic club stars last night in a meet in the home pool, 55 to 8. The I. W. A. C. girls won first place in eight events.

Jane Fauntz of the I. W. A. C. again successfully defended her diving title, staving off the challenge of Helen Lee Smith, 12 year old star of Indianapolis, and Jane Showalter of the same club. In addition, Miss Fauntz won first honors in the 100 yard breast stroke event, competing against Gene Horsche and Thelma Willis of the Hoosier club.

In the 160 yard relay the I. W. A. C. girls were victorious over the Indianapolis club, Fanchon Homer and Betty Quinn of the winning squad featuring. The time was 1:35. Mary Lou Quinn of the I. W. A. C. triumphed in the 100 yard free style. Betty Quinn, also carrying the local club's colors, placed second.

The 100 yard back stroke event was won by Fanchon Homer of the I. W. A. C.; Violet Martin, a teammate, was second, and Gladys Hewitt of Indianapolis, third. The I. W. A. C. team defeated Indianapolis in the 120 yard medley race. The time was 1:20.

Hartnett Suffers as Usual on Trip to Avalon

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., Feb. 21.—Gabby Hartnett is the worst sailor of the Cub outfit. On the trip over he stayed on deck, clinging to a rail and hoping for the best. He was progressing nicely until a fellow walked up smoking a large cigar. Gabby took one whiff of the rope and announced he was going elsewhere.

Nobody ever has mentioned this, but it is not too late. The smartest play made in the last world series was when Catcher Taylor signaled for a pitchout when the Athletics had runners on first and second, with none out. He caught the man going to third. Taylor asked for the pitchout because he got the Athletics' sign in this one instance.

Reach Finals Again

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—The championship round of one of the fastest games in the world will be played tomorrow between the same two men who met for the national amateur racquets title fifteen years ago. For the eleventh time in the fourteen tournaments held since 1915, Clarence C. Pell and Stanley G. Mortimer, both of New York and Tuxedo, gained the ultimate brackets in the 39th annual championship today on the court of the Tennis and Racquet club.

Mortimer today defeated Hewitt Morgan, 18-14, 16-18, 16-15, 15-1, 15-6, while Pell won from Peter Kemp-Welch, 22 year old stylist of England, 15-13, 18-16, 15-10.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

In two boxlike white courts tucked away on the fourth floor of the Harvard-Yale-Princeton club in Plymouth court twenty-four players of national reputation began the United States squash racquets championship yesterday. Whizzing balls drew narrow black lines against the white background, caroming in dizzy angles off five walls. Then as a climax came as bitterly fought a match as ever graced better known games.

Before going into that match, however, it might be well to draw a distinction between the four indoor games, of which squash racquets is one, that are sometimes confused. The four—racquets, squash racquets, squash, and court tennis—are all more or less distant relatives of handball, jai alai, and tennis. All four are played in courts, with gut strung racquets, but they vary in the size of court, kind of ball, and manner of play.

Decides a National Champion.

Squash is played with a tennis racquet and a red or green covered ball the size of a tennis ball. Racquets is played with a long, round headed bat in a large court with black walls and a small white kidskin covered ball. Court tennis is played in the largest court, with the heaviest

Referees Chosen

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP)—The Florida boxing board today canvassed the referee situation for the Sharkey-Scott fight next Thursday, shuffling the list of eligibles, but it was understood the selections for third man in the ring already had been agreed on. Lou Magnolia of New York is slated to handle the main go, Jimmy Crowley or Kid McPartland of New York the semi-final between Risko and Campolo, with Johnny Brassil of Boston, Mass., and Frank McCracken of Philadelphia officiating in other preliminaries.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Feb. 21.—Admitting that the boxing entertainment at the Oasis club in Palm Beach was extremely refined and that the people who gave the party were all very rich or able to give an impression of wealth, I am now a little doubtful as to the importance of the show and of the hosts of the occasion. Perhaps it would have been better for my illusions if I had watched this exhibition from a distance, rather than from a seat at a tea table, for familiarity has bred distinct misgivings and millionaires never will be the same henceforth, if they ever were.

Pegler Begins to Wonder.

As the lady and gentlemen millionaires entered the arena, one of those curious journalistic phenomena, a male society reporter with some vague claim of his own to social importance, whispered their names and some few brief biographical remarks about each one, and by the time he had recited fifteen or twenty pedigrees, I began to wonder when he would come upon some one who had actually done something more important than organizing an exclusive supper club or buying up works of art, through brokers, or selling stocks or marrying some deceased magnate's daughter.

But still the low voiced singsong continued without a saving claim of achievement for anyone among the hundreds present and it began to occur to me that even their interest in prize fighting was merely a weary and extremely vulgar cast, as though, for diversion from the boredom of association with one another the year around, they had decided to hire some peasants to come in and get hurt and bleed for them.

Peg's Disillusioned Again.

Palm Beach society always has accepted the rank of a superior breed and the members make such a point of whom they will or will not recog-

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Charley White, one of the greatest lightweights ever developed in Chicago, a fighter who had met champions and defeated some of the strongest contenders for 135 pound honors a decade ago, failed in his comeback effort at the Coliseum last night.

He was stopped in the second round by Henry Perlick of Kalamazoo, Mich., in the windup of Jack Dempsey's show at the Coliseum. The card attracted only 4,000. The receipts were estimated at $12,000.

Goes Down Four Times.

Early in the second round Perlick nailed him with a right cross. Charley took a two count. As soon as he regained his feet Perlick shot over another right cross, and White went down for a one count. Another right to the jaw sent him down for a nine count. He was helpless when he got to his feet, and when the fourth knockdown came White's seconds tossed a towel into the ring. The round was one minute and twenty-five seconds old when the fight ended.

White was far from the boxer he was ten years ago. He made few efforts to lead and waited for Perlick to take the offensive so he could counter with his one time famous left hook. He sent Perlick against the ropes in the first round with a left hook, followed by a right cross. These were the only blows he landed.

This was Charley's farewell to the ring. He intends to devote all his time to his business and will forget about fighting. He was keenly disappointed over his showing.

White weighed 138¾ pounds and Perlick the same.

Peters Fights Draw.

In the eight round windup, Herman Perlick, twin brother of the winner over White, was given the eight round decision over Emery Cabana, French-Canadian from Philadelphia. They met at 138 pounds.

It remained for Ernie Peters and Harry Fierro, two local bantamweights, to save the show. These aggressive youngsters, who are products of the amateur ranks, went eight fast rounds to a draw. There was punching and toe to toe fighting in every round.

In the opening bout Jimmy Lundy of California, 141, was given the decision over George Kerwin of Chicago. Walter Madey, local heavyweight, took the verdict from Joe King of New Orleans in the second opener. In the other bout on the card, Al Greenfield of Chicago was awarded the eight round decision over Matty White of Philadelphia. They met at 126 pounds.

JOHNNIE DAWSON IN SEMI-FINALS OF TEXAS GOLF

Houston, Tex., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Two veterans of Texas tournaments, one of the leading players from the Chicago district, and a 19 year old unknown from the banks of the Rio Grande, will tee off tomorrow in the semi-finals of the 16th annual Houston invitation golf tournament.

Ossie Carlton and George Rotan, both of Houston, the former defending the invitation title for the third straight year and the latter a six time winner of the championship, will represent the home club. Johnnie Dawson, semi-finalist in last year's British amateur championship, is the Chicago entrant and Bud McKinny from Del Rio completes the group.

Chicago Unable to Break Up Stalling Game.

Cleveland divided the series with Chicago last night by defeating the Bruins, 21 to 18, at the Stadium before one of the largest crowds of the year. More than a thousand of the spectators were high school basketball players, guests of the Bruins.

The victory gave Cleveland a tie for second place in the American pro league with Fort Wayne and shoved Chicago into a deadlock with Brooklyn for fourth position.

Free Throws Beat Bruins.

For the first time this season the Bruins lost a game in which they outscored their opponents from the field. Chicago registered eight baskets, five of which were by Nat Hickey, and Cleveland scored seven. However, Cleveland made good seven free throws in eight chances and Chicago only scored twice in five attempts. Referee Salador called 19 penalties on the Bruins and nine on Cleveland.

Although Chicago led, 13 to 10, at the intermission Clevedand caught up and went ahead, 17 to 15, on Glasco's side shot, with 14 minutes to play. The score was made with five players attacking against four Bruin defensive men, Nat Holman being out of position after missing a running shot under the Cleveland basket.

Cleveland Protects Lead.

Lapchick's two follow shots in the next four minutes gave Cleveland a six point lead and this was protected with a stalling game which the Bruins could not break up. Lapchick's ability to get the ball out of center into possession of his mates, and Dutch Dehnert's play on the block line decided the contest.

FOUR GAMES ON BIG 10 BASKET CARD TONIGHT

Eight of the nine basketball teams regularly playing under the Big Ten banner go into action tonight against conference opponents. With the end of the conference race only two weeks away, the interest naturally centers in Purdue and Wisconsin, the two leaders, neither of which seems to have an opponent capable of giving them much trouble tonight.

Purdue's fast scoring basketball machine moves on Minnesota, which took a 47 to 17 trouncing from Northwestern last Monday. If the Boilermakers don't let overconfidence get into their blood, they should have little difficulty in running away from the Gophers.

Wisconsin, having lost one game and trailing the undefeated Boilermakers in the hope they'll stumble, invades Bartlett gymnasium. If the Maroons could muster their full strength on the floor they might give the Badgers a big time battle, but injuries have followed each other so rapidly at Chicago the Maroons have little hope left. Sid Yates' broken wrist hasn't healed, and Paul Stephenson, who was taking Yates' place as a score maker, now is out with a twisted leg. Coach Nels Norgren will have to shift his team the tenth time this season to try to cover holes left by injuries.

Meanwhile Northwestern plays Illinois at Champaign and this game hangs almost entirely on whether the Wildcats are hitting their long shots or not. If they are, they're unbeatable, and if they're not the Illini should hang up another victory over the Purple.

The best basketball game of the night promises to be at Bloomington, where Michigan and Indiana tangle. Michigan's strong defensive team will be matched against the Hoosiers' scoring quintet. While the Wolverines won a lopsided victory over the Hoosiers earlier in the season, there isn't likely to be much margin on either side tonight.

KEENEY PARK IS SOLD; ANNOUNCES 18 DAY MEETING

New York, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Eighteen more days of thoroughbred racing was assured the state of Florida today when William Dwyer, owner of the New York Americans Hockey club, became the owner of Keeney Park, located midway between Jacksonville and St. Augustine.

With the termination of the meeting at Hialeah Park, Miami, the thoroughbreds will move to Keeney Park for a session opening March 10 and closing March 29—two days before the opening of the northern tracks at Bowie in Maryland.

Washington High Beats Hammond for Title

Gary, Ind., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Washington of East Chicago tonight defeated Hammond on the latter's home court to clinch the western division high school championship, 37 to 36. Washington's victory won it the right to meet Laporte, eastern division champions, in Laporte Monday night for the conference championship.

All three Gary teams were defeated tonight. Valparaiso won from Froebel of Gary, 37 to 29; Roosevelt of East Chicago defeated Emerson of Gary, 35 to 23, and Whiting won from a reserve Horace Mann team, 37 to 25.

Vastine and Artery Win All-Chicago Golf at Miami

Miami, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP)—George Vastine of the Illinois Country club won low gross prize, and M. C. Artery of Elm Gate Country club took low net honors in the first annual all-Chicago golf tournament over the Miami Country club course today. Vastine scored an 83, while Artery had a 92, which with his handicap of 20 gave him a 72. Joseph Quinn of Ridgemoor Country club had second low net with 85—9—76. F. C. Butler, Evanston, Ill., and Charles Stonebreaker, Olympic Fields, were tied for third.

ST. GODDARD WINS SECOND LAP IN QUEBEC DOG RACE

QUEBEC, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Emil St. Goddard of The Pas, Man., won today's 40 mile heat in the 120 mile international dog Derby in 3 hours 33 minutes 35 seconds. Leonhard Seppala, Nome, Alaska, veteran, who finished first in the first stage of the race yesterday, was second, just five minutes behind, and George Chevrette, Quebec, placed third in 3:45:55.

The court of squash racquets, of which the present tournament decides a national champion, is about 32 by 18 feet, with white walls. The racquet is slightly more than two feet long, a narrow handle, with a round gut-strung head about eight inches in diameter. The ball is black, about an inch and a quarter in diameter, and rather hard but resilent rubber.

Pool Is Defending Champion.

Included in the twenty-four smashing for the singles title, are J. Lawrence Pool of New York, defending champion, and Herbert N. Rawlins, also of New York, champion a year ago. Yet it was not these who packed the tiny spectators' gallery yesterday, for both drew byes, but Donald Strachan of Philadelphia, a young Princeton undergraduate, who won easily and amazed the old timers with his skill, particularly a change of pace with a tricky soft shot into the corners.

The match that made the cheers re-echo from the roof, however, was a five set struggle between B. G. Griggs of St. Paul, western champion two years ago, and Seymour H. Knox of Buffalo, that went to deuce in the fifth set and which Knox won only by smashing to six consecutive points.

Not only are twenty-four of the greatest individual players competing for the singles championship, but fourteen five man teams from fifteen cities will begin play this morning for the national team championship.

The semi-final and final of the team matches will be held at the Racquets club Sunday, and all of the singles matches at the H-Y-P club, the semi-finals and final also being Sunday. Chicago's team will be made up of J. H. Douglas and W. P. McBride, Racquets club; L. S. Hardin and M. D. West, H-Y-P club, and J. E. Anderson, Town and Tennis club. Results and pairings:

Loyola Takes Lead; Defeats St. Mel, 21-20

Loyola and St. Mel, tied for the lead in the north section of the Catholic league with eight victories and one defeat, met on the north siders' court last night to settle the argument and Loyola won, 21 to 20. The Loyola lights then made it a pair by trimming St. Mel's ponies, 10 to 9. More than 3,000 saw the game.

The heavyweight game was as much of a thriller as the first meeting of the two, which Loyola won in an overtime. Loyola led at the half, 11 to 7, but the league champions overtook them in the last minutes and took a point lead on Hayes' basket. With thirty seconds remaining, Capt. Ed Angsten of Loyola, looped in a long shot to bring his team victory. Holland and Hogan aided Angsten in the Loyola attack, while Hayes and Cain featured for St. Mel. Heavyweight lineup:

MT. CARMEL LIGHTS WIN.

Mount Carmel lightweights continued to lead the south section of the Catholic league by invading De La Salle's floor last night for a 35 to 13 victory. Following their victory Mount Carmel heavies came on and gave De La Salle, national champion its hardest game of the year, only to lose, 19 to 18. Brosseau and Scanlon starred for the Mount Carmel lights. Lightweight lineup:

ST. IGNATIUS, LEO DIVIDE.

St. Ignatius and Leo of the south section divided a Catholic league double header on the latter's floor last night, the St. Ignatius heavies winning, 25 to 23, while the Leo lights took a 16 to 11 victory. St. Ignatius heavies staged a great rally to win after lagging 17 to 7 at the half. Murphy and Liska featured for the victors, while Phillips and Ryan led Leo's scorers. Heavyweight lineup:

ST. PATRICK HEAVIES WIN.

St Patrick heavies hung up another victory last night on the home floor by defeating St. Michael, 19 to 5. The visiting lights then evened the program by trimming St. Patrick ponies, 25 to 22. The St. Patrick heavies' zone defense held St. Michael scoreless in the first half and well into the second. Whalen and Adams featured for the winners, while Uthers led the St. Michael lights with six baskets.

JOLIET DOUBLE VICTOR.

De La Salle of Joliet invaded the St. Rita floor for a double victory last night, the heavies winning, 25 to 24, and the lights, 25 to 21. The heavies were tied at the half, 15 all, but Joliet took a 24 to 16 lead at the third quarter. St. Rita held the visitors to one point in the last period, while making eight, but the rally fell short. Nash of St. Rita led the scorers with 14 points, while Keto, Larry Furlong and Simon featured for the victors. Ed Donahan led the St. Rita lights with 11 points, while Furlong's five baskets headed the visitors.

Golden Glove Fighters Pack That K. O. Punch

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Fighters with a punch will represent Chicago organizations in the finals of THE TRIBUNE'S third annual amateur Golden Gloves boxing tournament which opens at the Coliseum on Tuesday and continues through Friday. This will be especially true in the four heavier classes.

In the 147 pound class Nick Fosco of the Barry gymnasium is determined to make amends for his poor showing in New York a year ago. He won both of his sectional fights by knockouts. Instead of putting his opponents away with his right, Nick used a short left hook which he has developed in the last year.

Scotty Sylvano of Johnny Coulon's gymnasium is another stiff puncher in this class. So are McClure Carson of Chicago Heights, Andy McGahan of the West Side K. of C., and Paul Harris of Grey's Lake, Ill. Carl Ogren and Anton Hedman of the Belle Plaine A. C. also will make things interesting for their opponents.

Fred Casserio of the Seneca A. C. is one of the most clever boxers the trials have developed. He will be a strong contender in the middleweight division. Eddie Vack of the Lawndale gymnasium, Matt Dour of the Summerdale A. C. and Tom Pajit of Waukegan, Ill., are other 160 pounders who can punch. If Bud Borelli of the Coulon gymnasium competes, he will merit consideration.

Leo Mylinski of Johnny Kopp's boxing school of Roseland, Ill., will be hard to beat in the 175 pound division. He hits hard with his right hand and can take punishment. Joe Mendoza of the Coulon gymnasium and Andy Smith of the Lawndale gym also pack a wallop. Others who will bear watching in this class are Dick Monty and Erwin Pesek of the Lawndale gymnasium, Niels Jensen of the Danish American A. C. and James Lambeth of the Arcade gym.

Grant Fortney of the South Shore A. C., a cab driver, should go a long way in the heavyweight class. He can box and hit. Walter Cappel of Milwaukee is a clever boxer but cannot hit as hard as Fortney. Joe Fett of the El Rocks A. C. is a stiff right hand puncher and the same is true of John Molnar of the Belle Plaine A. C. Competition in this class should be more interesting from the knockout standpoint than in any other division.

UNITS OF OLD OIL TRUST VOTE TO CONSOLIDATE

Vacuum, Standard of N. Y. to Test Law.

The Chicago Board of Trade, the New York Stock Exchange, the Chicago Stock Exchange, and other security and commodity markets throughout the country will be closed today in observance of Washington's birthday anniversary. The banks will also be closed.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Directors of the Standard Oil Company of New York and the Vacuum Oil company, two units of the old Standard Oil company which was dissolved in 1911 under the Sherman anti-trust law, voted yesterday to effect a merger that will create the second largest oil concern in the world.

Just as dissolution of the old Standard Oil "trust" was the most important effect of the Sherman law, so now the Standard Oil-Vacuum proposal is the greatest challenge of the present day authority and effect of the oil governmental "trust busting" measures. Letters sent out to stockholders of both the Standard Oil and Vacuum companies informing them of the merger plan frankly explain that the whole issue will be put up to the United States Supreme court.

"The facts as to the situation have been submitted to the government," the letters say. "Both companies were former subsidiaries of the Standard Oil Company [New Jersey]. The question was raised whether the decree entered in 1911 in the so-called Standard Oil dissolution suit, by which control of the Standard Oil company over its subsidiaries was terminated, might forbid this transaction between two of such former subsidiaries.

Government's Position.

"The government took the position that the questions involved should be passed on by the courts. Counsel for the companies have given their opinion that the merger is in conformity with the law, advising that this question was raised before the Supreme court dissolution case and that that court held that after the subsidiaries had been freed from the control of the Standard Oil Company [New Jersey], they would be entitled to pursue any course of conduct lawful for any one else.

"There being no available method for asking the courts for an advisory expression as to the specific situation now arising, the only way to secure a ruling was for the companies to proceed and let the matter be brought before the courts in an appropriate way for determination. The government has indicated that it proposes to institute an appropriate proceeding in equity to determine the questions involved and it is expected that the matter will be promptly disposed of."

The formal merger terms will not be submitted to the stockholders of both companies until the suit is settled. But the details and purposes of the proposed merger are explained. It is proposed to form the General Petroleum corporation to take over the assets of both companies, issuing one share of its capital stock for each Standard Oil of New York share, and three shares for each Vacuum Oil share.

Assets of Nearly Billion.

On the basis of the present assets of both companies, the General Petroleum corporation would have total assets of about $900,000,000 and outstanding capitalization of around $600,000,000. The corporation would be exceeded in size by only the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, which has assets around $1,600,000,000.

The directors' letter to the stockholders maintains that the two companies are not really competitors and that their business is complementary, which is the chief reason they believe the government will permit the merger. They also believe the merger would be advantageous both because of present conditions in the domestic oil situation and also strong foreign competition.

The Standard Oil company of New York is an integrated company, which produces crude oil, refines oil products and distributes extensively. The Vacuum Oil company does a specialized business, chiefly in lubricating oils, and has a large export business. But the merged companies, it is asserted, will market only about 9 per cent of the petroleum products consumed in the United States, and this volume it is maintained is only comparable with the business done by each of several of the larger of its numerous competitors.

North American Car Corp. Forms New Subsidiary

R. R. Brigham, president of the North American Car corporation, stated yesterday that the company has formed a new subsidiary to handle its poultry car operations. The new firm, which will be known as the Fruit Line Poultry Car company, will operate a fleet of 2,700 cars, including those acquired by North American Car last month from the Live Poultry Transit company.

Indiana Industrial Land Gets Acreage Near Gary

Acquisition of a tract of land of about 300 acres from the Consumers company is reported by the Indiana Industrial Land company, a subsidiary of the Midland United company. The land is located at Baileytown, between Gary and Michigan City, and will be used for future development as a site for an electric generating station.

Surveys Will Probe Value of Bank Grouping

BY SCRUTATOR.

It may be significant that the most spectacular growth of chain banking systems has been in the northwestern grain states, where the belief in magic remedies for practical conditions is perhaps stronger than anywhere else in the country.

Minnesota last fall was the home of thirty-four chains of two different types, operating 435 banks with total resources of just under a billion dollars. More than 440 millions of resources were controlled by one chain, owned by a holding company, which operated seventy-six banks distributed over the ninth federal reserve district. Since the figures were gathered this concern has expanded and may have around 100 banks now. Another had forty banks in its chain and 341 millions in resources.

The ninth federal reserve district includes Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, and the northwestern part of Wisconsin. The largest of the individually controlled chains in the section, according to the economic policy commission of the American Bankers' association, comprises sixty-four banks in these states and in Michigan. One banker is heavily interested in all these banks, which have total resources of sixty-two millions and owns actual control of many of them.

Finds Fertile Field.

A rather fertile field exists in the western states, apparently, even for outside financial interests desirous of getting into chain banking. The policy commission related that a group of Chicago individuals have ten banks in Wyoming, Nebraska, Colorado, South Dakota and Montana.

Illinois the statistics, showed, had a number of banks under some chain administration. In total this state had a short time back eleven groups with eighty-six banks and resources of $1,050,860,000. Proportionately, the banking resources here were not so large as in the northwest and less absorption seemed to have been made of the small institutions. Three large chains controlled by particular banks had twenty-five institutions in their strings and total resources of more than 900 millions. The largest number of banks in any Illinois chain was fourteen.

The state of New York had seventeen banking chains in 1929 with 117 banks and resources more than four billions. Some of the larger of these chains had spread out to the south, to Chicago and to California. A huge majority of the total chain resources in the state were in the hands of five investment corporations not subsidiary to particular banks.

California Banking.

The nearest approach to "money trust" conditions exists in California, where branch banking on a state-wide basis is permitted. There, last June, were 861 branch offices of banks, as compared with 401 independent unit banks. The Bank of Italy, under the aggressive Giannini management, alone had 285 branches. There were in the same state seven chains with forty-two banks and more than a billion and a quarter in resources.

Heavy experiments in other than plain unit banking are thus taking place in many parts of the country; they seem to have gained greater grip on conditions in the northwest and in California than elsewhere. Probably the effects of the different systems of grouping bank power can be discovered there and several surveys to determine whether any or all of them have given the public superior service are now being made.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 21.—Stockholders of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, associate of the American Telephone and Telegraph, were today granted stock rights worth more than $24,000,000. Each right is worth nearly $26.

The Pacific company announced an offering of 465,000 additional shares at $100 a share to stockholders of record March 7 in the ratio of one new share for each two held.

The offering will bring $46,500,000 in new capital, of which 85 per cent will be supplied by the American Telephone and Telegraph company, as the largest stockholder, and will largely compensate the company for the $50,000,000 advanced to the wholly owned subsidiary, the Southern California Telephone company. The latter offered additional stock to Pacific Telephone at $100 a share recently.

Of the new funds raised, a little less than $7,000,000 will be supplied by the general public, reducing by that amount the fresh capital that will be required by the parent company this year.

U. S. APPROVES BIG NORTHWEST RAIL MERGER

Two Pacific Systems May Combine.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Operation of approximately 15,000 miles of railroad in the northwest as a single system became possible today with approval by the interstate commerce commission of the merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific.

As one of the conditions the commission will require these two roads to give up the Burlington, which they now own jointly. While this requirement undoubtedly will be objected to, the plan for the merger may be carried out, it is understood, if the commission will allow the unified system to retain the part of the Burlington line from St. Paul to Chicago. It is intimated in the commission's ruling that there will be no objection to the acquiring of an entry into Chicago.

The commission's action represents the most important step thus far taken toward railroad consolidation. While this particular merger does not constitute complete consolidation, it conforms to the scheme for the formation of what was listed as System No. 12 in the plan for twenty-one systems, as made public a few months ago by the commission.

Filed Under Transport Act.

The application for this merger was filed prior to the publication of the commission's complete plan and was under the section of the transportation act which permits acquisition of control by lease and stock ownership rather than under the section which provides for complete consolidation in accordance with the commission's plan.

Today's favorable action was taken after lengthy consideration of the case during which vigorous protests were made by the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad on the ground that the unification of the two Hill roads would create a system which would dominate the northwest. Intervening petitions were filed in the case by 147 local associations, municipalities and business organizations, of which 119 favored the granting of the application and eighteen were definitely opposed. The intervenors also included eleven minor railroad companies, nine of which asked to be taken into the new system.

Chairman McManamy Dissents.

Chairman Frank McManamy and Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman dissented from the commission's decision. Mr. McManamy asserted that the merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, which have been regarded as competitive lines, "is in complete disregard of the specific mandate of congress that competition shall be preserved as fully as possible."

The dissenting commissioners dispute the statement which is made in the majority decision that the merger will make possible annual economies aggregating in excess of $10,000,000.

The new company through which the merger would be effected is known as the Great Northern Pacific Railway company. This company would acquire control of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific by lease and stock ownership. The Great Northern operates 6,668 miles. The scheme also contemplates acquisition of control of the Spokane, Portland and Seattle railway, which operates 554 miles of line. It is also specified by the commission that the new company shall take over control of a number of short lines which are embraced in the commission's proposed system No. 12. Further conditions are that there should be unified operation of terminals and that the Milwaukee road shall be assured access from Spokane to Portland and intervening points over the lines of the Spokane, Portland and Seattle road.

Planned to Keep Burlington.

Sponsors for the merger had intended that the new company should retain the ownership of the Burlington, which has been held jointly by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific for about thirty years.

The Burlington with its subsidiaries operates 11,473 miles of line, which would have meant a single system embracing about 27,000 miles. Under the commission's tentative plan, the Burlington is used as the nucleus for

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES STEADY; VOLUME SAGS

Bendix Shares Gain Nearly 3 Points.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Volume fell off sharply while prices held firm in the preholiday session on the Chicago Stock Exchange yesterday. The price range for the most part was narrow.

A last minute spurt by National Union Radio which enabled it to close above 8 and an advance of nearly three points by Bendix were the chief features of the day.

Grigsby was active and a fraction higher at the close. Possibility of the acquisition of the Magnavox company through an exchange of stock was denied yesterday at the headquarters of the Grigsby company.

Notes Improvement.

In addition to the gain by Bendix, other issues in the automotive group showed fair improvement. Auburn rose four to finish 222 and Allied Motor sold up over a point. Cord advanced a fraction. The Stimson Aircraft corporation, Cord subsidiary, has received orders approximating $500,000 at the aircraft show in St. Louis, W. A. Mara, vice president announced. The firm has also closed fifty new dealer contracts, it was stated.

The utility stock continued dull with most of the issues unchanged or moderately higher. Middle West advanced ½ on sales of 28,000 shares. Central and Southwest gained a similar amount while Commonwealth Edison climbed 6 points to 277.

Reports on Income.

Burnham Trading furnished the only material change in the investment trust group with a gain of 1¼. Chicago Corporation and Continental Chicago certificates showed little change. Insull Utility sold off moderately on sales of about 5,000 shares.

Net income of the Utilities Power and Light corporation for the year ended Dec. 31, with the last quarter estimated, was about $7,200,000, as against $4,496,881 in 1928, the company reports. The British subsidiaries of the company plan to spend approximately $4,000,000 in the next four years on improvements and expansion.

I. C. C. ALLOWS BOND ISSUE FOR L. & N. RAILROAD

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Authorization for the Louisville and Nashville railroad to issue $15,000,000 of first and refunding mortgage 4½ per cent gold bonds and $5,000,000 flat or unified 50 year 4 per cent gold bonds was given today by the interstate commerce commission.

The bonds are to be sold at not less than 92.5 per cent of par and accrued interest, and the proceeds used to replenish the road's treasury to meet maturing indebtedness and to provide funds for additional betterments.

PRIVATE WIRES TO BRANCHES

332 S. La Salle, Chicago — 25 Beaver St., New York

E. I. DU PONT DE NEMOURS & CO.
Wilmington, Del., February 17, 1930.

The Board of Directors has this day declared a dividend of $1.00 per share on the outstanding $20.00 par value common stock of this Company, payable on March 15, 1930 to stockholders of record at the close of business on February 27, 1930; also dividend of $1.50 a share on the outstanding debenture stock of this Company, payable on April 25, 1930 to stockholders of record at the close of business on April 10, 1930.

CHARLES COPELAND, Secretary.

Assistant to Executive Available

I am looking for a business man in Chicago who has a substantial, growing business, amply financed, but who has need of executive assistance or a partner.

I have accumulated capital through successful work, am thirty-one years old, a college graduate and married.

The man I am looking for would not want to sell an interest in his business to me until I had first proved my worth to him, nor would I care to invest any money until I first had experience in his business.

If necessary, I would be willing to work without a salary for a few months with the right person, hoping then a mutually satisfactory arrangement could be made. I have in mind an initial investment of about $10,000 or $20,000 and a salary of $500 a month.

Promoters or people who are merely looking for money will waste their time in answering this advertisement. I am looking for some one who wants man-power and not money, and who realizes that real ability is best secured from one financially interested in the business rather than salaried employees.

Irregularity Seen Chief Business Characteristic

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 21.—The nation is found to be still in a period of transition from the recent business recession, with irregularities in trade and industry the outstanding characteristic, in reviews made public today by Bradstreet and Dun & Co.

Warmer weather, which has made itself felt over a large part of the United States, has had a dual effect on business, slowing up winter trades, but lending impetus to sales of spring clothing and construction materials. The sharp decline in grain prices has been an adverse factor, the reviews say, but the way is being gradually cleared for a general advance.

While these weekly statements reflect the cautious spirit evident in many trades, they nevertheless strike a truly optimistic tone with regard to what the next few months will bring.

Outstanding Features.

Bradstreet's review says: "Three features stand out in the week's incidents, these being the advent of warm weather throughout the country, a marked increase in releases of goods previously ordered for use in the coming open season, and this latter not perhaps a favorable feature, and renewed weakness in prices of raw materials, prominently figuring in this direction being grain, notably wheat and raw cotton, which have sought new low levels for the season. Effects of these three important occurrences are naturally varied.

"The freer movement of building materials is to be reckoned with because of the possibility that it may offer an opportunity for many of the unemployed, noted in current federal and state labor surveys. A general view of the situation still reveals a reduced movement in industry and trade, as compared with a year ago, but holds promise of resulting in better reports from now on, in outdoor operations at least, and inferentially aiding the ultimate throwing off of winter dullness in a number of lines.

"Reports from iron and steel trade authorities are of further slight gains in steel mill operations, but on the other hand, of some easing off in buying of those products the call for which was instrumental in bringing operations in this important industry back so quickly from the low ebb of December. Irregularities in demand for steel for automobile trade uses are noted, coincident with advices that makers expect to perhaps turn out more cars in the current month than in the longer month of January."

Situation Remains Mixed.

"The situation in business, although not without further evidences of betterment and returning strength, remains of a mixed and varied character," says Dun's. "In their larger aspects conditions have not changed essentially this month and a widespread and decisive recovery from a major recession is yet to be witnessed.

"Complete uniformity of movement is scarcely to be expected on any occasion, but the irregularities, the sharply contrasting tendencies of the present period of readjustment are unusually prominent. These phases are not unnatural after a speculative convulsion of great intensity, time necessarily being required for the removal of restraining forces and influences making for hesitation.

"With a gradual modification of the different obstacles to progress, the way is being opened for a more general advance, and confidence in the longer future is universal."

PUTS DIVIDENDS ON $2 CASH AND 4% STOCK BASIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 21.—Mayflower Associates, Inc., today placed its stock on a $2 annual cash and 4 per cent stock basis by the declaration of initial dividends of 50 cents cash and 1 per cent in stock quarterly. Since Jan. 1, the company announced, the portfolio has increased in value more than $4,000,000 and the liquidating value on Feb. 19 was nearly $75 a share.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 21.—Faced with a two day suspension of business over Washington's birthday, speculative Wall street took things easy today. Traders on both sides of the market merely marked time for the most part with the result that prices generally held within narrow limits for the greater part of the session.

The more important changes, however, were toward higher levels, with no sign of a much feared renewal of the heavy selling which developed in the late dealing Thursday. The day's transactions were recorded at 2,566,570 shares.

Easy money and the firmer tone in wheat were factors in the better speculative sentiment prevailing on the exchange.

Certificates Advance.

The big—and about the only—feature of the day was a flurry of speculative interest in the rails aroused in the afternoon by news of the interstate commerce commission decision approving the merger of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific

"PERMANENT PARTNERS OF THE CONTINENT"

In Ringing Declaration President Macaulay Describes This As Effect of Sun Life Company's Investment Policy

Its Wisdom Vindicated in Wonderful Report For Past Year.

Montreal, February 22.—A most lucid explanation of how little the fluctuations of Wall Street affect companies which buy securities, not for re-sale, but for investment, was given by President T. B. Macaulay at the annual meeting of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada. He reduced to the plainest terms what is obscure to many, when he compared the Stock Exchange to an auction room where prices fluctuate according to the mental condition or the bank balance of the bidders, and not according to the intrinsic value of the articles on sale. Mr. Macaulay expressed comparative indifference to these things, his company being concerned primarily and chiefly with the continuance or increase of dividends on the sound securities held by his company.

Impressive Vindication of Investment Policy

And judged by that test, the head of the Sun Life Company surely had remarkable vindication of his investment policy in the report he submitted to a crowded meeting of enthusiastic policyholders. Not only was he able to report new assurances for the year of over $650,000,000 which carries his company well on to the three billion mark of assurances in force—he was able to show profit earnings which have risen close to $43,000,000. And as though in mockery of the gyrations of the Stock Market, the dividends actually being paid on Sun Life stocks are $3,374,000 in excess of those payable on these shares when purchased, while the rights and stock privileges have been worth about $17,000,000.

Great National Future Shared by Company

"Through our large stock holdings," he said, "we have become permanent partners in the great utility and other corporations which furnish such essential service that they may almost be said to be part of our national life.

"We believe in the future of our entire nations—both Canada and the United States. What will they be fifty years from now? Does any one doubt their future? We have hitched our investment policy to the star of this Continent," Mr. Macaulay declared amid loud applause, "and, in particular to our great cities, and just as surely as they continue to grow and prosper, so surely will our investments grow and prosper."

The President's Speech

Mr. Macaulay spoke as follows:

"It is with very special pleasure that I move the adoption of this fifty-ninth annual report of the Company. We have grown accustomed to great and increasing prosperity, but the achievements of the past year surpass all previous records in even our history.

"The New Assurances paid for reached the huge total of $654,000,000. Even more impressive, however, is the fact that this is an increase of more than forty-eight per cent. over last year.

"The Assurances in force now exceed $2,400,000,000, an increase of over half a billion. But a few years ago we rejoiced at reaching the one billion mark; we now have passed the second billion and are well on towards the third billion.

"The Income has reached $172,000,000, and the Assets are now $565,000,000.

"More important still, the profit earnings of the year have risen to nearly $43,000,000. We have as usual applied a considerable proportion of these earnings to further strengthening the position of the Company.

"Another $10,000,000 has been deducted from the market values shown in the report, raising that item to $30,000,000; $1,000,000 has been written off the Company's buildings, while over $2,000,000 has been added to our various special reserves.

"The sum of $22,600,000 has been distributed as profits to our policyholders, and in addition to all this nearly $6,000,000 has been added to the undistributed surplus, now more than $60,000,000.

"This wonderful showing is, as always, based on a valuation of our securities enormously below the market quotations actually existing at the close of the year, so that the real strength of the Company is only partially disclosed.

Stock Exchange a Mere Auction Mart

"That such results should be achieved in the face of the Stock Exchange panic, of which we have heard so much, may at first appear strange. It is, however, not so surprising, for we are apt to over-estimate the importance of that crisis, serious though it was. What is the Stock Exchange? It is merely a place where public auctions are held. It differs from other auctions only in the articles sold, and in the volume of the transactions. It is no more true of this auction than of other auctions that the prices bid are an infallible index of the real value of the articles dealt in. The quotations fluctuate with the optimism or the pessimism of the bidders. They are frequently much better evidence as to the bank accounts and credit of the bidders than of the value of the stocks bought and sold.

Business as Usual

"That was exactly the situation during the recent price reaction. It was purely a Stock Exchange panic. It was not caused by any trouble in general business. We did not see the closing down of factories, wholesale discharges of employees, and other symptoms of business distress such as marked the great depression to which our minds revert. Outside the ranks of the unfortunate speculators there was little to show that anything unusual was happening in the Wall Street auction rooms. On the wildest days of the reaction the business of the country went on as usual. Men continued to work, children continued to be born, the population continued to grow, the great electric companies continued to increase their output, enlarging their power houses or building new ones. The great corporations whose stocks we own continued to expand, continued to prosper and to earn even larger dividends, just as if there were no dealings in their shares at all. What happened was merely that last June, in a wild burst of enthusiasm, speculators bid up prices beyond normal levels, and this in turn produced a wave of selling which began as profit-taking, but ended in a panic which carried prices as much below normal levels as they had previously been forced above them. The prices of November last, of course, showed a great drop from the quotations of mid-September, but in reality that great reaction did little more than remove the temporary bulge caused by the over-enthusiastic bidding of the previous months of the year. The actual intrinsic value of the shares was, of course, not affected by the fact that the speculators had exhausted their bank accounts and had had to lower their bids.

Dividends on Securities Greatly Increased

"The investor who buys for permanent holding is but little concerned as to the prices which may be bid for his stocks by those who frequent the Exchanges. What interests him is to know that his dividends will not only be paid regularly but will gradually increase with the passing years. I will apply this test to our own holdings. At the present time the dividends actually being paid on our stocks are $3,374,000 in excess of the dividends payable on those same shares when we purchased them. This is equal to one and a quarter per cent. per annum on the book value of all our holdings. We have also received rights and stock privileges worth about $17,000,000. And the end is not yet. Even since the slump began on say October first, the dividends payable on our stocks have increased about $1,500,000 and we have received rights with a value even in these markets of $1,100,000.

No Losses by Permanent Investors

"To imagine that loss was caused to any except those carrying shares on margin because market prices in 1929 marched up a hill and then marched down again, is to remind me how an old friend told me mournfully some years ago that he had lost over a million dollars during the preceding twelve months. When I replied sympathetically, he added with equal mournfulness: 'Yes, I have lost over a million by not buying stocks a year ago when they were low.' The losses supposed to have been suffered by permanent investors, such as the Sun Life, are like those of my jocular friend—they are not losses at all, but merely profits which we might have made had we known just when the peak was, and had altered our practice so as to sell out at that time.

Following the Continent's "Star"

"When investing our funds, we look always to the distant future—ten, twenty, thirty years hence. Through our large stockholdings we have become permanent partners in the great utility and other corporations which furnish such essential service that they may almost be said to be part of the national life. We believe in the future of Montreal, of New York, of Chicago, and of all our great centres of population. We believe even more in the future of our entire nations—both Canada and the United States. What will they be fifty years from now? Does any one doubt their future? We have hitched our investment policy to the star of this Continent, and in particular to our great cities, and just as surely as they continue to grow and prosper, so surely will our investments grow and prosper. What need we care for the moods or pocketbooks of in-and-out speculators? Why should we reverse our policy and throw our great holdings on the market for some possible temporary gain? Could we be sure that we would ever get our shares back? We prefer to continue as permanent partners.

Sun Impregnable on Blackest Day

"We must, of course consider market quotations when preparing our annual report, but our policy is so to undervalue our holdings that there can be a tremendous drop in prices without even reaching the figures at which our securities are carried in our accounts. Last year we announced that we had a margin of $100,000,000 to provide for just such a possible market crisis as we have experienced. We expected a reaction, but I confess that we did not expect one of such severity. Our assets have now been tested by one of the worst financial reactions in history, and you will be interested to know that the provision made by us for such a contingency proved more than ample, for even on the blackest of the black days we still had about $35,000,000 of the amount intact as a margin of excess valuation still remaining to protect our surplus. I am now able to say that even after distributing the large profits which we have announced, after making the further reserves to strengthen our position, and after adding $6,000,000 to our declared surplus, we have today the entire margin of $100,000,000 again intact. The blow has fallen, the slump has come, the values are marked down and we are in a stronger pisition than ever before in our history.

"This practice of undervaluing our securities is now a permanent feature of our investment policy. I look forward to the time in the not distant future when we will have an undisclosed margin so huge that even the present large figures will appear comparatively small. It is our ambition that the values placed on our securities will always be buttressed by safeguards so great that market fluctuations will affect us no more than the winds that whistle around our buildings.

Securities Compared

"I would not have you suppose that I am blind to the merits also of well selected bonds and mortgages as investments. There is much to be said for them. Their values, nominally at least, do not fluctuate greatly. They are particularly attractive at times when stock quotations appear unduly high, as in the latter part of last year. But while they offer greater resistance to price reactions, they have no power of growth. Personally I prefer securities that live and advance, that keep pace with national growth and development — securities with a future, rather than securities which, even if protected against deterioration (not always successfully by gold caskets, can, at best, only remain stationary and unchanging by the side of the road while the army of progress marches past. There is a happy medium. I think that our Company should always have a large amount invested in choice bonds, but I also think that in the best interests of our policyholders a considerable proportion of our assets should always be invested in high grade progressive common stocks.

A Future That Defies Prophecy.

"It is a wonderful report that we present, but I always think of the present as a mere vantage ground from which to get an ever further vision into the future which must be planned for. What is our future to be? The realities of the present are far in advance of anything that we even imagined possible, but a few years ago, and the outlook now is brighter than ever. I hardly dare to make a prophecy. If any of you care to calculate what our position will be if we can maintain anything like our present rate of progress for even the next few years, the results will surprise you. We already occupy a remarkable position. We have a character and an individuality all our own. We have an enthusiastic army of policyholders, and we enjoy the confidence of the public in a very unusual degree. We can, I think, look forward to a future so glorious that even the achievements of the present will then seem small. And let us never forget that every extension of our business is an extension of service and blessing to humanity."

TALL BUILDING MAY BE ERECTED AT STATE AND 7TH

G. H. White Buys 99 Year Leasehold Estate.

BY AL CHASE.

A major improvement is foreshadowed for the southeast corner of South State and 7th streets through the purchase of the ninety-nine year leasehold estate on the L shaped parcel immediately surrounding the corner by George H. White of the Industrial Organization Finance company, industrial engineers.

The property in which Mr. White bought an interest fronts forty feet at 711-17 South State and fifty feet at 9-17 East 7th street and is improved by an old four story building. Mr. White bought the lease, dated Feb. 1, 1911, from Frank A. Hecht Jr. The original lease was from Harriet S. and Bessie Dimick.

Must Build Soon.

According to the terms of yesterday's transaction, the assignee is to remove the present building and erect a new one to cost not less than $50,000 within two years from date of transfer. Mr. White said yesterday that the provision for a $50,000 building was purely figurative and that when the time was ripe the development would be on an outstanding scale. He said he wasn't ready to disclose the type. A syndicate is interested with him in the project.

The Chicago Perforating company has taken title to the property at 2445 West 24th place, 196x100 feet, from Arthur H. Boettcher and John A. Dienner as trustees. The firm now occupies the property. There is a one story factory building on the ground.

Elmore Buys 60 Acre Tract.

Grover C. Elmore has bought sixty acres in Tinley Park from Otto Ruetter and will subdivide into small country estates. The property is bounded by 176th and 179th streets and by 66th and Oak Park avenues. This will be the sixth subdivision to be placed on the market in Tinley Park by the Elmore Real Estate Improvement company during the last twelve months. The total area of land subdivided is 640 acres.

Louis Scacchi has sold the property at the southwest corner of Polk and Crawford, lot 81x125 feet, improved with a building containing seven stores and eight flats to Louis Weller. He took in exchange six stores on a lot 100x125 feet at 3711-19 Fullerton avenue. Samuel H. Rosenthal was attorney for Mr. Sacchi.

Universal-Atlas Rents Space in Adams-Franklin

The Universal-Atlas Portland Cement company, the new combine of Universal and Atlas, yesterday leased 5,600 square feet of space in the Adams-Franklin building to house overflow activities from the main headquarters. The lease starts March 1 and was negotiated by Henry Golnick of Winston & Co.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

Indiana—Increasing cloudiness, followed by rain Saturday and Saturday night, somewhat colder in northwest portion in afternoon, much colder Saturday night and Sunday; partly cloudy Sunday.

Lower Michigan—Rain probable Saturday, somewhat warmer in extreme northeast and west portions in afternoon; snow flurries probable Sunday; much colder Saturday night and Sunday.

U. S. APPROVES BIG NORTHWEST RAIL MERGER

Two Pacific Systems May Be Combined.

System No. 14, extending from Chicago, as far northwest as Billings, Mont., and as far southwest as San Antonio, Tex.

Quicker Service Seen.

The commission says that among the immediate advantages to the public offered by the plan are quicker service by the use of shorter routes, more expeditious handling of cars at terminals, the substitution of one-line for higher two-line rates, affecting a considerable amount of traffic in coal, gravel, grain, hay, pulpwood, live stock, etc.; the more effective use of train tracks now available only to shippers on one or the other line; the assisted car supply by virtue of the availability of the equipment of both roads, and the elimination of switching charges for movements between the two lines.

The commission declares that it is not convinced that a closer union of the northern lines, which already, although competitive, are largely controlled by the same interests, would be injurious to the Milwaukee road.

"The effect of this closer union," says the commission, "if it affects the carriers at all, will probably be felt in the general growth and development of the northwest."

Chairman McManamy in his dissenting opinion, asserted that the consolidation, as authorized, goes far beyond any power given to the commission under the section of the transportation act under which the application was filed.

Competition Is Urged.

"It is clearly shown that these two railroads serve the same Pacific ports and the same lake ports and other eastern terminals and together serve all of the intervening territory," said Mr. McManamy. "If active and substantial competition does not exist between these two lines, nowhere in the country can such competition be found. Officials of these two lines testified that not only are they in active and vigorous competition with each other, but that each is the most aggressive and important competitor of its other. This fact alone renders the proposed consolidation inconsistent with the purpose of the act."

The effect of the merger, Mr. McManamy said, might be to throw many employes out of work and to injure communities which have been built up as railroad division points.

Bald Would Keep Burlington.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 21.—(AP)—The opinion that "further consideration should be given to the matter of controlling the Burlington ownership after the unification" of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railways was expressed here today by Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern railroad, when informed of the action of the interstate commerce commission in approving the merger.

"I think the same time the commission ought to find unduly prejudicial, the control of the railroads to maintain their screening specifications and open small sizes of prepared coal as fine coal the same percentage the same amount lower than the rates maintained on lump coal from districts in Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico, Colorado, and Wyoming to Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, and Nebraska.

"I think it can be shown that control of the Burlington by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific has been greatly in the public interest," Mr. Budd said. "My own opinion is that at least the new Northern system necessarily must have access to Chicago, and I know of no other means so satisfactory as to use the Burlington line."

Budd pointed out that the two northerns, coupled with the Burlington, had a great diversity of traffic that would be disturbed seriously if the Burlington is cut loose.

Taking the last year for example, the president cited losses in the territory of the two Northerns, but said the Burlington enjoyed one of its best years. The Burlington taps a manufacturing district which brings traffic to the two roads that they could never create along their lines, he declared.

Modification May Be Sought.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Unofficial indications were given in railway circles here today that the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific railroads would seek modification of the interstate commerce commission's ruling relative to disposal of the Burlington road in connection with the proposed merger of the two northern systems.

Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific, in commenting on the commission's decision, said that "the minds of the representatives of the Northerns, the privilege of an offer into Chicago has always been considered as an indispensible condition to going forward with the merger. I can make no further comment until I have seen the text of the commission's decision."

FREIGHT RATES ON SOFT COAL ORDERED CUT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Rates on bituminous coal in carloads from the southern Illinois district to Detroit, Iowa, Kansas, and Nebraska were held unreasonable today by the interstate commerce commission and a lower scale provided.

At the same time the commission ordered to find unduly prejudicial, the control of the railroads to maintain their screening specifications and open small sizes of prepared coal as fine coal the same percentage the same amount lower than the rates maintained on lump coal from districts in Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico, Colorado, and Wyoming to Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, and Nebraska.

Reviewing previous findings, the commission affirmed rates on bituminous coal from mines in the Belleville, Ill., district, Chicago, and Illinois mid- and southern Illinois groups in Indiana and the western Kentucky group to St. Louis and East St. Louis.

COTTON ESTIMATES.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—(AP)—The International Institute of Agriculture has received from the Government of India the cotton estimates for the present season totaling 4,630,000 bales, or 117,000 bales less than the five-year average of 4,747,000 bales.

railroads. The certificates of both roads advanced sharply following the announcement and interest perked up in the Van Sweringen issues and other rails looming on the merger horizon. Gains of 1 to 9 points were recorded by Chesapeake and Ohio, Western Maryland, Pennsylvania, Bangor and Aroostook, Norfolk and Western, and other carrier shares.

Recovery in the wheat market was a factor in a short covering movement in Chicago stocks, particularly Montgomery Ward, Sears-Roebuck, and Simmons. Each of the mail order house shares advanced between 2 and 3 points. Simmons gave promise of a real comeback for a while, but later fell by the wayside and wound up about where it had started. In addition to the benefit it received from the improved outlook for trade from the agricultural districts as a result of the wheat price advance, buying of Montgomery Ward was stimulated by a story going the rounds that important banking interests are quite well satisfied with the company's future and are rather bullish on the market prospects for the stock at present levels.

Radio in Favor Again.

Radio came into renewed favor and shorts had a particularly difficult time of it as the stock was turned over in heavy volume at improving prices. The closing sale of this old time leader showed a net gain for the day of nearly 2 points.

Some weeks ago the old Radio crowd was reported switching heavily out of that stock into Radio-Keith-Orpheum, and for a time Radio lost considerable in the way of speculative favor, while the last mentioned issue naturally benefited marketwise from the operation. The switch out of Radio into Radio-Keith-Orpheum originally was made, it is believed, on the theory that the latter company would turn up with some part of the Fox Film Theater holdings. In the meantime the Radio annual report, not expected to make any too good a showing, was expected to be out of the way.

Now, however, with everything indicating the Fox properties will be kept intact, it is evidently the belief in such circles that Radio offers better possibilities marketwise, even though its annual figures are still to be published.

Motor shares acted better than they have for some time. Auburn registered a gain of 8 points on the day. Packard seemed to be under accumulation and went ahead more than a point. Chrysler and Hudson and General Motors also fared well.

CRASH IN WORLD WHEAT VALUES ENDS ABRUPTLY

Foreigners Take 5 Million Bushels in One Day.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Demoralization in the wheat markets of the world came to an abrupt finish yesterday, there being a general change in sentiment overnight. Foreigners who had held off for some time in purchasing cash grain took an estimated 5,000,000 bu, probably the largest single day's business on the crop.

Removal of hedges against the export sales was instrumental in turning the markets upward, the continent taking three cargoes from the southern hemispere, as well as some nearby grain afloat. There was 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 bu of Manitobas, durums, and hard winters secured from North America, mainly the former.

At no time were wheat values as low as the finish of Thursday, and it was very noticeable that weak holders were well out of their lines, while shorts were rendered uneasy over the unexpected revival in the demand for the day grain and covered freely. Final trades here, while under the best figures of the day, showed net gains of 1¾@1⅝c, with March $1.10 and May $1.14⅛@1.14¾.

Winnipeg Leads Advance.

Winnipeg wheat market showed pronounced strength and led the advance, closing 3¼@3⅜c higher. Liverpool gained 2¼@2⅝d, while Buenos Aires was 1⅝@2c higher and Rosario 1⅛@1⅜c higher. Cables from Liverpool indicated that millers were taking cash wheat on a more liberal scale.

There was nothing in the general run of the news to result in any change in sentiment other than the export business, but the technical position had been materially strengthened by the break of over 12c from the high point of the previous week. There were heavy changing operations under way in the local market, with longs in the May transferring holdings into the deferred futures. Considerable evening up was in progress toward the last, owing to the holiday. Foreign markets will be open as usual.

Considering the heavy selling which has been in evidence in the grain markets during the last week, the net losses at the last were surprisingly small, wheat being 4¼@5½c lower as compared with a week ago, while corn was 1½@2c lower, oats off ⅛@2¼c, and rye 2¾@4½c. Lard declined 37½@35c and bellies 22½@25c for the week.

Crop reports on winter wheat were favorable, especially from Kanasas. Firms in that state are starting to look for around 200,000,000 bu if weather conditions are normal for the balance of the season.

Cash Corn in Demand.

Shipping sales of 357,000 bu cash corn were reported by Chicago handlers, the best business in some weeks. The aggressive cash demand, with forecast of unsettled weather and the strength in corn, advanced futures over 1c, as compared with Thursday's finish, but the close was well toward the top, with net gains of ⅝@⅞c, March being 85c and May 88⅜@88¾c. Selling against offers and by recent buyers checked the advance. Nothing was offered to arrive from the country and the trade is talking smaller receipts next week.

Oats were strong early with other grains on buying by shorts and cash houses, with the finish ⅛@⅛c higher, March being 42c and May 43⅛@43½c. Hedging pressure and profit taking caused a recession from the best figures.

Liquidation was on in volume in rye under cover of the strength in wheat, the trade having the impression that eastern lines were being sold out. The finish, however, was 1@2¼c higher, with March 79⅛@80c and May 78@78¼c.
